CENTRAL LONDON UNDER TERRIFIC ATTACK; CHURCHES AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS DAMAGED

Hitler Is in No Hurry To Cross the Channel, Nazi Spokesman Asserts

Air Raids Continue with Increased Intensity and Berlin Claims London Is in Chaos over Air Raids

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 14 (Saturday)—The invasion of Britain—if and when it comes — awaits Fuehrer Hitler's decision "and he will not be hurried," a German spokesman declared today.

The Nazi air force meanwhile kept up its raids on Britain, striking a new and fiercer tempo for daylight action which, a flying gunner-observer declared, had turned besieged London into a scene of chaos.

Speculation on "Nazi time schedules," however, is futile, commentators asserted, because the initiative is in German hands and none but the Fuehrer can determine the moment when Britain is "ripe for the final assault."

Military circles insisted the aerial preparations, from the German point of view, were all in hand. They asserted that a sign of the growing effectiveness of the unrelenting German attack was the drawing of the preponderance of the British air defenses to the London region.

Other parts of the island are being deprived of fighter planes and anti-aircraft artillery so as to protect the capital, they contended.

One dock section has been so splotched by fires, ploughed by bombs and blanketed by smoke that a low-altitude reconnaissence showed no anti-aircraft batteries in action to protect it, said Hans Rechenberg, former economics ministry official who gave this bomb-sight picture.

He suggested that the heat was so fierce and the smoke so dense that gunners had to give up their posts along the Thames riverfront.

"Summing up my personal impressions," in an interview, Rechenberg said, "I can only say that London is already a scene of chaos. And remember this is only the beginning."

Berlin, itself a recent target of night-flying British bombers, had a respite last night.

Attacks To Continue

Authorized sources declared that despite this the "retaliatory" attacks on London and other parts of England would continue without let-up, the argument being that Germany still had not evened the score.

The Germans acknowledged that British night raiders swept over northern and western Germany but insisted that the British, failing to reach most of their goals, dumped bombs over residential districts.

Authorized sources said that British planes bombed Germany's principal industrial city, Essen, seat of the big Krupp armament works but missed industrial targets.

A workers' residential section on the outskirts of the city was hit, it was declared. Casualties and damage were unreported.

(This was the first German announcement of an attack on Essen although the British have claimed hits on it many times.)

Weather Hampers Attacks

British bombers also reached Cassel during the night, authorized sources said. But they added they were unable to say whether the British actually bomber the city. Bad weather and anti-aircraft fire interferred with the attack.

Besides the blows on London, the high command said German night raiders carried new fires and ex-

Roosevelt Acts To Protect U. S. Vital Necessities

Bans Export of Aviation Gas to Foreign Countries

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—The administration, which already has banned export of aviation gasoline to points outside the Western Hemisphere, established controls today over foreign purchases of American plans and equipment for producing this vital war time fuel.

By proclamation, President Roosevelt directed also that licenses be required for exports of plans and machinery for manufacturing air planes and airplane engines.

Today's action does not, in itself, prohibit export of these plans and machinery. Bringing them under the export licensing system, however, would be the first step if an embargo were contemplated.

Husbanding Resources

The President said the action was solely a step in the husbanding of resources essential to defense. Diplomatic quarters watched, however, to see how Japan would receive the news.

Kensuke Horinouchi, the Japanese ambassador, formally protested last month against the embargo on exports of aviation gasoline. While his note was not made public, it was reported he contended that the embargo was discriminatory because Japan lacked facilities for producing its own aviation gasoline whereas other principal foreign customers of the United States had ample refineries.

In addition to the extension of the export licensing system, there were other major defense developments:

The army announced that it was revising the plan of organization for its "streamlined" divisions to give them still greater armament.

The war department authorized nine manufacturers to go ahead with $170,000,000 worth of plant expansions for production of machine guns, small arms, ammunition and chemical components of explosives. They were given "speed up letters" which permit them to proceed with construction while details of contracts are worked out.

New Divisions Larger

Officials said it was decided to revise the "streamlined" divisions because of deficiencies uncovered during recent maneuvers and field exercises. The new divisions will have 14,000 officers and men instead of 12,000, will include an anti-tank company, and will have double the number of eighty-one-millimeter mortars and fifty-calibre machine guns.

During the day, President Roosevelt transmitted to Congress a policy declaration from the defense commission which said that "speed of delivery on all items of the defense program is essential."

"Price, while not the sole consideration, is of outstanding significance, and every effort must be made to secure a fair price," the declaration said.

Mr. Roosevelt also sent to Congress the commission's labor policy declaration which endorsed the forty-hour week in defense industries.

Pershing Thinks Britain Will Win Against Germany

Believes Former Ally Can Hold Out Long Enough To Defeat Nazis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—Striking a note of hope for his British comrades-in-arms of 1917-18, General John J. Pershing said today on his eightieth birthday that he thought Great Britain could hold out against the German onslaught.

After being showered with congratulatory messarges, decorated by President Roosevelt for an old deed of bravery in the Philippine islands and after making a radio speech exhorting his fellow countrymen to "face the facts" of an imminent danger of war, the "general of the armies" held a press conference.

Confident in British

A reporter asked him if he thought the British would be able to hold out. After a moment's deliberation, he said:

"Yes, I think they can."

Asked what he thought of the British fight against Nazi air raids, he said:

"I think they're living up pretty well to the British reputation for stability."

In response to a question he said that the radio speech he made recently, advocating the turning over of fifty old destroyers to Britain, had been made on his own initiative. He had no idea at the time that this country could obtain naval and air bases in exchange for them, as it has subsequently.

"Do you think there is anything else we might do to aid the British?" a reporter asked.

"I could think of a good many things," he replied.

"Anything short of war, sir?"

Speaks over Radio

Speaking over the radio just after receiving the distinguished service cross in a White House ceremony, Pershing said:

"Twenty-one years ago none of us dreamed that the calamity of war would come again to the world so soon and in such hideous and devastating form.

"But we must face the facts of today. The call comes not only to us who fought in the World War and to those who stood ready, but it comes to every patriotic citizen living under the protection of our great government.

"To meet it, we must pledge ourselves anew to fulfill our obligations to the nation, and again avow eternal devotion to the principles of liberty and justice upon which this nation rests."

Stop Totalitarianism Now, Hutchison Says

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 13 (AP)—Dr. Ralph Cooper Hutchison, president of Washington and Jefferson college, declared today that this country's best chance of survival as a free and Democratic nation "is to stop totalitarianism and stop it now."

The forty-two-year-old college head, welcoming students at opening day exercises, said "we of the educational and Christian convictions have failed, our armies and navies must step into the breach." He added:

"We believe the actual survival of the United States as a free and Democratic nation is now threatened.

"Our first line of defense is the British empire, England and Gibralter; the second line, this (Western) hemisphere; the third line, North America; and the last line, the United States proper.

"Victories are won on the first line of defense. Any other strategy is defiant of the odds. Our best chance of survival is to stop totalitarianism and stop it now."

41 Known Dead In Powder Blast; Cause Is Mystery

Workers Continue To Dig in Wreckage of the Hercules Plant

KENVIL, N. J., Sept. 13. (AP) — Seven more burned and mangled bodies were dug from the ruins of the explosion-wracked Hercules powder plant today, bringing to forty-one the number of known dead.

Sorrowing families remained in their homes to mourn their dead while relatives of those still missing waited and watched, fearing the worst and hiding their anguish behind stoicism.

On the main street of this typical little industrial town black tar-paper—where windows had been shattered by the blast—hid the interiors of shops, the postoffice and stores. Inside small groups spoke in whispers of the tragedy which they referred to as "it" and of those who were not "killed" but "gone."

In the homes the people went silently about their little domestic duties. In most of them they were busy replacing window panes, sweeping up debris and striving to bring back to normal houses damaged by the mighty earth-shaking blast. Women wept softly. Men smoked and said little.

"What is there to say," they told the few people they saw, "this is a powder town. Anything is liable to happen here."

Down by the gates of the plant perhaps a dozen or more would gather every two hours when scanty reports of the rescue work were brought to them. Three shifts of about fifty men each reported for work as usual during the day. They were set to work digging for more bodies.

1,637 Midshipmen Reach Annapolis To Open Classes

"Double June Weeks" Will Be in Force as Defense Move

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Midshipmen 1,637 strong—officers for a two-ocean fleet in an expanded national defense program — arrived today to start classes Monday and to inaugurate the first year of "double June weeks."

The romantic angle of two "June weeks" is also attributed to national defense—the academic schedule has been stepped up and the first class will be graduated Feb. 7 instead of in June.

By bus, train, and automobile, the midshipmen of the first, second and third classes poured in upon the naval academy early today, all reporting in uniform at 10 a. m. this morning. These men had been on leave since their summer practice cruises.

This year's regiment is one of the largest in the academy's history, officers who may be badly needed when new battleships come from the shipyards to augment the nation's fleet.

The eighty-foot schooner "Freedom" was formally presented to the academy by Sterling Morton of New York City during the first regimental formation this morning.

Rear - Admiral Wilson Brown, academy superintendent, addresses the senior class at a session tonight. Tomorrow the midshipmen will store away their civilian clothes and make arrangements for starting classes.

Classes have already started for the plebes, now numbering 957 with still more to come under an increase receintly authorized by Congress.

The first classmen number 400, second classmen 583 and third classmen 654.

King and Queen Bombed in Nazi Raid on Palace

But Both Are in Shelter and Escape without Injuries

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 13—The king and queen of England were bombed in Buckingham palace today by a twin-engined German raider participating in the longest daylight attack on London of this total war.

King George VI and his cheerful Scottish queen were not hurt, nor were they cowed.

After the raid, they climbed out of palace air raid shelters, surveyed the damage that five bombs had wrought to Royal chapel, inner quadrangle and roadway, and then the king told a thankful war cabinet and people:

"Like so many other people, we now have had a personal experience of German barbarity which only strengthens the resolution of all of us to fight through to final victory." Then, with the queen, he departed

Major Parties Spend Less Than in 1936

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — First reports of Republican and Democratic National Committee expenditures disclosed today that both were starting off their spending at a far more modest pace than in 1936.

The Republican committee, in a report to the clerk of the House, gave its disbursements as $886,144 for the three months ended August 31. The Democratic Committee said it had spent $339,141. In the like period of 1936, the Republicans spent $1,783,000 and the Democrats, $1,008,840.

The Hatch politics law, enacted since the last presidential election, restricts expenditures of a national campaign committee to $3,000,000 a year. In 1936, the Republicans spent over $8,000,000 and the Democrats over $5,000,000.

Another disclosure from today's reports was that the Democratic committee had not received as much revenue from advertising in its convention year book as it did four years ago. Receipts from "ads" in the 1940 book were given as $197,418; in 1936 they were $357,475.

Germany Denies Intent To Bomb Palace

BERLIN, Sept. 14—(Saturday)—(AP)—An authorized spokesman said today that German bombs dropped "in the vicinity of Buckingham palace" yesterday were aimed at oil storage tanks.

Another German squadron, the spokesman said, bombed Erith on the railway between London and Gravesend on the Thames estuary, attempting to hit pulp and paper mills. One German plans was reported missing.

Both Explosive and Fire Bombs Fall over Wide Section of Capital City

Two Salvos of Bombs Dropped in South London, but Principal Violence Is in Center of Capital; Buckingham Palace and Downing Street Damaged in Seventh Consecutive Attack by Nazis

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 14 (Saturday) — German bombers, after damaging Buckingham palace and other symbols of empire in daylight assault yesterday, returned to the attack on London early today and the city's vast batteries of anti-aircraft flung aloft a mighty barrage of steel.

It was the end of a full week of nightly raids of great dimensions.

The Nazis struck under the yellow light of a harvest moon at 9 p. m. last night (3 p. m. EST), and the reinforced defensive artillery went into action almost at once.

The explosions of anti-aircraft shells raised a long, reddish ribbon across the face of the city. In one area, high explosive and incendiary bombs began to drop. In that same area, the anti-aircraft was most active.

A tremendous explosion was heard from another section. Bombs were dropping more and more frequently and over wider areas.

Rooftops Splattered

The guns in central London sent long rolling crashes of sound into the sky. The splinters of shells slapped upon the city's rooftops and smashed skylights.

Shortly before midnight, a single raider was heard to crash in the south, with shell exploded on its tail. Then there was a lull.

Incendiary bombs fell on a house in a southwest area square. Bus drivers and conductors helped extinguish them.

High explosives hit a building in the southwest area and the walls of a nearby block of apartments were damaged.

The British press association reported that a bomb fell through two floors of a house in the same district, killing a woman seated in a chair and the cat she had in her lap.

South London Bombed

A shower of incendiary bombs fell on the fringe of central London. Fire apparatus immediately was heard dashing through the streets.

Two heavy salvos of bombs were dropped in South London.

Nowhere was the action so violent as in the center of the city. Both explosive and fire bombs came hurtling down.

The day's attack was centered upon the greatest symbols of the empire.

Buckingham palace was hit by explosive bombs; Downing street, the home of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and the length of Whitehall, the avenue of the kingdom's government, by fire bombs.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, themselves, were in the palace but escaped injury when five bombs fell.

Sirens counded the seventh successive night alarm of the German air onslaught at 9 p. m. tonight (8 p. m., E.S.T.). It was the day's fourth alarm.

Attack Downing Street

Authorities disclosed tonight that an incendiary bomb—quickly smothered—had hit the House of Lords, noble Chamber of Parliament, in the south wing of the Houses of Parliament. They did not say exactly when this happened. But today, fire bombs were dropped on Downing street, where Prime Minister Winston Churchill lives, and elsewhere in the Whitehall area, where almost all of the government's business is transacted.

They nicked a wing of the admiralty from which the operations of the world's famous square, and very near to the Victoria memorial post in front of Buckingham palace, and in more humble quarters about the city.

The only destruction of consequence to these properties of empire was to the palace. The palace, home of England's monarchs for a hundred years, was hit by five bombs. Its chapel, where many of the great events of a royal family's life have been sealed by the ritual of the church, was smashed. Incendiary bombs streaked down upon the grounds. A water main was burst; hundreds of windows were smashed.

King and Queen Safe

King George and Queen Elizabeth were in an air raid shelter in the palace during the bombing. The Princesses Margaret Rose and Elizabeth were elsewhere. Three palace employes were injured.

The government flatly accused the Nazis of "deliberate" attacks on "conspicuous buildings irrespective of their nature."

The raiders struck the city before tea-time. For the most part they operated in small groups, high in the gray clouds. Two or three of them would make a sudden rendevous over a target, let go their bombs and roar upward at once. Their planes were half hidden in a gray camouflage coat almost the color of the dreary sky. Some of them were declared, too, to be using a new sort of incendiary machine-gun bullet which pierced and then burst a split second later.

Attack by Dive Bomber

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

German bombs blasted the homes of king and pauper alike yesterday (Friday) in the greatest daylight pounding yet of historic London—and a Nazi raider said: "remember, this is only the beginning."

King George VI and his Scottish queen were uninjured after spending harrowing hours in a subterranean air raid vault under Buckingham Palace as five heavy bombs crashed on and near the royal residence. The 237-year old palace shuddered, parts of it crumpled, and great craters were ripped on its inner quadrangle and the roadway entrance.

Other bombs struck in narrow Downing street where Prime Minister Churchill lives and nicked a corner of the admiralty under the shadow of the great statute column of Admiral Nelson in Trafalgar square. Fire bombs sprayed all over Whitehall, the famous avenue fronting most government buildings, and the British disclosed also that an incendiary bomb recently struck the ancient House of Lords in the massive Parliament area on the banks of the Thames at Westminster bridge. The flames were extinguished quickly.

Calls Germans Barbarians

"Like so many other people, we now have had a personal experience of German barbarity which only strengthens the resolution of all of us to fight through to final victory."

Then, with the queen, he left for another tour of London's bombed slums.

Casualties and huge property damage steadily mounted in London under the unrelenting fury of mass Nazi raids.

A revised toll showed that since Saturday 1,245 Britons have been killed and 4,810 injured not counting Thursday's and yesterday's violent assaults.

Three alarms kept London's millions in air raid shelters most of

American Says Germans Have Made Attempts To Cross English Channel

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 13. (AP)—An American surgeon coming home after spending nearly a quarter-century in France said today that the Germans already had made several unsuccessful attempts to invade England from the shores of conquered France.

Basing his statement on personal observation and information from "many French sources," Dr. Charles F. Bove, 52, head surgeon of the American hospital in Paris, declared on his arrival from Lisbon on the American export liner Exambion that "the Germans have tried the invasion several times at different points and each time they failed."

He reported having seen "hundreds of German bodies in the waters near Cherbourg (France)."

The Germans, he said, were constantly practicing for invasion all along the French coast—the practice including maneuvers in which Nazi soldiers in full uniform jumped from vessels and swam long distances with all their equipment.

Other Passengers Silent

Other passengers would not comment on the reported invasion attempts, but Dr. Bove's statement bore out similar reports received

Carol and Lupescu Stop Off in Spain

He reserved four rooms for himself on the main floor, after being greeted by local officials at the railroad station.

Carol will remain here several days before continuing to his Portuguese exile, it was said.

Elmer Maxwell Succeeds Carl as State Penal Farm Superintendent

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Willis R. Jones, board of correction chairman, today announced appointment of Elmer St. Clair Maxwell of Frederick as superintendent of the Maryland state penal farm at Hagerstown succeeding Elmer B. Carl, effective Oct. 15.

Maxwell has been city engineer at Frederick since Jan. 1, 1927.

Jones said the penal farm superintendent "serves at the pleasure of the board," and Maxwell's appointment "meets an urgent need of the department for the full-time service of a capable engineer."

The position pays $5,000 annually, plus maintenance.

Jones asserted there was "no politics" in the appointment. He said he believed Maxwell was a Democrat, "but not an active Democrat," and had served through both Democratic and Republican administrations as Frederick city engineer and as assistant harbor engineer of Baltimore City from 1918 to 1924.

The penal farm houses about 400 inmates and has a personnel of about 75, Jones said. A building program "ultimately costing about $2,000,000" is underway to enlarge

King and Queen Bombed in Nazi Raid on Palace

But Both Are in Shelter and Escape without Injuries

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 13—The king and queen of England were bombed in Buckingham palace today by a twin-engined German raider participating in the longest daylight attack on London of this total war.

King George VI and his cheerful Scottish queen were not hurt, nor were they cowed.

After the raid, they climbed out of palace air raid shelters, surveyed the damage that five bombs had wrought to Royal chapel, inner quadrangle and roadway, and then the king told a thankful war cabinet and people:

"Like so many other people, we now have had a personal experience of German barbarity which only strengthens the resolution of all of us to fight through to final victory." Then, with the queen, he departed

Major Parties Spend Less Than in 1936

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—First reports of Republican and Democratic National Committee expenditures disclosed today that both were starting off their spending at a far more modest pace than in 1936.

The Republican committee, in a report to the clerk of the House, gave its disbursements as $886,144 for the three months ended August 31. The Democratic Committee said it had spent $339,141. In the like period of 1936, the Republicans spent $1,783,000 and the Democrats, $1,008,840.

The Hatch politics law, enacted since the last presidential election, restricts expenditures of a national campaign committee to $3,000,000 a year. In 1936, the Republicans spent over $8,000,000 and the Democrats over $5,000,000.

Another disclosure from today's reports was that the Democratic committee had not received as much revenue from advertising in its convention year book as it did four years ago. Receipts from "ads" in the 1940 book were given as $197,418; in 1936 they were $357,475.

Germany Denies Intent To Bomb Palace

BERLIN, Sept. 14—(Saturday)—(AP)—An authorized spokesman said today that German bombs dropped "in the vicinity of Buckingham palace" yesterday were aimed at oil storage tanks.

Another German squadron, the spokesman said, bombed Erith on the railway between London and Gravesend on the Thames estuary, attempting to hit pulp and paper mills. One German plans was reported missing.

Both Explosive and Fire Bombs Fall over Wide Section of Capital City

Two Salvos of Bombs Dropped in South London, but Principal Violence Is in Center of Capital; Buckingham Palace and Downing Street Damaged in Seventh Consecutive Attack by Nazis

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 14 (Saturday) — German bombers, after damaging Buckingham palace and other symbols of empire in daylight assault yesterday, returned to the attack on London early today and the city's vast batteries of anti-aircraft flung aloft a mighty barrage of steel.

It was the end of a full week of nightly raids of great dimensions.

The Nazis struck under the yellow light of a harvest moon at 9 p. m. last night (3 p. m. EST), and the reinforced defensive artillery went into action almost at once.

The explosions of anti-aircraft shells raised a long, reddish ribbon across the face of the city. In one area, high explosive and incendiary bombs began to drop. In that same area, the anti-aircraft was most active.

A tremendous explosion was heard from another section. Bombs were dropping more and more frequently and over wider areas.

Rooftops Splattered

The guns in central London sent long rolling crashes of sound into the sky. The splinters of shells slapped upon the city's rooftops and smashed skylights.

Shortly before midnight, a single raider was heard to crash in the south, with shell exploded on its tail. Then there was a lull.

Incendiary bombs fell on a house in a southwest area square. Bus drivers and conductors helped extinguish them.

High explosives hit a building in the southwest area and the walls of a nearby block of apartments were damaged.

The British press association reported that a bomb fell through two floors of a house in the same district, killing a woman seated in a chair and the cat she had in her lap.

South London Bombed

A shower of incendiary bombs fell on the fringe of central London. Fire apparatus immediately was heard dashing through the streets.

Two heavy salvos of bombs were dropped in South London.

Nowhere was the action so violent as in the center of the city. Both explosive and fire bombs came hurtling down.

Shell splinters from the defenders' fire drummed loudly upon the rooftops.

The day's attack was centered upon the greatest symbols of the empire.

Buckingham palace was hit by explosive bombs; Downing street, the home of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, and the length of Whitehall, the avenue of the kingdom's government, by fire bombs.

King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, themselves, were in the palace but escaped injury when five bombs fell.

Sirens sounded the seventh successive night alarm of the German air onslaught at 9 p. m. tonight (8 p. m., E.S.T.). It was the day's fourth alarm.

Attack Downing Street

Authorities disclosed tonight that an incendiary bomb—quickly smothered—had hit the House of Lords, noble Chamber of Parliament, in the south wing of the Houses of Parliament. They did not say exactly when this happened. But today, fire bombs were dropped on Downing street, where Prime Minister Winston Churchill lives, and elsewhere in the Whitehall area, where almost all of the government's business is transacted.

They nicked a wing of the admiralty from which the operations of the world's famous square, and very near to the Victoria memorial post in front of Buckingham palace, and in more humble quarters about the city.

The only destruction of consequence to these properties of empire was to the palace. The palace, home of England's monarchs for a hundred years, was hit by five bombs. Its chapel, where many of the great events of a royal family's life have been sealed by the ritual of the church, was smashed. Incendiary bombs streaked down upon the grounds. A water main was burst; hundreds of windows were smashed.

King and Queen Safe

King George and Queen Elizabeth were in an air raid shelter in the palace during the bombing. The Princesses Margaret Rose and Elizabeth were elsewhere. Three palace employes were injured.

The government flatly accused the Nazis of "deliberate" attacks on "conspicuous buildings irrespective of their nature."

The raiders struck the city before tea-time. For the most part they operated in small groups, high in the gray clouds. Two or three of them would make a sudden rendevous over a target, let go their bombs and roar upward at once. Their planes were half hidden in a gray camouflage coat almost the color of the dreary sky. Some of them were declared, too, to be using a new sort of incendiary machine-gun bullet which pierced and then burst a split second later.

Summary of War News

By The Associated Press

German bombs blasted the homes of king and pauper alike yesterday (Friday) in the greatest daylight pounding yet of historic London—and a Nazi raider said: "remember, this is only the beginning."

King George VI and his Scottish queen were uninjured after spending harrowing hours in a subterranean air raid vault under Buckingham Palace as five heavy bombs crashed on and near the royal residence. The 237-year old palace shuddered, parts of it crumpled, and great craters were ripped on its inner quadrangle and the roadway entrance.

Other bombs struck in narrow Downing street where Prime Minister Churchill lives and nicked a corner of the admiralty under the shadow of the great statute column of Admiral Nelson in Trafalgar square. Fire bombs sprayed all over Whitehall, the famous avenue fronting most government buildings, and the British disclosed also that an incendiary bomb recently struck the ancient House of Lords in the massive Parliament area on the banks of the Thames at Westminster bridge. The flames were extinguished quickly.

King George upon emerging to survey the havoc dealt his palace said:

Calls Germans Barbarians

"Like so many other people, we now have had a personal experience of German barbarity which only strengthens the resolution of all of us to fight through to final victory."

Then, with the queen, he left for another tour of London's bombed slums.

Casualties and huge property damage steadily mounted in London under the unrelenting fury of mass Nazi raids.

A revised toll showed that since Saturday 1,245 Britons have been killed and 4,810 injured not counting Thursday's and yesterday's violent assaults.

Three alarms kept London's millions in air raid shelters most of

American Says Germans Have Made Attempts To Cross English Channel

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Sept. 13. (AP)—An American surgeon coming home after spending nearly a quarter-century in France said today that the Germans already had made several unsuccessful attempts to invade England from the shores of conquered France.

Basing his statement on personal observation and information from "many French sources," Dr. Charles F. Bove, 52, head surgeon of the American hospital in Paris, declared on his arrival from Lisbon on the American export liner Exambion that "the Germans have tried the invasion several times at different points and each time they failed."

He reported having seen "hundreds of German bodies in the waters near Cherbourg (France)."

The Germans, he said, were constantly practicing for invasion all along the French coast—the practice including maneuvers in which Nazi soldiers in full uniform jumped from vessels and swam long distances with all their equipment.

Other Passengers Silent

Other passengers would not comment on the reported invasion attempts, but Dr. Bove's statement bore out similar reports received

He reserved four rooms for himself on the main floor, after being greeted by local officials at the railroad station.

Carol will remain here several days before continuing to his Portuguese exile, it was said.

Elmer Maxwell Succeeds Carl as State Penal Farm Superintendent

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Willis R. Jones, board of correction chairman, today announced appointment of Elmer St. Clair Maxwell of Frederick as superintendent of the Maryland state penal farm at Hagerstown succeeding Elmer B. Carl, effective Oct. 15.

Maxwell has been city engineer at Frederick since Jan. 1, 1927.

Jones said the penal farm superintendent "serves at the pleasure of the board," and Maxwell's appointment "meets an urgent need of the department for the full-time service of a capable engineer."

The position pays $5,000 annually, plus maintenance.

Jones asserted there was "no politics" in the appointment. He said he believed Maxwell was a Democrat, "but not an active Democrat," and had served through both Democratic and Republican administrations as Frederick city engineer and as assistant harbor engineer of Baltimore City from 1918 to 1924.

The penal farm houses about 400 inmates and has a personnel of about 75, Jones said. A building program "ultimately costing about $2,000,000" is under way to enlarge

"Teeth" Put Back In Industry Part Of Conscription

Senate Forces Conferees To Restore Original House Clause

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — Angry contentions in the Senate that a clause calling for the commandeering of "non-cooperative industry" was weak and unenforceable prompted a Senate-House conference committee tonight to insert in the peace-time conscription bill a section described as having "more teeth in it."

The Senate had bucked at accepting the language originally laid before it by the conference committee and, by a vote of 37 to 33, had sent the whole bill back to conference with instructions too insert a more iron-bound provision.

The conference committee, acting swiftly, then threw out the criticized passage and approved one which the bill contained when it originally passed the House.

It was too late, however, to obtain final action on the bill, which makes the nation's manpower, from twenty-one to thirty-five years old, inclusive, liable for one year's military service. Both Senate and House had recessed until tomorrow.

Jail for Violators

The language inserted tonight provides that if a manufacturer refuses to accept government orders or give priority to them, the government shall take over the plant and operate it on a "fair and just" rental basis. Anyone failing to comply with the section could be sent to prison for three years.

The language to which the Senate objected provided that industrial units could be commandeered only if the "public necessity" for such action was "immediate," the emergency in the public service imperative and such as "would not admit of resort to any other source of supply."

When the committee's "report"—a compromise version of the two differing bills passed by the House and Senate—was presented to the Senate for action, this was the only issue raised.

Other Questions Forgotten

Forgotten were the other controversial questions—such as the report's provision that men from twenty-one to thirty-five, inclusive, should be subject to the draft, instead of the twenty-one-through-thirty age limit of the Senate, and the conference committee's action in tossing out the Fish amendment calling for a sixty-day trial of voluntary enlistment.

For five hours, critics of the controversial provision hit it, hard and hotly, in Senate debate. Senator Neely (D-WVa) brought the issue to a head with a motion that the bill be sent back to conference. In vain, Senator Barkley, majority leader, pleaded that to do so would make for serious delays, that the proposal was utterly unnecessary.

"No corporation," said Neely, "is going to refuse to make munitions while your boy and my boy are shedding their blood for their country, when it (its head) knows that his refusal will cause him to spend three years in the penitentiary."

Summary

the day and the fourth alarm at nightfall started the seventh straight all-night attack. Each time the British tossed a furious anti-aircraft barrage high over London.

Five Unexploded Bombs

Five unexploded bombs now encircle St. Paul's Cathedral atop Ludgate hill. Police roped off the area and kept a 'death watch' on the great landmark, and suicide squads worked desperately to reinforce the cathedral to withstand the shock of expected explosions.

The British said the attack on Buckingham palace was deliberate. A lone raider glided motorless down over the palace and dropped his cargo. The only casualties were three palace plumbers who were injured slightly while working in the south wing.

In Berlin, Hans Rechenberg, former economics ministry official who has participated in the Nazi raids, said London was a "scene of horror and chaos."

Amid a recital of Nazi airmen's glee in raining destruction on the British empire's heart he added: "and remember, this is only the beginning."

Great fires are raging from the London dock area clear down the Thames river to the sea, the Germans said. They also related other attacks on many British port cities such as Liverpool, Brighton, Bristol and Cardiff.

The British air ministry reported widespread attacks in Germany and said Le Havre on the French coast also was attacked. The Germans were reported concentrating invasion forces there and at other points on the continent from Norway to southern France.

Dr. Charles F. Bove, head surgeon of the American hospital in Paris, upon his arrival at Jersey City, N. J., aboard the American Export liner Excambion said yesterday that the Germans already have attempted to invade England several times and failed. The Germans are "practicing" for other attempts, he said.

A British military source in London however said there has been "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form." And added "we would be only too glad to announce it if there had been an attempt and we had repulsed it."

HOME WRECKED BY POWDER PLANT BLAST

When a series of heavy explosions literally blew the Hercules Powder Company plant at Kenvil, N. J., off the map, the blast smashed windows and damaged nearby homes. Above is the home of B. A. McLaughlin, located some distance away from the plant, showing the damage done by the blast. A neighbor, Ann Chipko, surveys the room.

Both Explosive

nesses agreed that as the ship was over the center of the palace the motor was cut and the bombs launched in a long, quick and almost noiseless dive.

In a nearby street, three bombs pounded to earth amid hundreds of people who had no time to run to cover. There were casualties—none knew just how many.

The Royal Air Force, desperately busy here at home in almost endless defense of the capital, went on with its counter-offensive against German invasion, and was declared by the air ministry to have struck great, punishing blows at the "key distribution centers" through which the Nazis would have to move men and materials for the attempt to cross the channel.

It was for London the most violent series of daylight attacks yet made. The Nazis used fire bombs, screaming bombs, and there was an undetermined — but long — list of casualties.

Buildings Hit Squarely

Two London firms—a bakery and laundry—were hit squarely, but all of the several hundred employes escaped without serious injury.

Other sections of England, including the industrial midlands, likewise were under attack. Belfast reported the Nazi fire bombs had been dropped on northern Ireland.

Aside from the damage wrought here, official and semi-official disclosures added many other ancient landmarks to the list of those hit in other raids.

Many Churches Hit

These included Somerset house on the strange where ancient records have lain thick and undisturbed for many a century; the Piccadilly hotel; Berkeley square; the world famous bridle path of Rotten Row; the churches of St. Magnus the Martyr; St. Swithin's, St. Mary-At-Hill, St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, St. Mary Woolnoth, St. Clement's, St. Augustine's, St. Giles Cripplegate, Our Lady of Victory and a Roman Catholic church in the west end.

On the other hand these, said the air ministry, were the German objectives bombed by the RAF last night and early today:

Le Havre, France, where the Nazis were reported concentrating forces for the invasion, a German tanker and supply ship bombed; docks, shipping and oil reservoirs at Emden; docks at Flushing, Holland, where fires and explosions resulted; "key distribution centers" at Osnabruck, Hamm, Schwerte, Ehrang and Brussels; several German airdromes and the Norderney seaplane base.

Hit, in these key centers, said the ministry, was a network of railway junctions and freight yards in western Germany "which must play an important part in any attempted invasion of Britain."

In London tonight, the authorities not only were on the alert against falling bombs, but against those that had landed unexploded. Five of these, it was disclosed, now lie in the vicinity of St. Paul's cathedral. The church and nearby area were under close guard.

Mrs. Roosevelt Sorry She Underpaid Porter

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is grieved because a Cincinnati red-cap didn't tell her she'd underpaid him by twenty cents through an oversight.

In her column, "My Day," syndicated by United Features, she wrote today:

"It seems that I have to read the papers to find out about my shortcomings! I must say, many as they are, novel ones creep up on me all the time. Yesterday I found a little item announcing that in Cincinnati, at an interstate Commerce Commission hearing, a porter testified that I had paid him fifty cents for a seventy-cent service and that he had not told me of my mistake.

"What grieves me is that he did not tell me, for I have always doubted whether the new rule of ten cents a bag gave the porters sufficient pay. Therefore I thought that I had always paid not only my ten cents a bag, but a tip in addition."

The Cincinnati porter, Clinton McDuffy, testified in a hearing to determine whether the method of paying ten cents a parcel for luggage handling is contrary to the Interstate Commerce laws.

Willkie Promises More Jobs, Higher Wages for Labor

Republican Candidate Also Promises to Jail Political Bosses

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie carried his presidential campaign into the industrial sectors of this Democratic controlled city today, promising his audiences that if he were elected "there will be more and more jobs, and, as the years go on, higher and higher wages."

The Republican nominee told crowds at the stockyards and in nearby Civero that "if you elect me president I shall not promise you the moon but I shall promise you jobs in honest work, honest industry."

Referring to Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Pat Nash, leaders of the local Democratic organization, Willkie shouted to his listeners in the stockyards:

"I say to you, Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash that when I am president there will be no income tax settlements."

"A lot of people better do all they can to beat me, because the penitentiary doors are going to open for some of them."

Jail for Bosses

Willkie told a second stockyard crowd a few minutes later that if he were elected "a lot of political bosses will be in Joliet or Leavenworth or some place where they won't bother you any more."

When Willkie said in a third short speech that he intended "to build things" if he were elected a reckler shouted "like you built Commonwealth and Southern." (The utility company which the nominee formerly headed.)

Turning, Willkie demanded "who is the fellow?" Someone shouted, "me," and the candidate asserted: "It sounded like Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash. If I am elected president you won't hear of them much more."

Roosevelt's Name Booed

Willkie contended that President Roosevelt "has promised labor everything except jobs." One of the stockyards crowd booed when Willkie mentioned the president's name.

"The failure of the last seven years has been a failure to put people to work," Willkie asserted. "No talk about the European situation can cover it up.

"The only jobs being produced today are being produced by Hitler."

Several times Willkie was applauded when he asserted that "if I am president I will never send an American boy into the shambles of any European war."

Roosevelt Praises O'Conor for Reading Of Bankhead Speech

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13. (AP)—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor today received a letter from President Roosevelt congratulating him upon his delivery of Speaker William B. Bankhead's speech at the Democratic rally in Baltimore Wednesday night. Bankhead, taken ill, was unable to speak.

The president's letter said "I want to thank you for the excellent service you rendered last evening in reading Speaker Bankhead's address when the speaker was unfortunately taken with a sudden illness. He had prepared a splendid address and your fine reading preserved its force. It came over the air with great clearness, owing to your excellent delivery."

Air Transport Lands After Motor Burns

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13. (AP)—While ambulances and fire engines stood by, an American airlines transport carrying thirteen persons made an emergency landing at Bowman field airport tonight after one of its two motors caught fire in midair.

recently in New York in letters from two French officials.

These letters told of a German attempt to land troops on the west coast of England that proved "nothing short of suicide."

The Excambion, which carried 173 passengers including 83 Americans, came by way of Bermuda, where British censors confiscated 420 bags of mail and placed aboard for return to New York 560 sacks previously taken from other ships.

350 Americans in Paris

Dr. Bove said that when he left Paris there were 350 Americans in and around the city, "most of them hoping the United States would enter the war."

Declaring the Germans were taking "everything they could" out of France he said they "relieved" him of $100,000 in personal property, his automobile and his horse.

He reported "at least 300,000 German women and children in Paris whom he said were being fed by the French. General feeling in France was that Germany would occupy the entire French nation, he added.

No Invasion Attempt, British Officer Says

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—A British military source said tonight there has been "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form."

Commenting on a statement in Jersey City, N. J., by Dr. Charles F. Bove, former Paris surgeon, that the Germans had tried to invade Britain several times and failed, this source added:

"We would be only too glad to announce it if there had been an attempt and we had repulsed it."

Referring to Dr. Bove's statement that he had seen "hundreds of German bodies in the waters near Cherbourg (France)," this military source said it was possible that a German transport ship had been bombed or torpedoed.

20,000 Seats Unsafe In Baltimore Stadium

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—About 20,000 seats in Baltimore's municipal stadium — where the Navy-Notre Dame football game is scheduled Nov. 9—were declared unsafe and condemned by the municipal bureau of buildings, it was learned today.

Buildings Engineer J. A. Clarke recommended that 250 rows of seats in the "X" sections forming the upper edge of half the stadium "horseshoe" be rebuilt before the sections are used.

C. Markland Kelly, park board member, said that in view of advance ticket sales for the Navy-Notre Dame game, the board had declared the condemnation was an "emergency", and the board of estimates would be asked to approve reconstruction Tuesday.

Clarke said investigation showed the framing for the "X" sections was unsafe. A high school game (Polytechnic Institute vs. Southern) was scheduled in the stadium next Friday.

Roosevelt Welcomes French Ambassador

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—President Roosevelt welcomed the new ambassador of "the republic of France" today with an expression of sympathy for Frenchmen but without any reference to the Vichy government.

The omission was considered significant in diplomatic quarters where it was reported the administration still was uncertain of the attitude to adopt toward the Petain regime.

As the new ambassador, Henry Haye, formally took up his duties here, it was reported his first objective was to obtain supplies of condensed milk for French babies and medicine for use in the unoccupied part of the country.

Well informed sources said the ambassador would not presently press for food supplies for the general French population, which British authorities have announced they will not allow through the blockade.

Italy Attacking British Troops At Three Points

Air Offensive Launched against Egypt, Sudan and Kenya

By The Associated Press

ROME, Sept. 13 — Italy has opened an almost continuous air offensive on British troop centers in Egypt, the Sudan and Kenya, the high command reported today, apparently as the essential preliminary to a big land and naval attack against the heart of British Africa.

Fascist authorities did not deny rumors that Italian troops were on the march in large numbers, but indicated that none of them had yet crossed the Libyan frontier into Egypt or the Ethiopian frontier into the Sudan.

Time of Drive Mystery

The aerial campaign, it was made clear, was timed to coincide with the mighty German effort to break Britain at home from the skies.

When Marshal Rodolfo Graziani will order his tanks and motorized units forward to follow up the air attacks still was not known.

"The attack will come," said the newspaper Corriere Della Sera, "at the hour fixed by our command."

Meanwhile, Italian dispatches reported that by day and by night British encampments, marching columns, ports and railway lines are being destroyed and disrupted by tons of falling explosives.

British Troops Bombed

British troops reported concentrated in entrenched camps and fortifications along the coast of Egypt — an independent kingdom but Britain's close ally and the custodian of her vital Suez Canal—are being heavily bombed and machine-gunned, Fascist sources declared.

A special communique today claimed these as the latest in a series of successes against the British:

British motorized columns and other objectives bombed on the Egyptian coast; a gasoline storage tank set afire and trucks, armored cars and tanks put out of action by repeated hits; British positions in the Sudan hit and a motorized column in Kenya bombed.

In this developing war of the desert the maintenance of uninterrupted supply lines and supply dumps is one of the most vital of all military necessities.

Italians Massing Troops on Border

CAIRO, Sept. 13 (AP) — Marshal Rodolfo Grazian, Italian commander in Libya, opposite western Egypt, continued today to shunk thousands of troops up to that frontier for what the British considered an imminent offensive aimed at smashing 400 miles across Egyptian deserts to the Suez Canal.

Aerial scouts returning from flights over Libya estimated that Fascist forces, mostly concentrated at Bardia, thirty miles from the border, now number over 260,000.

Artillery in Action

Sporadic artillery fire rumbled along the border between advance posts as the British and Egyptian armies quietly completed preparations to meet any Italian thrust. Britain recently landed thousands of soldiers to reinforce the 60,000 desert troops in Egypt.

Egypt, with a British trained army of about 20,000, is ready to declare war on Italy only if her country is attacked.

There was a possibility the British might strike first. Military observers expected any Italian offensive, however, to be timed with the projected Nazi invasion of England.

(In Rome Italian authorities said Fascist pilots were dealing heavy blows to British posts. Such raids were considered natural preliminaries to a ground offensive).

Italians On Move

In northern Kenya, 2,000 miles south of the potential Egyptian battleground, Italian forces from southern Ethiopia already were on the move on a 200-mile front in an apparent thrust toward British Kenya's capital, Nairobi. British forces fighting a delaying action inflicted heavy losses on the Italians, the British said. In some places the Italians were 120 miles deep into Kenya, but still 300 miles from Nairobi.

A British communique issued in Nairobi said "one of our detachments again attacking enemy successfully at Wal Quaris and drove them from their positions inflicting casualties and capturing prisoners. Our casualties were again slight."

Frostburg Is Beaten By Birmingham 20 to 3

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 13 (AP) — Birmingham's surprising Acipco entry in the National Amateur Baseball tournament boomed into the final round tonight with a 20-3 victory over Frostburg, Md.

Acipco opens a three-game series for the title tomorrow with Pittsburgh, early tournament favorite. Each team lost one in the two-and-out tourney.

Nasabe Habshey struck out 16 men and permitted five hits tonight while Acipco was pounding five Frostburg hurlers for 24 hits.

Acipco began pounding Fleming, the losing pitcher, in the opening frame and warmed to the job in the third against his relief, pushing over six runs. From then on it was a merciless hitting barrage.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

As the storm over London reaches a new crescendo, there are widely scattered war developments elsewhere to strengthen Britain's stubborn confidence that time is her ally and that victory in the present crisis means final victory.

Centering on the Mediterranean, they lend support to the idea stressed by British leaders that a strong element of desperation compels the preparations of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini to strike quickly for a double decision.

Gibraltar reports cryptically that French warships have just headed westward into the Atlantic. They sailed past the silent guns of the fortress as Britain's Allies or there would have been no word of their movement.

French Planes at Gibraltar

Earlier, the arrival at Gibraltar of thirty or more warplanes from French Morocco was noted from Spain.

In Washington, Axis uneasiness over the Mediterranean is hinted by authoritative information that the Vichy government has rejected a demand that some 200,000 French empire troops in North Africa be disarmed lest they imperial Italy. It was France's collapse at home that made feasible an Italian drive to conquer Egypt—which Il Duce now threatens—by releasing troops from the western frontiers of Libya.

From Greece come rumors that reinforced British naval forces have thrown a blockade around Italy's strategic Dodecanese islands in the eastern Mediterranean, which already have been shelled and bombed.

Rome acknowledged the likelihood that the acquisition of fifty American destroyers will enable the foe to add further to the sea forces determined to shatter Mussolini's dream of empire.

Meanwhile, though Marshal Graziani appears to have a margin of two to one or more for an Italian land and air drive to cut the British empire lifeline at Suez, British commanders insist with a show of confidence over the utlimate outcome that Italy is faced at the moment with an uncomfortable now-or-never dilemma.

With the two main fascist armies isolated by sea from home supply bases and by geography from each others, the Italian commanders can not afford to dissipiate munitions and equipment in inconclusive fighting, it is contended from Cairo.

All war reports must be scanned with skepticism, but these, against the background of Italy's vulnerability, have the appearance of significant straws in the wind.

Il Duce, like his Axis partner, is under urgent pressure from time and events to strike, or at least to feint in force, in the hope that a Nazi victory on the war's main front may save Italy from heavy losses.

Both he and the Nazi fuehrer are in a measure helpless victims of forces they unlossed. Certainly, once an invasion of England is launched there can be no turning back for Hitler without disaster.

As the crisis nears in the Mediterranean as at home, Britons have been warned to expect reverses such as the loss of Somaliland but they have Prime Minister Churchill's assurance that there will be no surrender on either front.

41 Known Dead

"You needn't come to work today. Go back home." The gatekeeper told him and the man turned away.

But at Dover General hospital the scene was nearly unchanged from that of yesterday when the disaster struck. Doctors and nurses still worked at top-speed to save the eighty-five burned and mangled men there.

Some small reason to be thankful was furnished by William C. Hunt, in charge of the company's explosives department. He disclosed that 6,000 pounds of nitroglycerine, buried near one of the buildings that blew up, had not been detonated.

"Thank God it didn't," Hunt said, "I wouldn't want to be anywhere nearby if it were only 100 pounds."

Plant Area a Shamble

The area surrounding the plant was a shambles. Trees were denuded of limbs, bark and foliage. Railroad tracks were torn loose from ties. Corrugated steel roofing was blasted to shreds and power house pipes were torn loose from boilers.

In the center of the blasted area, a fifty-foot steel skeleton-remnant of what had been a rectifying tower—sagged and swayed. Over all was the odor of alcohol used in processing power.

A company official took newsmen on a tour of the plant—which 24 hours before had been busy every minute of the day turning out munitions for the nation's defense program.

The trip began in automobiles over a crater-pocked road. These were abandoned after half a mile and the group proceeded on foot.

"Now the road is gone," the official said, "we'll have to walk."

While the group stopped to examine a pile of bricks which had been the solvent recovery building where the blasts began, a breathless messenger ran up and panted:

"Don't come any further this way. It may go up. That still pot over there."

Starnes Demands Communist Party Be "Outlawed"

Congress Calls on Federal and State Governments for Action

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — Representative Starnes (D-Ala), Dies committee member, called on the federal and state governments today to "outlaw" the Communist party.

He told the House that the party had perpetrated "gigantic fraud" and summarized a committee survey of the party's election petitions in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New Jersey and Ohio.

The committee sent hundreds of letters to persons whose names appeared on the Pennsylvania petition, Starnes said, and replies showed:

1—That thousands had never actually signed the petition.

2—That thousands said the petition was misrepresented to them as relating to better housing, playgrounds, lowering of gas rates and "scores of other causes."

Starnes told the house:

Called Agent of Moscow

"The Communist party is not a bona fide political party but an agent of Moscow financed and controlled by the foreign dictator, Stalin.

"Therefore, I submit that the United States government and that the respective state governments should act immediately to outlaw the Communist party and brand it for what it is—a foreign conspiracy seeking to overthrow our form of government."

Starnes said of West Virginia:

"In the state of West Virginia, as a result of our exposure and of the efforts of the American Legion, Oscar Wheler, the Communist party's gubernatorial candidate, was sentenced to from six to fifteen years in the penitentiary for fraud in failing to reveal the identity of the political party for which he was collecting signatures on the nominating petitions.

Six Others Indicted

"Six others were indicted with wheeler on the same charge. One hundred and fifty were indicted for voting in a primary after signing the Communist party petition. The upshot in West Virginia has been that the Supreme Court of that state has ruled the Communist party off the ballot.

"In Maryland, the Communist party had worked mostly among the negro population. Our committee received hundreds of letters from these negro people denying that they had signed the petitions, or, in cases where they had signed, advising that they had done so on the representation that it was for better housing, the abolition of lynching, etc. The same kind of fraud and misrepresentation appeared in Maryland as in the other states, and the matter is now being presented to the grand jury in Baltimore."

Teacher Must Have Pupils If She Draws Pay for Services

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 13 (AP) —For three months a young woman kept a rural school open and received pay under her contract though no students appeared.

Then she decided to attend college and inquired of Arkansas' legal department if her pay would continue provided she held herself in readiness to return if any students showed up.

Opinion by Assistant Attorney General J. F. Koone:

1. It is bad policy to conduct a student-less school.

2. The teacher could not be paid unless she continued to present herself at the school daily to teach if pupils appear.

Barlow To "Put Heat" On Tax Collectors

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Lester P. Barlow, Baltimore inventor awarded a patent claim of $592,719 by the government, is "out to put the heat on the tax collectors."

Barlow declared he would "rock the capital" before paying an estimated $412,817 in income taxes on the money awarded him after a nineteen-year wait.

"Before I'm finished, I'll really get some goats," he said. The inventor's liquid oxygen-carbon bomb failed to kill any goats in an official test at Aberdeen recently.

"I'll fight the taxes with every legal means. I don't want anything for Barlow. I'm just out to put the heat on the tax collectors. I'll show 'em they can't rob honest men.

"I'll admit I've got the law against me. I know most people would just take it on the chin without fighting. But I'm going to carry the fight to Congress. The law is wrong and I aim to get the law changed."

Court Upholds Section Of Income Tax Law

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Circuit Court Judge Ridgely P. Melvin upheld the constitutionality of the fiduciary estates section of the state income-tax law today.

While holding that income received from a non-resident trust estate is taxable as investment paid over by the trustee to the Maryland beneficiary was taxable.

Mrs. Clara G. Williams, of Talbot county, brought suit under the declaratory judgment act against State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes to have the court rule on the validity and construction of the fiduciary estates section of the income-tax law.

Mrs. Williams's share of an estate administered in Pennsylvania was $4,170. The Pennsylvania trustee in 1939 paid her $3,573 and the remaining sum was deducted by the trustee for commission and for certain taxes paid in Pennsylvania.

O'Conor Must Appoint New Chief Judge of The Second Circuit

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13. (AP)—Governor O'Conor, it appeared today, has no alternative but to appoint as chief judge of the second judicial circuit a new man who automatically would become a member of the Court of Appeals.

The vacancy occurred with the recent death of Chief Judge W. Mason Shehan, of Easton, a member of the Applelate Court.

Three associate judges of the circuit, comprising Caroline, Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Cecil counties, were looked upon as possible candidates for the chief judgeship and membership of the Court of Appeals.

They are Judges J. Owen Knotts, of Denton; James F. Evans, of Elkton, and Thomas J. Keating.

Judge Knotts, however, recently announced he would not accept the position. There was serious doubt today among prominent lawyers that the governor could elevate either Judge Keating or Judge Evans to the position because of their age.

Lawyers asserted that the state constitution provides for the retirement of judges reaching seventy years of age.

Several years ago the attorney general's office handed down an opinion, they said, holding that judges appointed by the governor should be eligible to serve until the next general election. The opinion held, they continued, that the governor could not appoint a judge who would become seventy before the next general election.

O'Conor Praises Maryland Citizens

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP) — Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor said tonight that citizens who give the nation's "military forces complete cooperation and support in every way possible" are helping to make the state and country safe.

Speaking at a "stand by America" meeting, O'Conor said "no free people in the world have ever enjoyed uninterruptedly such complete freedom from duress of every kind as the people of our own state of Maryland. It was Maryland that first offered to the world the principles of true freedom and individual liberty."

"Teeth" Put Back In Industry Part Of Conscription

Senate Forces Conferees To Restore Original House Clause

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — Angry contentions in the Senate that a clause calling for the commandeering of "non-cooperative industry" was weak and unenforceable prompted a Senate-House conference committee tonight to insert in the peace-time conscription bill a section described as having "more teeth in it."

The Senate had bucked at accepting the language originally laid before it by the conference committee and, by a vote of 37 to 33, had sent the whole bill back to conference with instructions too insert a more iron-bound provision.

The conference committee, acting swiftly, then threw out the criticized passage and approved one which the bill contained when it originally passed the House.

It was too late, however, to obtain final action on the bill, which makes the nation's manpower, from twenty-one to thirty-five years old, inclusive, liable for one year's military service. Both Senate and House had recessed until tomorrow.

Jail for Violators

The language inserted tonight provides that if a manufacturer refuses to accept government orders or give priority to them, the government shall take over the plant and operate it on a "fair and just" rental basis. Anyone failing to comply with the section could be sent to prison for three years.

The language to which the Senate objected provided that industrial units could be commandeered only if the "public necessity" for such action was "immediate," the emergency in the public service imperative and such as "would not admit of resort to any other source of supply."

When the committee's "report"—a compromise version of the two differing bills passed by the House and Senate—was presented to the Senate for action, this was the only issue raised.

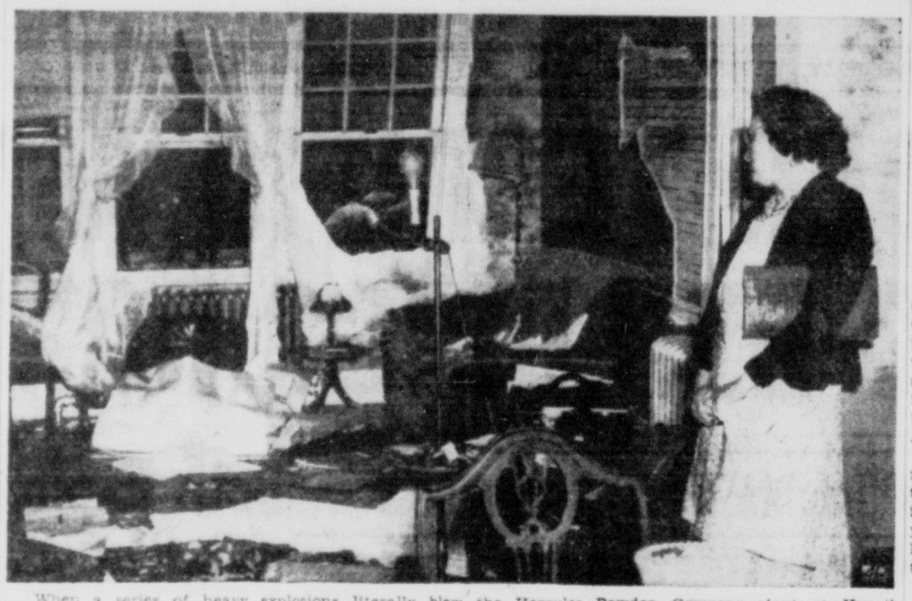

Other Questions Forgotten

Forgotten were the other controversial questions—such as the report's provision that men from twenty-one to thirty-five, inclusive, should be subject to the draft, instead of the twenty-one-through-thirty age limit of the Senate, and the conference committee's action in tossing out the Fish amendment calling for a sixty-day trial of voluntary enlistment.

For five hours, critics of the controversial provision hit it hard and hotly, in Senate debate. Senator Neely (D-WVa) brought the issue to a head with a motion that the bill be sent back to conference. In vain, Senator Barkley, majority leader, pleaded that to do so would make for serious delays, that the proposal was utterly unnecessary.

"No corporation," said Neely, "is going to refuse to make munitions while your boy and my boy are shedding their blood for their country, when it (its head) knows that his refusal will cause him to spend three years in the penitentiary."

HOME WRECKED BY POWDER PLANT BLAST

Both Explosive

nesses agreed that as the ship was over the center of the palace the motor was cut and the bombs launched in a long, quick and almost noiseless dive.

In a nearby street, three bombs pounded to earth amid hundreds of people who had no time to run to cover. There were casualties—none knew just how many.

The Royal Air Force, desperately busy here at home in almost endless defense of the capital, went on with its counter-offensive against German invasion, and was declared by the air ministry to have struck great, punishing blows at the "key distribution centers" through which the Nazis would have to move men and materials for the attempt to cross the channel.

It was for London the most violent series of daylight attacks yet made. The Nazis used fire bombs, screaming bombs, and there was an undetermined — but long — list of casualties.

Buildings Hit Squarely

Two London firms—a bakery and laundry—were hit squarely, but all of the several hundred employes escaped without serious injury.

Other sections of England, including the industrial midlands, likewise were under attack. Belfast reported the Nazi fire bombs had been dropped on northern Ireland.

Aside from the damage wrought here, official and semi-official dispatches added many other ancient landmarks to the list of those hit in other raids.

Many Churches Hit

These included Somerset house, on the strange where ancient records have lain thick and undisturbed for many a century; the Piccadilly hotel; Berkeley square, the world famous bridle path of Rotten Row; the churches of St. Magnus the Martyr; St. Swithin's, St. Mary-At-Hill, St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, St. Mary Woolnoth, St. Clement's, St. Augustine's, St. Giles Cripplegate, Our Lady of Victory and a Roman Catholic church in the west end.

On the other hand these, said the air ministry, were the German objectives bombed by the RAF last night and early today:

Le Havre, France, where the Nazis were reported concentrating forces for the invasion, a German tanker and supply ship bombed; docks, shipping and oil reservoirs at Emden; docks at Flushing, Holland, where fires and explosions resulted; "key distribution centers" at Osnabruck, Hamm, Schwerte, Ehrang and Brussels; several German airdromes and the Norderney seaplane base.

Hit, in these key centers, said the ministry, was a network of railway junctions and freight yards in western Germany "which must play an important part in any attempted invasion of Britain."

In London tonight the authorities not only were on the alert against falling bombs, but against those that had landed unexploded. Five of these, it was disclosed, now lie in the vicinity of St. Paul's cathedral. The church and nearby area were under close guard.

Summary

the day and the fourth alarm at nightfall started the seventh straight all-night attack. Each time the British tossed a furious anti-aircraft barrage high over London.

Five Unexploded Bombs

Five unexploded bombs now encircle St. Paul's Cathedral atop Ludgate hill. Police roped off the area and kept a "death watch" on the great landmark, and suicide squads worked desperately to reinforce the cathedral to withstand the shock of expected explosions.

The British said the attack on Buckingham palace was deliberate. A lone raider glided motorless down over the palace and dropped his cargo. The only casualties were three palace plumbers who were injured slightly while working in the south wing.

In Berlin, Hans Rechenberg, former economics ministry official who has participated in the Nazi raids, said London was a "scene of horror and chaos."

Amid a recital of Nazi airmen's glee in raining destruction on the British empire's heart he added: "and remember, this is only the beginning."

Great fires are raging from the London dock area clear down the Thames river to the sea, the Germans said. They also related other attacks on many British port cities such as Liverpool, Brighton, Bristol and Cardiff.

The British air ministry reported widespread attacks in Germany and said Le Havre on the French coast also was attacked. The Germans were reported concentrating invasion forces there and at other points on the continent from Norway to southern France.

Dr. Charles F. Bove, head surgeon of the American hospital in Paris, upon his arrival at Jersey City, N. J., aboard the American Export liner Excambion said yesterday that the Germans already have attempted to invade England several times and failed. The Germans are "practicing" for other attempts, he said.

A British military source in London however said there has been "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form." And added "we would be only too glad to announce it if there had been an attempt and we had repulsed it."

Mrs. Roosevelt Sorry She Underpaid Porter

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt is grieved because a Cincinnati red-cap didn't tell her she'd underpaid him by twenty cents through an oversight.

In her column, "My Day," syndicated by United Features, she wrote today:

"It seems that I have to read the papers to find out about my shortcomings! I must say, many as they are, novel ones creep up on me all the time. Yesterday I found a little item announcing that in Cincinnati, at an interstate Commerce Commission hearing, a porter testified that I had paid him fifty cents for a seventy-cent service and that he had not told me of my mistake.

"What grieves me is that he did not tell me, for I have always doubted whether the new rule of ten cents a bag gave the porters sufficient pay. Therefore I thought that I had always paid not only my ten cents a bag, but a tip in addition."

The Cincinnati porter, Clinton McDuffy, testified in a hearing to determine whether the method of paying ten cents a parcel for luggage handling is contrary to the Interstate Commerce laws.

Willkie Promises More Jobs, Higher Wages for Labor

Republican Candidate Also Promises to Jail Political Bosses

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie carried his presidential campaign into the industrial sectors of this Democratic controlled city today, promising his audiences that if he were elected "there will be more and more jobs, and, as the years go on, higher and higher wages."

The Republican nominee told crowds at the stockyards and in nearby Clvero that "if you elect me president I shall not promise you the moon but I shall promise you jobs in honest work, honest industry."

Referring to Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Pat Nash, leaders of the local Democratic organization, Willkie shouted to his listeners in the stockyards:

"I say to you, Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash that when I am president there will be no income tax settlements."

"A lot of people better do all they can to beat me, because the penitentiary doors are going to open for some of them."

Jail for Bosses

Willkie told a second stockyard crowd a few minutes later that if he were elected "a lot of political bosses will be in Joliet or Leavenworth or some place where they won't bother you any more."

When Willkie said in a third short speech that he intended "to build things" if he were elected a reckler shouted "like you built Commonwealth and Southern." (The utility company which the nominee formerly headed.)

Turning, Willkie demanded "who is the fellow?" Someone shouted, "me," and the candidate asserted: "It sounded like Mayor Kelly and Pat Nash. If I am elected president you won't hear of them much more."

Roosevelt's Name Booed

Willkie contended that President Roosevelt "has promised labor everything except jobs." One of the stockyards crowd booed when Willkie mentioned the president's name.

"The failure of the last seven years has been a failure to put people to work," Willkie asserted. "No talk about the European situation can cover it up.

"The only jobs being produced today are being produced by Hitler."

Several times Willkie was applauded when he asserted that "if I am president I will never send an American boy into the shambles of any European war."

Roosevelt Praises O'Conor for Reading Of Bankhead Speech

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13. (AP)—Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor today received a letter from President Roosevelt congratulating him upon his delivery of Speaker William B. Bankhead's speech at the Democratic rally in Baltimore Wednesday night. Bankhead, taken ill, was unable to speak.

The president's letter said "I want to thank you for the excellent service you rendered last evening in reading Speaker Bankhead's address when the speaker was unfortunately taken with a sudden illness. He had prepared a splendid address and your fine reading preserved its force. It came over the air with great clearness, owing to your excellent delivery."

Air Transport Lands After Motor Burns

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 13. (AP)—While ambulances and fire engines stood by, an American airlines transport carrying thirteen persons, made an emergency landing at Bowman field airport tonight after one of its two motors caught fire in midair.

recently in New York in letters from two French officials.

These letters told of a German attempt to land troops on the west coast of England that proved "nothing short of suicide."

The Excambion, which carried 173 passengers including 83 Americans, came by way of Bermuda, where British censors confiscated 420 bags of mail and placed aboard for return to New York 560 sacks previously taken from other ships.

350 Americans in Paris

Dr. Bove said that when he left Paris there were 350 Americans in and around the city, "most of them hoping the United States would enter the war."

Declaring the Germans were taking "everything they could" out of France he said they "relieved" him of $100,000 in personal property, his automobile and his horse.

He reported "at least 300,000 German women and children in Paris whom he said were being fed by the French. General feeling in France was that Germany would occupy the entire French nation, he added.

No Invasion Attempt, British Officer Says

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—A British military source said tonight there has been "absolutely no attempt at invasion in any size, shape or form."

Commenting on a statement in Jersey City, N. J., by Dr. Charles F. Bove, former Paris surgeon, that the Germans had tried to invade Britain several times and failed, this source added:

"We would be only too glad to announce it if there had been an attempt and we had repulsed it."

Referring to Dr. Bove's statement that he had seen "hundreds of German bodies in the waters near Cherbourg (France)," this military source said it was possible that a German transport ship had been bombed or torpedoed.

20,000 Seats Unsafe In Baltimore Stadium

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—About 20,000 seats in Baltimore's municipal stadium — where the Navy-Notre Dame football game is scheduled Nov. 9—were declared unsafe and condemned by the municipal bureau of buildings, it was learned today.

Buildings Engineer J. A. Clarke recommended that 250 rows of seats in the "X" sections forming the upper edge of half the stadium "horseshoe" be rebuilt before the sections are used.

C. Markland Kelly, park board member, said that in view of advance ticket sales for the Navy-Notre Dame game, the board had declared the condemnation was an "emergency", and the board of estimates would be asked to approve reconstruction Tuesday.

Clarke said investigation showed the framing for the "X" sections was unsafe. A high school game (Polytechnic Institute vs. Southern) was scheduled in the stadium next Friday.

Roosevelt Welcomes French Ambassador

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—President Roosevelt welcomed the new ambassador of "the republic of France" today with an expression of sympathy for Frenchmen but without any reference to the Vichy government.

The omission was considered significant in diplomatic quarters where it was reported the administration still was uncertain of the attitude to adopt toward the Petain regime.

As the new ambassador, Henry Haye, formally took up his duties here, it was reported his first objective was to obtain supplies of condensed milk for French babies and medicine for use in the unoccupied part of the country.

Well informed sources said the ambassador would not presently press for food supplies for the general French population, which British euthorities have announced they will not allow through the blockade.

Italy Attacking British Troops At Three Points

Air Offensive Launched against Egypt, Sudan and Kenya

By The Associated Press

ROME, Sept. 13 — Italy has opened an almost continuous air offensive on British troop centers in Egypt, the Sudan and Kenya, the high command reported today, apparently as the essential preliminary to a big land and naval attack against the heart of British Africa.

Fascist authorities did not deny rumors that Italian troops were on the march in large numbers, but indicated that none of them had yet crossed the Libyan frontier into Egypt or the Ethiopian frontier into the Sudan.

Time of Drive Mystery

The aerial campaign, it was made clear, was timed to coincide with the mighty German effort to break Britain at home from the skies.

When Marshal Rodolfo Graziani will order his tanks and motorized units forward to follow up the air attacks still was not known.

"The attack will come," said the newspaper Corriere Della Sera, "at the hour fixed by our command."

Meanwhile, Italian dispatches reported that by day and by night British encampments, marching columns, ports and railway lines are being destroyed and disrupted by tons of falling explosives.

British Troops Bombed

British troops reported concentrated in entrenched camps and fortifications along the coast of Egypt — an independent kingdom but Britain's close ally and the custodian of her vital Suez Canal—are being heavily bombed and machine-gunned, Fascist sources declared.

A special communique today claimed these as the latest in a series of successes against the British:

British motorized columns and other objectives bombed on the Egyptian coast; a gasoline storage tank set afire and trucks, armored cars and tanks put out of action by repeated hits; British positions in the Sudan hit and a motorized column in Kenya bombed.

In this developing war of the desert the maintenance of uninterrupted supply lines and supply dumps is one of the most vital of all military necessities.

Italians Massing Troops on Border

CAIRO, Sept. 13 (AP) — Marshal Rodolfo Grazian, Italian commander in Libya, opposite western Egypt, continued today to shunk thousands of troops up to that frontier for what the British considered an imminent offensive aimed at smashing 400 miles across Egyptian deserts to the Suez Canal.

Aerial scouts returning from flights over Libya estimated that Fascist forces, mostly concentrated at Bardia, thirty miles from the border, now number over 260,000.

Artillery in Action

Sporadic artillery fire rumbled along the border between advance posts as the British and Egyptian armies quietly completed preparations to meet any Italian thrust. Britain recently landed thousands of soldiers to reinforce the 60,000 desert troops in Egypt.

Egypt, with a British trained army of about 20,000, is ready to declare war on Italy only if her country is attacked.

There was a possibility the British might strike first. Military observers expected any Italian offensive, however, to be timed with the projected Nazi invasion of England.

(In Rome Italian authorities said Fascist pilots were dealing heavy blows to British posts. Such raids were considered natural preliminaries to a ground offensive).

Italians On Move

In northern Kenya, 2,000 miles south of the potential Egyptian battleground, Italian forces from southern Ethiopia already were on the move on a 200-mile front in an apparent thrust toward British Kenya's capital, Nairobi. British forces fighting a delaying action inflicted heavy losses on the Italians, the British said. In some places the Italians were 120 miles deep into Kenya, but still 300 miles from Nairobi.

A British communique issued in Nairobi said "one of our detachments again attacking enemy successfully at Wal Quaris and drove them from their positions inflicting casualties and capturing prisoners. Our casualties were again slight."

Frostburg Is Beaten By Birmingham 20 to 3

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 13 (AP) — Birmingham's surprising Acipco entry in the National Amateur Baseball tournament boomed into the final round tonight with a 20-3 victory over Frostburg, Md.

Acipco opens a three-game series for the title tomorrow with Pittsburgh, early tournament favorite. Each team lost one in the two-and-out tourney.

Nasabe Habshey struck out 16 men and permitted five hits tonight while Acipco was pounding five Frostburg hurlers for 24 hits.

Acipco began pounding Fleming, the losing pitcher, in the opening frame and warmed to the job in the third against his relief, pushing over six runs. From then on it was a merciless hitting barrage.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

As the storm over London reaches a new crescendo, there are widely scattered war developments elsewhere to strengthen Britain's stubborn confidence that time is her ally and that victory in the present crisis means final victory.

Centering on the Mediterranean, they lend support to the idea stressed by British leaders that a strong element of desperation compels the preparations of Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini to strike quickly for a double decision.

Gibraltar reports cryptically that French warships have just headed westward into the Atlantic. They sailed past the silent guns of the fortress as Britain's Allies or there would have been no word of their movement.

French Planes at Gibraltar

Earlier, the arrival at Gibraltar of thirty or more warplanes from French Morocco was noted from Spain.

In Washington, Axis uneasiness over the Mediterranean is hinted by authoritative information that the Vichy government has rejected a demand that some 200,000 French empire troops in North Africa be disarmed lest they imperial Italy. It was France's collapse at home that made feasible an Italian drive to conquer Egypt—which Il Duce now threatens—by releasing troops from the western frontiers of Libya.

From Greece come rumors that reinforced British naval forces have thrown a blockade around Italy's strategic Dodecanese islands in the eastern Mediterranean, which already have been shelled and bombed.

Rome acknowledged the likelihood that the acquisition of fifty American destroyers will enable the foe to add further to the sea forces determined to shatter Mussolini's dream of empire.

Meanwhile, though Marshal Graziani appears to have a margin of two to one or more for an Italian land and air drive to cut the British empire lifeline at Suez, British commanders insist with a show of confidence over the utlimate outcome that Italy is faced at the moment with an uncomfortable now-or-never dilemma.

With the two main fascist armies isolated by sea from home supply bases and by geography from each others, the Italian commanders can not afford to dissipate munitions and equipment in inconclusive fighting, it is contended from Cairo.

All war reports must be scanned with skepticism, but these, against the background of Italy's vulnerability, have the appearance of significant straws in the wind.

Il Duce, like his Axis partner, is under urgent pressure from time and events to strike, or at least to feint in force, in the hope that a Nazi victory on the war's main front may save Italy from heavy losses.

Both he and the Nazi fuehrer are in a measure helpless victims of forces they unlossed. Certainly, once an invasion of England is launched there can be no turning back for Hitler without disaster.

As the crisis nears in the Mediterranean as at home, Britons have been warned to expect reverses such as the loss of Somaliland but they have Prime Minister Churchill's assurance that there will be no surrender on either front.

41 Known Dead

"You needn't come to work today. Go back home." The gatekeeper told him and the man turned away.

But at Dover General hospital the scene was nearly unchanged from that of yesterday when the disaster struck. Doctors and nurses still worked at top-speed to save the eighty-five burned and mangled men there.

Some small reason to be thankful was furnished by William C. Hunt, in charge of the company's explosives department. He disclosed that 6,000 pounds of nitroglycerine, buried near one of the buildings that blew up, had not been detonated.

"Thank God it didn't," Hunt said. "I wouldn't want to be anywhere nearby if it were only 100 pounds."

Plant Area a Shamble

The area surrounding the plant was a shambles. Trees were denuded of limbs, bark and foliage. Railroad tracks were torn loose from ties. Corrugated steel roofing was blasted to shreds and power house pipes were torn loose from boilers.

In the center of the blasted area, a fifty-foot steel skeleton-remnant of what had been a rectifying tower—sagged and swayed. Over all was the odor of alcohol used in processing power.

A company official took newsmen on a tour of the plant—which 24 hours before had been busy every minute of the day turning out munitions for the nation's defense program.

The trip began in automobiles over a crater-pocked road. These were abandoned after half a mile and the group proceeded on foot.

"Now the road is gone," the official said, "we'll have to walk."

While the group stopped to examine a pile of bricks which had been the solvent recovery building where the blasts began, a breathless messenger ran up and panted:

"Don't come any further this way. It may go up. That still pot over there."

Barlow To "Put Heat" On Tax Collectors

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Lester P. Barlow, Baltimore inventor awarded a patent claim of $592,719 by the government, is "out to put the heat on the tax collectors."

Barlow declared he would "rock the capital" before paying an estimated $412,817 in income taxes on the money awarded him after a nineteen-year wait.

"Before I'm finished, I'll really get some goats," he said. The inventor's liquid oxygen-carbon bomb failed to kill any goats in an official test at Aberdeen recently.

"I'll fight the taxes with every legal means. I don't want anything for Barlow. I'm just out to put the heat on the tax collectors. I'll show 'em they can't rob honest men.

"I'll admit I've got the law against me. I know most people would just take it on the chin without fighting. But I'm going to carry the fight to Congress. The law is wrong and I aim to get the law changed."

Court Upholds Section Of Income Tax Law

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Circuit Court Judge Ridgely P. Melvin upheld the constitutionality of the fiduciary estates section of the state income-tax law today.

While holding that income received from a non-resident trust estate is taxable as investment paid over by the trustee to the Maryland beneficiary was taxable.

Mrs. Clara G. Williams, of Talbot county, brought suit under the declaratory judgment act against State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes to have the court rule on the validity and construction of the fiduciary estates section of the income-tax law.

Mrs. Williams's share of an estate administered in Pennsylvania was $4,170. The Pennsylvania trustee in 1939 paid her $3,573 and the remaining sum was deducted by the trustee for commission and for certain taxes paid in Pennsylvania.

Starnes Demands Communist Party Be "Outlawed"

Congress Calls on Federal and State Governments for Action

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — Representative Starnes (D-Ala), Dies committee member, called on the federal and state governments today to "outlaw" the Communist party.

He told the House that the party had perpetrated "gigantic fraud" and summarized a committee survey of the party's election petitions in Maryland, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, New Jersey and Ohio.

The committee sent hundreds of letters to persons whose names appeared on the Pennsylvania petition, Starnes said, and replies showed:

1—That thousands had never actually signed the petition.

2—That thousands said the petition was misrepresented to them as relating to better housing, playgrounds, lowering of gas rates and "scores of other causes."

Starnes told the house:

Called Agent of Moscow

"The Communist party is not a bona fide political party but an agent of Moscow financed and controlled by the foreign dictator, Stalin.

"Therefore, I submit that the United States government and that the respective state governments should act immediately to outlaw the Communist party and brand it for what it is—a foreign conspiracy seeking to overthrow our form of government."

Starnes said of West Virginia:

"In the state of West Virginia, as a result of our exposure and of the efforts of the American Legion, Oscar Wheler, the Communist party's gubernatorial candidate, was sentenced to from six to fifteen years in the penitentiary for fraud in failing to reveal the identity of the political party for which he was collecting signatures on the nominating petitions.

Six Others Indicted

"Six others were indicted with wheeler on the same charge. One hundred and fifty were indicted for voting in a primary after signing the Communist party petition. The upshot in West Virginia has been that the Supreme Court of that state has ruled the Communist party off the ballot.

"In Maryland, the Communist party had worked mostly among the negro population. Our committee received hundreds of letters from these negro people denying that they had signed the petitions, or, in cases where they had signed, advising that they had done so on the representation that it was for better housing, the abolition of lynching, etc. The same kind of fraud and misrepresentation appeared in Maryland as in the other states, and the matter is now being presented to the grand jury in Baltimore."

O'Conor Must Appoint New Chief Judge of The Second Circuit

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13. (AP)—Governor O'Conor, it appeared today, has no alternative but to appoint as chief judge of the second judicial circuit a new man who automatically would become a member of the Court of Appeals.

The vacancy occurred with the recent death of Chief Judge W. Mason Shehan, of Easton, a member of the Applelate Court.

Three associate judges of the circuit, comprising Caroline, Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot and Cecil counties, were looked upon as possible candidates for the chief judgeship and membership of the Court of Appeals.

They are Judges J. Owen Knotts, of Denton; James F. Evans, of Elkton, and Thomas J. Keating.

Judge Knotts, however, recently announced he would not accept the position. There was serious doubt today among prominent lawyers that the governor could elevate either Judge Keating or Judge Evans to the position because of their age.

Lawyers asserted that the state constitution provides for the retirement of judges reaching seventy years of age.

Several years ago the attorney general's office handed down an opinion, they said, holding that judges appointed by the governor should be eligible to serve until the next general election. The opinion held, they continued, that the governor could not appoint a judge who would become seventy before the next general election.

O'Conor Praises Maryland Citizens

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP) — Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor said tonight that citizens who give the nation's "military forces complete cooperation and support in every way possible" are helping to make the state and country safe.

Speaking at a "stand by America" meeting, O'Conor said "no free people in the world have ever enjoyed uninterruptedly such complete freedom from duress of every kind as the people of our own state of Maryland. It was Maryland that first offered to the world the principles of true freedom and individual liberty."

Varied Sports Events Are Booked For Today on the Radio Networks

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
Associated Press Radio Editor

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—Racing Saturday — Mutual and WJZ-NBC will broadcast the Edgemere Handicap from Aqueduct, N. Y., from 3:30 to 3:45. Byran Field will man the mike for MBS and Jack McCarthy for NBC.

Ted Husing of CBS winds up the National Amateur Golf tournament at Mamoroneck, N. Y., with a summary broadcast of the morning round at 10:30 and a play-by-play description of the afternoon round starting at 1 p. m.

It's a doubleheader—baseball and football—on WEAF-NBC'S Sports School of the Air at 10 a. m. Manager Frankie Frisch and two of his Pittsburgh Pirates hold up baseball's end, and Coach Jim Crowley brings in two of his Fordham huskies for the football angles.

Fashion Question

Paris, New York or Hollywood? Which is the world's fashion center? The European war has posed this question, which four experts will discuss on People's Platform (CBS 6 p. m.)

Tony Sarg, artist-marionetteer born in Guatemala of an English mother and German father, is guest on I'm An American on WEAF-NBC at 1 p. m.

Thomas Jefferson's fight to preserve the Bill of Rights is topic of Human Adventure on CBS at 7:30.

Ralph Edwards, pilot of Truth or Consequences, takes the WEAF-NBC (8:30 p. m.) show on the road shortly.

Sunday Features

What goes on behind the scenes? (Beg pardon—behind the mikes?) WJZ-NBC opens a new series Sunday night with Graham McNamee as master of ceremonies that will take listeners into the studio for a glimpse of how split-second timing, "audience rehearsal" and sound effects work out. It goes on at 3:30 p. m.

Ted Husing travels to Meadow Brook Club, Westchester, L. I., to air the finals of the national open polo championship from 2:15 to 4:30. He'll be assisted on the CBS net by Jimmy Dolan.

WJZ-NBC brings a 12-year-old Alpine yodeler to the air for a new weekly series at 4:15. His name is Olivio Santoro, and he's a South American, of all things!

Compton As Reporter

Walter Compton is reporter on a new MBS series, This Week in Defense, at 5:30.

Bucky Walters, Cincinnati Reds' star pitcher, used to be a third baseman, started pitching as a gag. . . He tells about it on Bill Stern's Sports Newsreel at 8:45 on WJZ-NBC.

Gabriel Heatter gets interviewed himself on CBS' Fun in Print program at 5.

Dr. Ernest Kalibala, East African minister, writes CBS that Wings Over Jordan, negro hymn program "serves to meet the inter-racial needs of East Africa."

Izler Solomon, young conductor of the Illinois Symphony orchestra, will lead the three concluding concerts in NBC's summer series (WJZ-NBC 7).

The Proposed State Ban on Fireworks

WHILE there may be some disappointment and perhaps suspicion coupled with the action of the state Legislative council in deferring approval of the state-wide ban on fireworks, there is reason to hope for its approval as the result of the public hearings the council has planned.

The council was urged by the special sub-committee named to report on the subject to give its immediate indorsement of a bill drafted by the sub-committee, which would prohibit the indiscriminate use of fireworks in the state and confine them to licensed public displays. The sub-committee expressed its belief that there "should be no longer delay in enacting legislation prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks."

Perhaps the moving reason for deferring the indorsement and the holding of public hearings rested upon the nature of the proposed bill rather than upon the purpose of the measure. It is of interest to note in this connection that Senator Emmanuel Gorfine, of Baltimore city, expressed himself in favor of immediate approval of the draft.

The sub-committee properly stressed the effectiveness of prohibitory legislation of other states in reducing the number of Fourth of July injuries and deaths from fireworks, particularly Pennsylvania, Delaware and West Virginia, neighboring states having this type of law; the District of Columbia, which has stringent regulations as to the type and size of fireworks which may be used, and Virginia, which also has restrictions, although weaker in this respect.

An interesting phase of the report by the sub-committee was its finding that the proposed legislation would displace possibly but twenty employes engaged in the manufacture of fireworks, and it was noted that perhaps these would not be displaced, at least entirely. If licensed display fireworks should create an equally important market. From all the hub-bub raised by opponents of such legislation one would suppose a much larger employment was involved.

Against that rather meager economic consideration rests the injury and deaths resulting from the indiscriminate use of fireworks. As previously noted, the lack of restrictions resulted in the injury of 303 persons, mostly children, in the state this last Fourth of July, according to a report by the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness. There can be little argument as to which weighs the heavier in the balance.

Where Motoring Care Must Be Impressed

READERS may tire of seeing so much in print about the dangers in motoring, but the alarming increase in highway casualties makes it necessary to impress it on all occasions.

A point just emphasized by the federal Bureau of the Census, which all motorists here and elsewhere in Maryland should heed, is that statistics of the bureau show Saturday and Sunday to be the most dangerous days on Maryland highways. Fatal accidents on these two days accounted for more than forty-four per cent of the motor vehicle deaths during 1939.

It is the week-end and Sunday excursions that bring so many passenger cars into the highways, and this period calls for greater caution than ever.

The Census bureau also notes that motor vehicle accidents caused death to more persons between the ages of 20 and 24 in Maryland last year than any other age group. Only about eighteen per cent of the persons killed in state motor vehicle accidents during the year were of 60 years of age or more.

Thus, it is emphasized how dangerous the impulsiveness and recklessness of youth is with the motor car. Here, indeed, is where lessons of safety must be impressed.

The state motor fatality record is growing, despite the numerous campaigns and other efforts that have been made in behalf of caution and safety. The death list in 1939 totaled 401 persons, an increase of 5.2 per cent over the preceding year. The rate was 23.9 per cent per 100,000 of the population. A poignant reminder by the Census bureau is that only in six cases during the year did accidents result in instant death, 241 persons having lingered in agony until death relieved their sufferings within twenty-four hours.

Willkie's Opportunity In Being Himself

WENDELL L. WILLKIE has started on a 7,200-mile campaign tour that will take him through eighteen states from Indiana to the Pacific coast. These states have 187 electoral votes out of a total of 531 in the electoral college. The Republican candidate is scheduled to make appearances in forty-eight cities and towns ranging from Portland, Ore., to Amarillo, Tex.

Fifty reporters are aboard Mr. Willkie's train. This is said to be the largest number of newspapermen ever to start on a campaign trip of a presidential candidate.

There can be no doubt of the keen public interest in Mr. Willkie and of the general eagerness with which the public is following the development of his campaign. Judging from what he said to reporters at Rushville, Mr. Willkie has no intention of attempting to startle the nation with a few nation-wide broadcasts, nor to permit his assistants to "master-mind" his campaign for him. He wants to meet the largest possible number of voters face-to-face, to tell them his views in plain language and to be himself.

To be oneself in a presidential campaign with all the variegated pressures, conflicting advice and general pulling and hauling to which a candidate is exposed is not the easiest of accomplishments. Mr. Willkie's course since his nomination suggests that he is able to take care of himself. Frankness and courage are two of his outstanding characteristics, which Mr. Willkie will have lots of chance to demonstrate during his first campaign swing.

A Bit of Good News For the Motorists

PREDICTION at the convention of the American Chemical Society in Detroit that miles per gallon of gasoline may soon be doubled will be good news to motorists. It seems to be simply a matter of using aviation gasoline of 100 octane rating in road vehicles, although presumably they would have to be engineered for this higher test fuel.

T. A. Boyd, of the General Motors research laboratories, explained that this gasoline will cost more but that there will still be a saving of perhaps twenty per cent to the motorist when production of the super gas is stepped up to meet demands of car drivers. Gasoline mileage has been held down, he explained, because motorists have preferred more power, more acceleration and more hill-climbing ability to more miles per gallon.

From now on, Boyd predicted, benefits of further improvements in fuel and of advances in engineering will be directed into more miles per gallon. It seems plausible. The new cars already have about all the performance most drivers can handle, and much more than some seem to know what to do with.

These Reds Should Be Ousted

ONE of the most scandalous features of the New Deal has been its persistent opposition to the effort by Congress, through the Dies committee, to rid the country of disloyal and treasonable conspirators.

Up to this hour the administration has failed to discharge federal employees whose disloyal and alien activities have been conclusively proved. Some of these employees occupy positions of authority affecting the policies of the United States.

No method has yet been found by Congress to compel the Roosevelt administration to clean out the reds, Nazis, and others in government employ, but public opinion can do the job next November by cleaning out the entire New Deal outfit.

Tiny radio sets, which may be attached to bicycles may soon be available. And now Junior wants one that will fit his roller skates.

The Browser's Findings

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Marshall Maslin

Back in 1897 when Stephen Crane was living in England—only 26 years old and with but three more years to live—he wrote a short story which he called "The Monster". In it he indicts an entire community. The Monster is a negro coachman who saves his employer's child from a burning house, has his face burned horribly, and becomes mildly insane. Dr. Trescott, the employer, saves the coachman's life and agrees to care for him as long as he lives.

But the children of the town are frightened, the citizens protest against the doctor's maintenance of the Monster in their town, and even his friends turn against the doctor. He wrote it in cold rage and contempt because the conduct of the people of the town affronted Crane's own ideals of loyalty and compassion, but when he submitted it to the Century Magazine of those days it was refused. Carl Van Doren tells us, "on the ridiculous ground that it would horrify expectant mothers".

In these days (which the Browser would characterize as "more enlightened" if it weren't for the war now being fought across the ocean) would merely assume that expectant mothers wouldn't be reading this book and let it go at that.

That impassioned story is included in "Stephen Crane: Twenty Stories" (Knopf), selected with an introduction by Carl Van Doren, and the Browser finds that he is enthusiastic about Crane's stories as he was when he first read them twenty years ago (which was twenty years after the young author's death). Crane is most familiarly known for his famous "The Red Badge of Courage", a tale of the Civil war written when Crane was but 22 and had never been in a war. But it is an honest recreation of a boy's heart, no echo of lying old tales and that book still lives.

So do the other stories in this new collection because Crane is clearly attempting to set down only what he honestly believed happened. . . When he is writing about small boys he is writing about their actions as he, Stephen Crane, has observed them and he is not inventing action or sentimentalizing it. He is as wise as Mark Twain, much wiser than Tarkington.

Perhaps something should be done to correct some of the Browser's literary prejudices. In particular, his attitude toward the James Fenimore Cooper Sesquicentennial Celebration in Cooperstown, New York. The state historical association on the thirty-first of last month unveiled a heroic bronze statue of Cooper and passed out $250 in prizes for youngsters' essays on "Leatherstocking and the American Spirit".

All of which impresses the Browser as unadulterated nonsense because, after all, James Fenimore Cooper was a very bad writer and no boy of today can read them with any pleasure. Unreal, sloppy, sentimentalized, they do not depict the age they were supposed to depict and anyone who believes that they do should read Mark Twain's immortal essay on J. F. Cooper. . . And the Browser wonders if any society will ever celebrate the sesquicentennial of Stephen Crane. He is inclined to think not!

If you are still interested in the Browser's ideas on what perfect writing is, you should read some of Katherine Anne Porter's short stories. Ten years ago she published a small book of stories with the title "Flowering Judas". The Modern Library now republishes them and Miss Porter is able to say: "Looking at them again, it is possible still to say that I do not repent of them". She should not. They are among them one of the great stories of American literature. The Browser does not refer to the name story of the book; he means the amazing "Jilting of Granny Weatherall", that subtly astounding, gently penetrating description of an old old woman death.

How can good writers be so wise, is the cry of Marsh Maslin, who has read much that is good, much that is bad, much triviality well written, much solemnity written stupidly—but still goes seeking, seeking, seeking for the ideal book. Because he IS

Wider Age Range For Draft Urged By Gen. Johnson

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Perhaps—and I hope and pray—this will be my last twang on my single-stringed Jew's harp—the Selective Service bill. I believe it will be passed before another column on it could be written if I wanted to write one—which I don't. I get just as tired of a single subject as the long-suffering customers and maybe more so, but with no boasting and as a single cold hard fact, I happen to know more about this subject than any living man—by intense and successful experience.

I have some sour letters saying that the reason I am so repetitious and emphatic is that I want to be "Director of Selective Service", as I was deputy director before. I don't, and even if I did, Mr. Roosevelt would rather lose an eye tooth than call me to that duty. I don't blame him in the least. In his shoes I would take the same view myself.

* * *

Disagreed Since

I have served him as loyally as anybody around him when I agreed with him. Since I have disagreed. I have criticized him and some of his associates as hard as anybody. In that job, I would be an embarrassment to him and to many of his lieutenants. On this bill, as on all other measures to speed and make efficient national defense, I have supported him as constantly, strongly and effectively as any of his friends.

Men in the War Department charged with planning this effort have also had everything I could give from my experience in the way of both support and advice, and both they and the president know that no matter who is finally charged with the execution of this law, they can rely on me for any unofficial help and support I can give, from running errands to the best this column can offer.

* * *

Could Easily Fail

This should be obvious because it is a vital matter of national defense which, on all the experience of our race, could so easily fail if blundered. But which, on the experience of 1917, if wisely administered, could so easily succeed, and by success, do as much for national unity and confidence as any major effort. It should be obvious also because, in a manner of speaking, it is my baby and I am intensely jealous of its success.

All of which is a wind-up to pitch for a provision to register a wider age group than the Senate bill to register men from 21 to 31 only.

* * *

Contrary View

A contrary argument appeared in the New York Daily News. It wants to register only men from 21 to 24. Its reasons are sketchy. It wants only younger men to fight—"men with perfect eyesight, perfect hearing, excellent health and ample height and weight." Also "it would make quite a hit politically with this group (31 to 44) if the conference would just forget about them in putting this bill together."

Boy that last one is a honey. It was included in an editorial excoriating "politics and the draft." It is about the sleaziest argument yet advanced. Take the kids—they haven't any political come-back.

* * *

Wider Choice Given

The main reasons for the wider age limits are, first, that you get a wider range of choice and, second, and more important, with a bigger pool, you can apply the exemption rules less harshly and arbitrarily and execute the draft with far more justice, sympathy and common sense—and hence with far more public support and enthusiasm. It should be reason enough to say that we tried the 21 to 31 limits in 1917 and were forced to the 18 to 45 limits by public demand and bitter experience.

It is not true either that all the tasks of a modern army require physical perfection. It is absurd to put a young Hercules to filling capsules in a medical supply depot. There is a vast field of special and limited service for men who are not physically perfect. That is also a lesson experience.

As a swan song suggestion, how about Judge Advocate General Gullion for this job? He had a major division of it in the World war, did it perfectly and knows it thoroughly.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Capital Reservoir

From the Industrial News Review

The normal credit sources of this country are in a position to meet all or nearly all of the heavy demands that will be caused by industrial expansion for the production of materials needed in the defense program, in the expert opinion of Emmett F. Connely, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

"The reservoirs of the capital markets are filled to overflowing," he said. "I have checked the important industries—aviation, machine tool, automotive, metallurgical—involved in the defense program, and there appears to be little or no need for government financial assistance. On the contrary, these industries are in a position to raise, through regular banking channels, what capital they may require for expansion."

That's good news, and it is to be hoped that the government abides by it. Every nickel of private capital that can be obtained for defense purposes means that a nickel less of public capital—taxes—will be needed. And it means that a nickel less will be added to the soaring national debt.

It should be eternally kept in mind that a sound and orderly fiscal policy to control defense spending is as vital to the future of the country as the actual production of airplanes and warships and other arms. It is bad enough to have to start rearmament under the burden of a $45,000,000,000 national debt. It will be infinitely worse if we go ahead and spend with reckless prodigality.

Government should assist industry with funds only when and if it is definitely proven that private credit facilities—the commercial bankers, the investment brokers, and other sources—are unable to meet the demand. Every private resource should be employed first. Unless that is done, national insolvency may prove as much of a danger to our existence as the threat of aggression by an armed foe.

War Destruction A Terrible Cost

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

Somehow the idea got about that the present war, because of its breath-taking brevity, has been less destructive than that of 1914-1918. Then comes an inconspicuous little item from Vichy that France must rebuild 6000 bridges merely to assure normal resumption of traffic.

Six thousand bridges! How many bridges are there in the town you know best? Imagine the strain on the community of rebuilding them all this year. Multiply that by hundreds and thousands. Then remember that your total is just bridges.

Roads, telephone and telegraph lines, buildings, public and private—all these add to the heap of ruins. This a single month of active war did to France. Britain and Germany are now inflicting on each other this same sort of mutual destruction.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL ATTACK

Canadians Prefer Own Independence To Assimulation into United States

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Of course Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York is the essence of the Yankee-Canadian joint commission which is fixing up that mutually defensive compact between Uncle Samuel and Our Lady of the Snows. Not that the other commissioners aren't all right, but Fiorello can no more be anything but the hub of any activity he's involved in than sparks can fly downward.

Fiorello LaGuardia

In principle the Yankee-Canadian dicker is easy enough to arrange, for both sides want it. There are some details, however, which require a certain amount of fixing.

On the one hand, the Canadians don't want to be assimilated into the United States, regardless of what may happen to the British empire. On the opposite hand, a Yankee who has given the subject due consideration doesn't altogether like the idea of assimilating them literally.

Canada Prefers Independence

There's been talk to the effect that, should Germany over-run the British isles, the next step would be the transfer of the present London government to Ottawa. Canada to be the imperial hub thence-forward.

Canadians, the Yankee members of the joint commission, don't favor this arrangement. They say they'll always be glad to entertain British royalty and folk like Winston Churchill and others as refugees, but they absolutely veto the notion of turning over Canada's government to them. Yet, unless they do so, they don't see how Ottawa could become imperial headquarters.

Canada, to be sure, has a governor general, appointed from London, but he hasn't a particle of authority. The actual head of the Canadian government is its prime minister, chosen by the majority party in the Ottawa house of commons. In the event of the collapse of the empire, now centered in London, the Canadians' scheme is to go it alone thereafter, independently de jure as well as de facto. Naturally they couldn't consider themselves even nominally subject to the German-ruled London. Neither would they care to yield control to a set of refugees from the original home land. They wouldn't like to be federally dictated to from Washington, either.

Let 'Em Go It Alone

The only alternative would appear to be complete Canadian independence.

But the Canadians do realize that they need an airtight alliance with Uncle Samuel.

Well, they know they can get it, because it also is vital to Sammy.

Australia, for instance, is different. Let the empire blow up and the Australians will be left at the end of a long limb. The United States probably wouldn't stand indifferently, illustratively, by a Japanese grab of Australia. Still, even that wouldn't hit us as hard and immediately as an overseas swipe at Canada. So the Australians might be disposed to accept whatever terms we offered 'em.

Assimilation Can Be Overdone

As previously remarked, maybe there's a Yankee objection to assimilating the Canadians over-literally.

If we take 'em in, we'll have to take 'em in as states or territories.

Now, would we enjoy having the states of Quebec or Ontario sending senators and representatives to congress in Washington? And suppose a Quebecer or an Ontarian were to become a presidential aspirant?

Pan American Union

And there's another thing.

We have a Pan American Union. It includes all of the new world's republics. Canada never has belonged to it, for it isn't a republic.

I'll take Brazil to draw a comparison, for Brazil's our best friend in the western hemisphere.

Without any assimilation of the Brazilians, we can make a fine alliance with 'em, since all our interests, jointly, are new worldly. It's the same with the rest of the western hemispherical republics. Some of them don't like us as well as the Brazilians do, but at least none of them are governmentally tied by the leg to any overseas power.

Canada, however, always has been—tied to England.

Hence, it's been impossible to class the Canucks, nominally Britons) as Pan Americans.

Maybe we can if the British empire busts up.

Tough Job Is To Be Faced

From the Altoona, Pa., Tribune

The next president of these United States, whoever he may be, faces the problem that inevitably follows in the wake of mass carnage that the alleged civilized world terms war.

It does not presuppose, however, that this nation be at war to feel the results of any armed conflict.

Affairs in the world when November rolls around will have reached a climax far more serious than present indications denote. Who's fighting whom and for what purpose is not the prime question even now.

The real query—the answer to which will have a direct bearing on every man, woman and child in every land—how will the victor bring the world out of the chaos into which it has been plunged?

The next president then faces a difficult problem and an unenviable one. If history will repeat itself—and it seldom fails to do so—the chief executive will be confronted with that post-war depression that is born of war-time booms.

Not that an economic boom is exactly noticeable at the present time. We still have our unemployment problem, the relief, trade and agriculture problems—and the growing problem of national defense. But security of the nation through defense bears the seeds of a minor boom at least.

And to get that protection the wheels of the nation's shops and facories must turn often and long. It will mean work, united effort and in some instances release to the workingman some of the nation's wealth.

Still, no matter who dominates the European scene—no matter how great the boom or how small in this nation—the next president of these United States faces a tough job.

War Gas Is Not Used because It Flares Backward

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

The first year of the second World war has passed and there has been no use of gas. The war departments of all nations have been studying chemical warfare for twenty years. In the years between the great wars, libraries have been written on the lethal fogs which were to shroud both combatants and civilians in years to come. It hasn't happened yet, and it may not happen at all. Questioning military authorities, I can get but one answer. Hitler is afraid to let loose this all-pervasive instrument of death. Here is at least one beast of the Apocalypse which may be kept in its cage.

* * *

May Come Back

The limitations on the use of gas by land armies are understandable. Any vagrant wind may toss it back to its source even in the World War, when the Germans first released their mustard gas in 1918 this danger was experienced and realized. The Germans had not taken sufficient account of the fact that the prevailing winds are from west to east. They, on doubt, have reckoned this carefully by this time, and Herr Hitler probably is fully aware of England's meteorological advantage.

In the end-runs and line-breaks in the broken field of aerial warfare in this last year, both sides have been vulnerable. In spite of the best goal-keeping in the air, some maverick plane is sure to slip through, and just a few tons of the most modern deadly gas dropped over a big city may take more life than even the most devastating bomb assault. It is not to be presumed that Der Fuerher is restrained by humane or moral scruples. But he no doubt, realizes that chemical warfare is a two-handed game in which both can lose.

* * *

Interesting Prophecies

It is interesting to check prophecies of the next war back over a period of twenty years. Most of them have been certain that the new holocaust would be a swift and deadly engagement, concluded perhaps in a few weeks or a few months.

One of the best American reporters to cover the first World war was Will Irwin. In 1921, Mr. Irwin published a book, "The Next War," in which he pictured gas as the climatic achievement of this struggle, brought to a high peak of efficiency just before the armistice.

"In all the experiments following Second Ypres," wrote Mr. Irwin, "the chemist had in mind three qualities of the ideal killing gas. First it should be invisible, thus introducing the elements of surprise. The early crude gases, even in small quantities betrayed their presence by the tinge they gave the atmosphere. Second, it should be a little heavier than the atmosphere; it should tend to sink, so as to penetrate dugouts and cellars. Third, it should poison—not merely burn—all exposed areas of the body. American ingenuity solved these problems.

Invisible and Deadly

"At the time of the Armistice we were manufacturing for the campaign of 1919 our Lewisite gas. It was invisible; it was a sinking gas which would search out the refugees of dugouts and cellars; if breathed, it killed at once—and it killed not only through the lungs. Wherever it settled on the skin, it produced a poison which penetrated the system and brought almost certain death. It was intimical to all cell-life, animal or vegetable. Masks alone were of no use against it. It had fifty-five times the spread of any poison gas hitherto used in the war.

"An expert has said that a dozen Lewisite air bombs of the greatest size in use during 1918 might with a favorable wind have eliminated the population of Berlin. Possibly he exaggerated but probably not greatly. The Armistice came; but gas research went on. Now we have more than a hint of gas beyond Lewisite. It cannot be much more deadly; but in proportion to the amount of chemical which generates it, the spread is far greater. A mere capsule of this gas in a small grenade can generate square rods and even acres of death in the absolute."

Hopeful Sign

"Death in the absolute." There is an idea which perhaps Herr Hitler has been pondering. Since Mr. Irwin wrote his book there have been many accounts of gases infinitely more destructive than any he visioned. It is just remotely possible that man will evolve killing devices so deadly he does not dare use them. The present deadlock in gas warfare may be the beginning of some such final frustration of our age-old lust for killing.—Copyright, 1940, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Proposed State Ban on Fireworks

WHILE there may be some disappointment and perhaps suspicion coupled with the action of the state Legislative council in deferring approval of the state-wide ban on fireworks, there is reason to hope for its approval as the result of the public hearings the council has planned.

The council was urged by the special sub-committee named to report on the subject to give its immediate indorsement of a bill drafted by the sub-committee, which would prohibit the indiscriminate use of fireworks in the state and confine them to licensed public displays. The sub-committee expressed its belief that there "should be no longer delay in enacting legislation prohibiting the sale and use of fireworks."

Perhaps the moving reason for deferring the indorsement and the holding of public hearings rested upon the nature of the proposed bill rather than upon the purpose of the measure. It is of interest to note in this connection that Senator Emmanuel Gorfine, of Baltimore city, expressed himself in favor of immediate approval of the draft.

The sub-committee properly stressed the effectiveness of prohibitory legislation of other states in reducing the number of Fourth of July injuries and deaths from fireworks, particularly Pennsylvania, Delaware and West Virginia, neighboring states having this type of law; the District of Columbia, which has stringent regulations as to the type and size of fireworks which may be used, and Virginia, which also has restrictions, although weaker in this respect.

An interesting phase of the report by the sub-committee was its finding that the proposed legislation would displace possibly but twenty employes engaged in the manufacture of fireworks, and it was noted that perhaps these would not be displaced, at least entirely, if licensed display fireworks should create an equally important market. From all the hubbub raised by opponents of such legislation one would suppose a much larger employment was involved.

Against that rather meager economic consideration rests the injury and deaths resulting from the indiscriminate use of fireworks. As previously noted, the lack of restrictions resulted in the injury of 303 persons, mostly children, in the state this last Fourth of July, according to a report by the Maryland Society for the Prevention of Blindness. There can be little argument as to which weighs the heavier in the balance.

Where Motoring Care Must Be Impressed

READERS may tire of seeing so much in print about the dangers in motoring, but the alarming increase in highway casualties makes it necessary to impress it on all occasions.

A point just emphasized by the federal Bureau of the Census, which all motorists here and elsewhere in Maryland should heed, is that statistics of the bureau show Saturday and Sunday to be the most dangerous days on Maryland highways. Fatal accidents on these two days accounted for more than forty-four per cent of the motor vehicle deaths during 1939.

It is the week-end and Sunday excursions that bring so many passenger cars into the highways, and this period calls for greater caution than ever.

The Census bureau also notes that motor vehicle accidents caused death to more persons between the ages of 20 and 24 in Maryland last year than any other age group. Only about eighteen per cent of the persons killed in state motor vehicle accidents during the year were of 60 years of age or more.

Thus, it is emphasized how dangerous the impulsiveness and recklessness of youth is with the motor car. Here, indeed, is where lessons of safety must be impressed.

The state motor fatality record is growing, despite the numerous campaigns and other efforts that have been made in behalf of caution and safety. The death list in 1939 totaled 401 persons, an increase of 5.2 per cent over the preceding year. The rate was 23.9 per cent per 100,000 of the population. A poignant reminder by the Census bureau is that only in six cases during the year did accidents result in instant death. 241 persons having lingered in agony until death relieved their sufferings within twenty-four hours.

Willkie's Opportunity In Being Himself

WENDELL L. WILLKIE has started on a 7,200-mile campaign tour that will take him through eighteen states from Indiana to the Pacific coast. These states have 187 electoral votes out of a total of 531 in the electoral college. The Republican candidate is scheduled to make appearances in forty-eight cities and towns ranging from Portland, Ore., to Amarillo, Tex.

Fifty reporters are aboard Mr. Willkie's train. This is said to be the largest number of newspapermen ever to start on a campaign trip of a presidential candidate.

There can be no doubt of the keen public interest in Mr. Willkie and of the general eagerness with which the public is following the development of his campaign. Judging from what he said to reporters at Rushville, Mr. Willkie has no intention of attempting to startle the nation with a few nation-wide broadcasts, nor to permit his assistants to "master-mind" his campaign for him. He wants to meet the largest possible number of voters face-to-face, to tell them his views in plain language and to be himself.

To be oneself in a presidential campaign with all the variegated pressures, conflicting advice and general pulling and hauling to which a candidate is exposed is not the easiest of accomplishments. Mr. Willkie's course since his nomination suggests that he is able to take care of himself. Frankness and courage are two of his outstanding characteristics, which Mr. Willkie will have lots of chance to demonstrate during his first campaign swing.

A Bit of Good News For the Motorists

PREDICTION at the convention of the American Chemical Society in Detroit that miles per gallon of gasoline may soon be doubled will be good news to motorists. It seems to be simply a matter of using aviation gasoline of 100 octane rating in road vehicles, although presumably they would have to be engineered for this higher test fuel.

T. A. Boyd, of the General Motors research laboratories, explained that this gasoline will cost more but that there will still be a saving of perhaps twenty per cent to the motorist when production of the super gas is stepped up to meet demands of car drivers. Gasoline mileage has been held down, he explained, because motorists have preferred more power, more acceleration and more hill-climbing ability to more miles per gallon.

From now on, Boyd predicted, benefits of further improvements in fuel and of advances in engineering will be directed into more miles per gallon. It seems plausible. The new cars already have about all the performance most drivers can handle, and much more than some seem to know what to do with.

These Reds Should Be Ousted

ONE of the most scandalous features of the New Deal has been its persistent opposition to the effort by Congress, through the Dies committee, to rid the country of disloyal and treasonable conspirators.

Up to this hour the administration has failed to discharge federal employees whose disloyal and alien activities have been conclusively proved. Some of these employees occupy positions of authority affecting the policies of the United States.

No method has yet been found by Congress to compel the Roosevelt administration to clean out the reds, Nazis, and others in government employ, but public opinion can do the job next November by cleaning out the entire New Deal outfit.

Tiny radio sets, which may be attached to bicycles may soon be available. And now Junior wants one that will fit his roller skates.

The Browser's Findings

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Marshall Maslin

Back in 1897 when Stephen Crane was living in England—only 26 years old and with but three more years to live—he wrote a short story which he called "The Monster". In it he indicts an entire community. The Monster is a negro coachman who saves his employer's child from a burning house, has his face burned horribly, and becomes mildly insane. Dr. Trescott, the employer, saves the coachman's life and agrees to care for him as long as he lives.

But the children of the town are frightened, the citizens protest against the doctor's maintenance of the Monster in their town, and even his friends turn against the doctor. He wrote it in cold rage and contempt because the conduct of the people of the town affronted Crane's own ideals of loyalty and compassion, but when he submitted it to the Century Magazine of those days it was refused, Carl Van Doren tells us, "on the ridiculous ground that it would horrify expectant mothers".

In these days (which the Browser would characterize as "more enlightened" if it weren't for the war now being fought across the ocean) would merely assume that expectant mothers wouldn't be reading this book and let it go at that.

That impassioned story is included in "Stephen Crane: Twenty Stories" (Knopf), selected with an introduction by Carl Van Doren, and the Browser finds that he is enthusiastic about Crane's stories as he was when he first read them twenty years ago (which was twenty years after the young author's death). Crane is most familiarly known for his famous "The Red Badge of Courage", a tale of the Civil war written when Crane was but 22 and had never been in a war. But it is an honest recreation of a boy's heart, no echo of lying old tales and that book still lives.

So do the other stories in this new collection because Crane is clearly attempting to set down only what he honestly believed happened. . . . When he is writing about small boys he is writing about their actions as he, Stephen Crane, has observed them and he is not inventing action or sentimentalizing it. He is as wise as Mark Twain, much wiser than Tarkington.

Perhaps something should be done to correct some of the Browser's literary prejudices. In particular, his attitude toward the James Fenimore Cooper Sesquicentennial Celebration in Cooperstown, New York. The state historical association on the thirty-first of last month unveiled a heroic bronze statue of Cooper and passed out $250 in prizes for youngsters' essays on "Leatherstocking and the American Spirit".

All of which impresses the Browser as unadulterated nonsense because, after all, James Fenimore Cooper was a very bad writer and no boy of today can read them with any pleasure. Unreal, sloppy, sentimentalized, they do not depict the age they were supposed to depict and anyone who believes that they do should read Mark Twain's immortal essay on J. F. Cooper. . . . And the Browser wonders if any society will ever celebrate the sesquicentennial of Stephen Crane. He is inclined to think not!

If you are still interested in the Browser's ideas on what perfect writing is, you should read some of Katherine Anne Porter's short stories. Ten years ago she published a small book of stories with the title "Flowering Judas". The Modern Library now republishes them and Miss Porter is able to say: "Looking at them again, it is possible still to say that I do not repent of them". She should not. They are among them one of the great stories of American literature. The Browser does not refer to the name story of the book; he means the amazing "Jilting of Granny Weatherall", that subtly astounding, gently penetrating description of an old old woman death.

How can good writers be so wise, is the cry of Marsh Maslin, who has read much that is good, much that is bad, much triviality well written, much solemnity written stupidly—but still goes seeking, seeking, seeking for the ideal book. Because he IS

Hugh Johnson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Perhaps—and I hope and pray—this will be my last twang on my single-stringed Jew's harp—the Selective Service bill. I believe it will be passed before another column on it could be written if I wanted to write one—which I don't. I get just as tired of a single subject as the long-suffering customers and maybe more so, but with no boasting and as a single cold hard fact, I happen to know more about this subject than any living man—by intense and successful experience.

I have some sour letters saying that the reason I am so repetitious and emphatic is that I want to be "Director of Selective Service", as I was deputy director before. I don't, and even if I did, Mr. Roosevelt would rather lose an eye tooth than call me to that duty. I don't blame him in the least. In his shoes I would take the same view myself.

* * *

Disagreed Since

I have served him as loyally as anybody around him when I agreed with him. Since I have disagreed, I have criticized him and some of his associates as hard as anybody. In that job, I would be an embarrassment to him and to many of his lieutenants. On this bill, as on all other measures to speed and make efficient national defense, I have supported him as constantly, strongly and effectively as any of his friends.

Men in the War Department charged with planning this effort have also had everything I could give from my experience in the way of both support and advice, and both they and the president know that no matter who is finally charged with the execution of this law, they can rely on me for any unofficial help and support I can give, from running errands to the best this column can offer.

* * *

Could Easily Fail

This should be obvious because it is a vital matter of national defense which, on all the experience of our race, could so easily fail if blundered. But which, on the experience of 1917, if wisely administered, could so easily succeed, and by success, do as much for national unity and confidence as any major effort. It should be obvious also because, in a manner of speaking, it is my baby and I am intensely jealous of its success.

All of which is a wind-up to pitch for a provision to register a wider age group than the Senate bill to register men from 21 to 31 only.

* * *

Contrary View

A contrary argument appeared in the New York Daily News. It wants to register only men from 21 to 24. Its reasons are sketchy. It wants only younger men to fight—"men with perfect eyesight, perfect hearing, excellent health and ample height and weight." Also "it would make quite a hit politically with this group (31 to 44) if the conference would just forget about them in putting this bill together."

Boy that last one is a honey. It was included in an editorial excoriating "politics and the draft." It is about the sleaziest argument yet advanced. Take the kids—they haven't any political come-back.

* * *

Wider Choice Given

The main reasons for the wider age limits are, first, that you get a wider range of choice and, second, and more important, with a bigger pool, you can apply the exemption rules less harshly and arbitrarily and execute the draft with far more justice, sympathy and common sense—and hence with far more public support and enthusiasm. It should be reason enough to say that we tried the 21 to 31 limits in 1917 and were forced to the 18 to 45 limits by public demand and bitter experience.

It is not true either that all the tasks of a modern army require physical perfection. It is absurd to put a young Hercules to filling capsules in a medical supply depot. There is a vast field of special and limited service for men who are not physically perfect. That is also a lesson experience.

As a swan song suggestion, how about Judge Advocate General Gullion for this job? He had a major division of it in the World war, did it perfectly and knows it thoroughly.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL ATTACK

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Of course Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York is the essence of the Yankee-Canadian joint commission which is fixing up that mutually defensive compact between Uncle Samuel and Our Lady of the Snows. Not that the other commissioners aren't all right, but Fiorello can no more be anything but the hub of any activity he's involved in than sparks can fly downward.

Fiorello LaGuardia

In principle the Yankee-Canadian dicker is easy enough to arrange, for both sides want it. There are some details, however, which require a certain amount of fixing.

On the one hand, the Canadians don't want to be assimilated into the United States, regardless of what may happen to the British empire. On the opposite hand, a Yankee who has given the subject due consideration doesn't altogether like the idea of assimilating them literally.

Canada Prefers Independence

There's been talk to the effect that, should Germany over-run the British isles, the next step would be the transfer of the present London government to Ottawa. Canada to be the imperial hub thence-forward.

Canadians, the Yankee members of the joint commission, don't favor this arrangement. They say they'll always be glad to entertain British royalty and folk like Winston Churchill and others as refugees, but they absolutely veto the notion of turning over Canada's government to them. Yet, unless they do so, they don't see how Ottawa could become imperial headquarters.

Canada, to be sure, has a governor general, appointed from London, but he hasn't a particle of authority. The actual head of the Canadian government is its prime minister, chosen by the majority party in the Ottawa house of commons. In the event of the collapse of the empire, now centered in London, the Canadians' scheme is to go it alone thereafter, independently de jure as well as de facto. Naturally they couldn't consider themselves even nominally subject to the German-ruled London. Neither would they care to yield control to a set of refugees from the original home land. They wouldn't like to be federally dictated to from Washington, either.

Let 'Em Go It Alone

The only alternative would appear to be complete Canadian independence.

But the Canadians do realize that they need an airtight alliance with Uncle Samuel.

Well, they know they can get it because it also is vital to Sammy.

Australia, for instance, is different. Let the empire blow up and the Australians will be left at the end of a long limb. The United States probably wouldn't stand indifferently, illustratively, by a Japanese grab of Australia. Still, even that wouldn't hit us as hard and immediately as an overseas swipe at Canada. So the Australians might be disposed to accept whatever terms we offered 'em.

Assimilation Can Be Overdone

As previously remarked, maybe there's a Yankee objection to assimilating the Canadians over-literally.

If we take 'em in, we'll have to take 'em in as states or territories.

Now, would we enjoy having the states of Quebec or Ontario sending senators and representatives to congress in Washington? And suppose a Quebecer or an Ontarian were to become a presidential aspirant?

Pan American Union

And there's another thing.

We have a Pan American Union. It includes all of the new world's republics. Canada never has belonged to it, for it isn't a republic.

I'll take Brazil to draw a comparison, for Brazil's our best friend in the western hemisphere.

Without any assimilation of the Brazilians, we can make a fine alliance with 'em, since all our interests, jointly, are new worldly. It's the same with the rest of the western hemispherical republics. Some of them don't like us as well as the Brazilians do, but at least none of them are governmentally tied by the leg to any overseas power.

Canada, however, always has been—tied to England.

Hence, it's been impossible to class the Canucks, nominally Britons, as Pan Americans.

Maybe we can if the British empire busts up.

The Capital Reservoir

From the Industrial News Review

The normal credit sources of this country are in a position to meet all or nearly all of the heavy demands that will be caused by industrial expansion for the production of materials needed in the defense program, in the expert opinion of Emmett F. Connely, president of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

"The reservoirs of the capital markets are filled to overflowing," he said. "I have checked the important industries—aviation, machine tool, automotive, metallurgical—involved in the defense program, and there appears to be little or no need for government financial assistance. On the contrary, these industries are in a position to raise, through regular banking channels, what capital they may require for expansion."

That's good news, and it is to be hoped that the government abides by it. Every nickel of private capital that can be obtained for defense purposes means that a nickel less of public capital—taxes—will be needed. And it means that a nickel less will be added to the soaring national debt.

It should be eternally kept in mind that a sound and orderly fiscal policy to control defense spending is as vital to the future of the country as the actual production of airplanes and warships and other arms. It is bad enough to have to start rearmament under the burden of a $45,000,000,000 national debt. It will be infinitely worse if we go ahead and spend with reckless prodigality.

Government should assist industry with funds only when and if it is definitely proven that private credit facilities—the commercial bankers, the investment brokers, and other sources—are unable to meet the demand. Every private resource should be employed first. Unless that is done, national insolvency may prove as much of a danger to our existence as the threat of aggression by an armed foe.

War Destruction A Terrible Cost

From the Parkersburg, W. Va., Sentinel

Somehow the idea got about that the present war, because of its breath-taking brevity, has been less destructive than that of 1914-1918. Then comes an inconspicuous little item from Vichy that France must rebuild 6000 bridges merely to assure normal resumption of traffic.

Six thousand bridges! How many bridges are there in the town you know best? Imagine the strain on the community of rebuilding them all this year. Multiply that by hundreds and thousands. Then remember that your total is just bridges.

Roads, telephone and telegraph lines, buildings, public and private—all these add to the heap of ruins. This a single month of active war did to France. Britain and Germany are now inflicting on each other this same sort of mutual destruction.

Tough Job Is To Be Faced

From the Altoona, Pa., Tribune

The next president of these United States, whoever he may be, faces the problem that inevitably follows in the wake of mass carnage that the alleged civilized world terms war.

It does not presuppose, however, that this nation be at war to feel the results of any armed conflict.

Affairs in the world when November rolls around will have reached a climax far more serious than present indications denote. Who's fighting whom and for what purpose is not the prime question even now.

The real query—the answer to which will have a direct bearing on every man, woman and child in every land—how will the victor bring the world out of the chaos into which it has been plunged?

The next president then faces a difficult problem and an unenviable one. If history will repeat itself—and it seldom fails to do so—the chief executive will be confronted with that post-war depression that is born of war-time booms.

Not that an economic boom is exactly noticeable at the present time. We still have our unemployment problem, the relief, trade and agriculture problems—and the growing problem of national defense. But security of the nation through defense bears the seeds of a minor boom at least.

And to get that protection the wheels of the nation's shops and facories must turn often and long. It will mean work, united effort and in some instances release to the workingman some of the nation's wealth.

Still, no matter who dominates the European scene—no matter how great the boom or how small in this nation—the next president of these United States faces a tough job.

Mrs. Irene Murphy Is Charged with Taking Money

Charged with "rolling" Harry Tice, 25, of Cumberland, in a local hotel, Mrs. Irene Murphy, 27, of Spring Gap, W. Va., will be given a hearing this morning at 9:30 o'clock in Trial Magistrate's court.

Tice told Lieut. James E. Van, of the Cumberland Police department, that Mrs. Murphy had relieved him of between $30 and $35 while he slept in his room in a local hotel.

When questioned last evening Mrs. Murphy admitted the allegations, Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, said.

Mrs. Murphy was arrested early Thursday morning by Lieut. Van and Officers Darrell J. Racey, Clarence C. Roby, John H. Newhouse and F. O. Daum.

One Driver Forfeits Bond; Two Others Are Acquitted

One driver forfeited bond and two others were acquitted yesterday in police court on charges of violating city motor regulations.

Walter L. Fields, 311 Mt. View Drive, forfeited $1 bond for failing to stop at a traffic sign at Harrison and George streets. He was arrested by Officers W. P. Crabtree and C. J. Stouffer.

Robert Lee Liller, 130 Wineow street, and Joseph Nile Price, 6 Arch street, were acquitted of careless driving. Both were apprehended by Officers J. J. Condon and J. E. Kelley following a minor collision last Saturday on Wineow street.

Allegany High School Has Two Assemblies

Allegany High school held two assembles Thursday to celebrate Old Defenders Day.

Ralph R. Webster, principal, spoke briefly on the "Star Spangled Banner" telling of its writing and adoption as the national anthem. Mr. Webster also spoke of the advantages we have in this country and every student should make use of them.

Mary Sullivan read the Scripture and Jack Powell led the flag salute. Jean Teubner presented, on behalf of the Alcohi Mirror staff, prizes to Mary Agnes Snow, Graham Boggs and Joseph Anderson.

A short talk on the coming football season and a review of available material was given by Coach Herman Ball. The students then held a "pep" meeting.

Atlantic Refining Dealers Meet Here

Inaugurating a fall advertising campaign as well as the introduction of a new motor oil, fifty-five Atlantic Refining Company dealers of Allegany and nearby West Virginia counties gathered at the Fort Cumberland hotel ballroom last evening for their annual fall banquet and heard talks by sales promotion managers and demonstrators of the company.

An added feature was the showing of the film, "Highlights of 1939 College Football Games" in which scenes of fifteen outstanding games of last year were shown, including the Rose Bowl and Cotton Bowl contests and the Pitt-Duquesne and Alabama-Fordham gridiron battles. The picture which lasted forty minutes was highly enjoyed by the guests.

Speakers on the program included C. E. Bishop, Baltimore, sales manager; F. H. Powell, Baltimore, demonstrator; Everett Fairlamb, Richmond, Va., demonstrator, and Richard Hewitt, Baltimore, sales promotion agent.

Dealers attending were from Allegany county and Mineral, Hampshire, Hardy, Grant and Pendleton counties in West Virginia.

Arrangements for the banquet were in charge of C. R. "Vic" Shannon, local representative of the company.

Herman G. Hamilton Is Fined $5 and Costs

Herman G. Hamilton, 712 Leiper street, was fined $5 and costs yesterday in trial magistrates court on a charge of parking at night without lights.

State Trooper H. F. Schultheis made the arrest on Winchester road.

Another driver, Harry L. Fisher, 1023 Shade's Lane, arrested by State Trooper B. C. Mason, forfeited $1.75 collateral for speeding on the McMullen highway at Bowling Green.

Child Is Burned By Hot Coffee

A three-year-old child was painfully burned about the right arm, body and right foot yesterday morning at home when he upset a pot of hot coffee.

Thomas White, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil White, 110 Spruce street, was treated at Allegany hospital for the burns. He was able to return home.

Hospital attendants said he reached up and pulled the coffee pot from the kitchen stove.

Bad Check Case Is Settled; Charge Is Withdrawn

A charge of fraud against Eugene P. Nixon, 500 Park street, preferred by E. W. Abell, also of Cumberland, was withdrawn yesterday in trial magistrates court.

Abell had obtained a warrant charging Nixon with obtaining $100 by means of a bad check, but the case was settled prior to trial.

Four Births Reported At Local Hospitals

A daughter was born yesterday morning at Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. William P. Beyerle, 852 Gephart Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McCusker, of Little Orleans, announce the birth of a daughter yesterday morning at Allegany hospital.

A daughter was born Thursday night at Memorial hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Arlie T. Lease, of Triple Lakes.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus E. Klavuhn, 211 Railroad Place, announce the birth of a son Tuesday morning at home.

Stolen Automobile Is Located Here

Police yesterday afternoon found an abandoned automobile, owned by Edna C. Haley, of McKeesport, Pa., near the east yards of the B. & O. railroad.

The car's markers, a man's coat and a .22 calibre rifle were found in the machine.

Detective B. Frank Gaffney and Officer Raymond R. Johnson investigated.

Rochester Clinches International Flag

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP) — The Rochester Red Wings clinched the International League Pennant tonight with a 13-0 victory over the Buffalo Bisons. The triumph put them three games ahead of the second place Newark Bears, who were idle, with a record of 95 wins and 60 losses against the Bears' 93 and 64. Each club has three games left to play before the season ends Sunday, but even if the Wings lose their remaining games and Bears win the next three, Rochester will be one percentage point ahead .601 to .600.

Boy Suffers Broken Arm in Gym Class

He was taken to Memorial hospital, by Coach John Long, where the fractured arm was placed in splints. He was later released and taken to his home.

The attorney general's office has ruled the office of superintendent is not under the merit system.

Maxwell, a native of Howard county, was graduated in 1913 from Virginia Polytechnic Institute as a civil engineer.

As Baltimore's assistant harbor engineer, he was co-author of a harbor development system "largely followed by the city" since then, Jones said, and as Frederick city engineer "he was responsible for all of the engineering work of the city."

"Under his direction the city has just completed a million dollar sanitary sewer system and disposal plant. This is only one of the many large municipal improvements made under his supervision."

Jones added that Maxwell "has had wide experience in managing subordinate employes and his splendid record is such as to give assurance that he will make an excellent administrative officer of this institution."

Princesses Out of Town

The little princesses, Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, were not in the palace—(it is understood they have been kept away from London throughout the war)—but their mother and father stayed on beneath the Royal standard in the massive grey palace despite the fact that a time bomb had wrecked a corner of it only last Tuesday.

The only casualties were three palace plumbers, who were injured slightly while at work in the south wing of the palace.

In all, five bombs struck the edifice. But half a mile away, across St. James' Park, other incendiary bombs were showered on the government offices lining Whitehall. Still others fell in Downing street, blind-end lane off Whitehall where Prime Minister Churchill lives, but did no damage.

The British said the raiders tried deliberately to hit the nation's most conspicuous and hallowed structures.

Smash Private Chapel

Two of the bombs fell in the great inner quadrangle. A third smashed the little private chapel in the south wing where the little princesses were christened, scattering and ripping asunder its solid gold altar service and crimson silk furniture.

Two other bombs fell in the broad roadway between the palace gates and the white marble queen victory memorial, a group of heroic figures designed by Sir Thomas Brock.

These last were incendiary bombs, and they were snuffed out by a rush of soldiers.

The bombs which fell in the inner quadrangle tore out big craters, burst a water main and blew out many windows.

Completing its mission at the palace, the bomber dropped high explosives on a famous square (possibly St. James's). Two soldiers who flung themselves to the pavement were cut by flying glass.

A newspaperman, the court reporter for the Exchange Telegraph Company, was in Buckingham Palace road when the plane came over.

The force of the explosions—he said they were "terrific"—threw him to the ground. Pieces of stone and masonry rained down on him, one of them smashing a street lamp.

Smoke billowed up and a few passersby ran for cover.

Two Garrett County Men Are Held for Federal Grand Jury

Frank Walsh, 52, and his son-in-law Cecil Rosenberger, 33, both of Garrett county, who pleaded guilty to violation of federal liquor laws when arraigned Monday before United States Commissioner James Alfred Avirett, yesterday were ordered held for the action of the federal grand jury. Randolph Aiken, assistant United States attorney, presented the case for the government.

Charles E. Cushwa and David H. Walker, of the federal Alochol tax unit, arrested the men Sunday when they raided a forty-gallon still near Finzel.

Rosenberger was released from the county jail yesterday when bond of $1,000 was furnished. Walsh's bond is set at $500.

Edward J. Ryan represented Walsh and Rosenberger.

Rainsburg and Old Germans Play Today

The Cumberland Old German baseball team will continue its drive for its second straight Tri-County League flag today by meeting the hustling Rainsburg (Pa.) Red Sox on the North End Playground at 2:30. The game was originally scheduled for last Sunday but was postponed because of wet grounds.

The Sox are in second place and a win today would place them in a good position to take the second-half crown. However, if the Brewers win, the will just about clinch matters. Manager "Bus" Young has called for a light workout tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in preparation for the tilt.

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T WASTE YOURS

IF YOU get along in the play of a hand to the point where one of the defenders holds the commanding trump, you naturally hope usually to keep him out of the lead, so he can't lay it down and make you play two trumps on it. You would prefer not to waste any of your own in making him use it, but would rather compel him to squander it on a trick which would be lost by you anyway, even if he didn't have the big trump. Once in a coon's age you get a chance to make something like that come about, if you are alert and far seeing.

(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♣
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♠
Pass	4 ♠	Pass	6 ♠

When West led the diamond Q and the dummy went down, the situation looked full of possibilities, but as it developed, they would not have been realized except by a thinker with ability to look ahead. That is exactly who was on the job, Lee Hazen, brilliant New York attorney who is rapidly gaining a reputation as being one of the keenest cardsmen in the nation. Probing the possibilities, he took the diamond Q with the K and laid down the club K, planning a possible ruffing of the suit. Next he cashed the club A.

As the 7 fell from West on this trick, he decided to protect himself against any undue ruffing, so cashed the spade K and A, leaving the Q out. His guess of the club suit proved right, then, when he led the Q, West discarding. So he ruffed the club 3, put the club 8 on the heart A, ruffed a heart, cashed the diamond A, ruffed the diamond 2 with the spade 6, then led a heart. Since East, with the spade Q, had to play before him, Mr. Hazen, with a trump left, was assured one of the last two tricks and his contract. It was nice timing.

Red Cross Still Receiving Funds For War Relief

Total of $10,700 Has Been Contributed in Allegany County

Probably because England is undergoing the most intense air raid in history, contributions to the Allegany County Red Cross Chapter have increased in recent weeks. The total amount raised in the county is now nearing $10,700.

Although the drive was officially closed when the American National Red Cross reached its goal of $20,000,000, contributions received for war relief are being forwarded to the national headquarters in Washington where allocation of money and supplies is made. All contributions are being used solely for relief to war victims. Clothing, medications and surgical supplies are being purchased in this country and sent to the war zone on every available ship.

Recent contributions received by the local chapter include the Cresaptown 4-H Club, $10; Lonaconing Home Makers Club, $4.05; Frostburg branch of the County chapter, $50; Western Maryland Industrial Union Council, $125; Mt. Savage branch, $5.50; Barton branch, $3.50; and individual contributions totaling $10. The September check has been received from the Henry Hart Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for $5, bringing the total from the Post to $40. The Post pledged $5 for every month the emergency continues.

CHAPTER TWENTY

AFTER the shave Gun felt so much better that he was able to watch Tommy tuck away a hearty English breakfast of eggs, bacon, toast and marmalade, of which Sambo was plainly inordinately proud, and decidedly hurt because Gun would not partake.

"It's a barbarian habit to eat breakfast," he pronounced, as he sipped a cup of coffee. "Next door to cannibalism, in my opinion."

"You may be right," said Tommy. "But in that case I'm a barbarian every time."

He took the opportunity to ask, in a low voice, while Sambo was out of the room:

"Look here, microphones or no mikes, we've got to have a powwow pretty soon, you and I. How do we manage—I mean so that we can talk reasonably freely?"

"The only safe place is a nice open space," Gun replied, in the same tone. "After you've finished making a beast of yourself, we'll go out and sit in the sunshine—and in the middle of the lawn."

"Good fellow!" grinned Tommy. "Two heads are better than one!"

Breakfast over, this plan was put into effect. They sprawled on their backs, puffing blue smoke into the air while they talked.

"What about this early birding?" Tommy asked. "I gather you found out something."

"Not much," admitted Gun. "But not so bad, considering. For instance, I discovered that all our guards are actually mechanics. Their hands, as well as their dress, told me that much. Also one is most certainly a Prussian, who has served in the army, and another is almost equally certainly an Italian. His back when I whistled one of his favorite national airs to him gave that away. I also tried him on revolutionary tunes, but the results were negative. All I can say is that they attracted his attention, but whether he loved 'em or hated 'em, I'm damned if I know."

"Hard luck," said Tommy. And then: "Yes, I can see what you're after, I think."

"Well, here's the situation as I see it. The missing bomber hasn't crashed into the sea, or anything like that. She's been pirated and kidnaped, presumably in much the same manner as we were. They know—or suspect—that at Whitehall, and so we were sent up as a little bit of ground bait, so to speak. Well, the fish has swallowed us, all right—but the great question is, what kind of fish is it?"

"You mean, who'd have an interest in pinching our latest planes?"

"That's about it! Now, it might be some move on the part of an international gang of either fascists or communists—hence the trying out of revolutionary tunes. Or it might be an attempt to get planes for Spain—presumably for the government side—the others seem to get plenty. Or it might be just a move by some country that intends to go to war with us soon. Or, again, it might be just a plain gang of mercenary criminals with some need for the latest type of airplanes! That's one of the things we've got to find out!"

"They'll get a hell of a disappointment when they give poor little X. O. O. the once over!" grinned Tommy. "Apart from the fooling with her shape, she's about as up to date as the Ark!"

"Yes," Gun frowned. "But that's a drawback, let me tell you."

"Is it?" Tommy seemed surprised. "Why?"

"Because it may make them suspect that we just allowed ourselves to be caught, as we did. And that's the last thing in the world we want them to think."

"You think we're on an island around the Greek archipelago?" Tommy suggested.

"True enough!" agreed Tommy, gravely. "We'll have to try to think of a way out of that, somehow! Do you think they brought that bomber out here, wherever it is?"

"I imagine so!"

"Well, she had three men aboard. What's happened to them, anyway?"

"They're probably here, somewhere. Perhaps they think it better to keep us apart, so we can't compare notes!"

Tommy was eyeing him gravely.

"You sound a bit doubtful about it, Gun."

"I am!"

"You mean they may have—"

"Been knock on the head. Yes."

"But why knock THEM on the head, and let us live—and like fighting cocks, at that?"

"That's very simple. You're known as an inventor and designer of planes. And I'm supposed to be your assistant, remember! They think they can get something out of us—or out of you, at any rate! That's the answer!"

"By God, but they'll be unlucky," frowned Tommy, an ugly expression coming into his eyes.

"Steady, my friend," Gun admonished him. "Remember we're here for a purpose—and, in order to do that, we've got to play up to them a bit! We—"

But Tommy showed a sudden streak of obstinacy.

"That may be your job, Gun, but it isn't mine. I'm under no sort of orders. And, while I'm always prepared to hold a candle to the devil, I'll be damned if I'll hold so much as a match to a gang of bloody pirates and murderers."

Gun eyed him with some anxiety, foreseeing unexpected complications.

"Look here, Tommy," he said quietly. "Just be sensible, will you? You say you're under no sort of orders—well, you're wrong. You're under MY orders. You were told that before we went up. And—"

"Just a minute!" Tommy's mouth was set in a straight, thin line. "Your mistake! I was acting as your pilot, and under your orders while we were in the air. But we're on the ground now and, without offense, Gun, I don't hold myself at the orders of any civilian!"

And from that position, argue though he might, Gun could not shift him.

Suddenly Gun sat upright.

"Hullo, what's wrong now?"

Gun's face had taken on a peculiar expression. He seemed at once to be staring, listening and smelling.

"What the devil . . .?" Tommy began.

"Has it ever occurred to you that in some ways we possess a sixth sense?" Gun asked, rather dreamily. "A knowledge that comes to us without either seeing, smelling, hearing, touching or tasting—and yet, perhaps, is a combination of all five?"

Tommy looked concerned.

"Here, stow it, Gun. You're flying miles above my head. What are you getting at, anyway?"

"Just this," answered Gun. "If I've been in any part of the world once, and I get to that same part again, without any real knowledge of where I am, I believe that I can tell it. For instance, if I were suddenly transported to, say, Mexico, I believe I should know where I was, after a little while, without any definite clue of any sort. Or in America, or Germany, or England!"

"Well . . .?"

"Just this. Some time ago I happened to be in the Greek archipelago on—a little matter of business—and . . . well, somehow this place FEELS the same to me. That's the only way I can describe it—FEELS!"

"You think, then, that we're on an island somewhere around the Greek archipelago?" exclaimed Tommy, eagerly.

"That's about it!" Gun nodded.

"Well, that's useful—if it's right. If only we knew for certain . . .!"

"Ah," agreed Gun, "if only we knew . . .! Hullo . . .!" he broke off abruptly, then went on: "Here comes the Trent merchant, and not looking too pleased with himself, either. We'd better stroll inside—or we shall have him sticking microphones in the lawn, and we shall want SOMEWHERE where we can talk in safety! Come on!"

When West led the diamond Q and the dummy went down, the situation looked full of possibilities, but as it developed, they would not have been realized except by a thinker with ability to look ahead. That is exactly who was on the job, Lee Hazen, brilliant New York attorney who is rapidly gaining a reputation as being one of the keenest cardsmen in the nation. Probing the possibilities, he took the diamond Q with the K and laid down the club K, planning a possible ruffing of the suit. Next he cashed the club A.

As the 7 fell from West on this trick, he decided to protect himself against any undue ruffing, so cashed the spade K and A, leaving the Q out. His guess of the club suit proved right, then, when he led the Q, West discarding. So he ruffed the club 3, put the club 8 on the heart A, ruffed a heart, cashed the diamond A, ruffed the diamond 2 with the spade 6, then led a heart. Since East, with the spade Q, had to play before him, Mr. Hazen, with a trump left, was assured one of the last two tricks and his contract. It was nice timing.

With the heart K led against South's 4-Spade contract, how should he play for it with each of the four numbered hands as dummy?

Red Cross Still Receiving Funds For War Relief

Total of $10,700 Has Been Contributed in Allegany County

Probably because England is undergoing the most intense air raid in history, contributions to the Allegany County Red Cross Chapter have increased in recent weeks. The total amount raised in the county is now nearing $10,700.

Although the drive was officially closed when the American National Red Cross reached its goal of $20,000,000, contributions received for war relief are being forwarded to the national headquarters in Washington where allocation of money and supplies is made. All contributions are being used solely for relief to war victims. Clothing, medications and surgical supplies are being purchased in this country and sent to the war zone on every available ship.

Recent contributions received by the local chapter include the Cresaptown 4-H Club, $10; Lonaconing Home Makers Club, $4.05; Frostburg branch of the County chapter, $50; Western Maryland Industrial Union Council, $125; Mt. Savage branch, $5.50; Barton branch, $3.50; and individual contributions totaling $10. The September check has been received from the Henry Hart Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, for $5, bringing the total from the Post to $40. The Post pledged $5 for every month the emergency continues.

CHAPTER TWENTY

AFTER the shave Gun felt so much better that he was able to watch Tommy tuck away a hearty English breakfast of eggs, bacon, toast and marmalade, of which Sambo was plainly inordinately proud, and decidedly hurt because Gun would not partake.

"It's a barbarian habit to eat breakfast," he pronounced, as he sipped a cup of coffee. "Next door to cannibalism, in my opinion."

"You may be right," said Tommy. "But in that case I'm a barbarian every time."

He took the opportunity to ask, in a low voice, while Sambo was out of the room:

"Look here, microphones or no mikes, we've got to have a powwow pretty soon, you and I. How do we manage—I mean so that we can talk reasonably freely?"

"The only safe place is a nice open space," Gun replied, in the same tone. "After you've finished making a beast of yourself, we'll go out and sit in the sunshine—and in the middle of the lawn."

"Good fellow!" grinned Tommy. "Two heads are better than one!"

Breakfast over, this plan was put into effect. They sprawled on their backs, puffing blue smoke into the air while they talked.

"What about this early birding?" Tommy asked. "I gather you found out something."

"Not much," admitted Gun. "But not so bad, considering. For instance, I discovered that all our guards are actually mechanics. Their hands, as well as their dress, told me that much. Also one is most certainly a Prussian, who has served in the army, and another is almost equally certainly an Italian. His back when I whistled one of his favorite national airs to him gave that away. I also tried him on revolutionary tunes, but the results were negative. All I can say is that they attracted his attention, but whether he loved 'em or hated 'em, I'm damned if I know."

"Hard luck," said Tommy. And then: "Yes, I can see what you're after, I think."

"Well, here's the situation as I see it. The missing bomber hasn't crashed into the sea, or anything like that. She's been pirated and kidnaped, presumably in much the same manner as we were. They know—or suspect—that at Whitehall, and so we were sent up as a little bit of ground bait, so to speak. Well, the fish has swallowed us, all right—but the great question is, what kind of fish is it?"

"You mean, who'd have an interest in pinching our latest planes?"

"That's about it! Now, it might be some move on the part of an international gang of either fascists or communists—hence the trying out of revolutionary tunes. Or it might be an attempt to get planes for Spain—presumably for the government side—the others seem to get plenty. Or it might be just a move by some country that intends to go to war with us soon. Or, again, it might be just a plain gang of mercenary criminals with some need for the latest type of airplanes! That's one of the things we've got to find out!"

"They'll get a hell of a disappointment when they give poor little X. O. O. the once over!" grinned Tommy. "Apart from the fooling with her shape, she's about as up to date as the Ark!"

"Yes," Gun frowned. "But that's a drawback, let me tell you."

"Is it?" Tommy seemed surprised. "Why?"

"Because it may make them suspect that we just allowed ourselves to be caught, as we did. And that's the last thing in the world we want them to think."

"You think we're on an island around the Greek archipelago?" Tommy suggested.

"True enough!" agreed Tommy, gravely. "We'll have to try to think of a way out of that, somehow! Do you think they brought that bomber out here, wherever it is?"

"I imagine so!"

"Well, she had three men aboard. What's happened to them, anyway?"

"They're probably here, somewhere. Perhaps they think it better to keep us apart, so we can't compare notes!"

Tommy was eyeing him gravely. "You sound a bit doubtful about it, Gun."

"I am!"

"You mean they may have—"

"Been knock on the head. Yes."

"But why knock THEM on the head, and let us live—and like fighting cocks, at that?"

"That's very simple. You're known as an inventor and designer of planes. And I'm supposed to be your assistant, remember! They think they can get something out of us—or out of you, at any rate! That's the answer!"

"By God, but they'll be unlucky," frowned Tommy, an ugly expression coming into his eyes.

"Steady, my friend," Gun admonished him. "Remember we're here for a purpose—and, in order to do that, we've got to play up to them a bit! We—"

But Tommy showed a sudden streak of obstinacy.

"That may be your job, Gun, but it isn't mine. I'm under no sort of orders. And, while I'm always prepared to hold a candle to the devil, I'll be damned if I'll hold so much as a match to a gang of bloody pirates and murderers."

Gun eyed him with some anxiety, foreseeing unexpected complications.

"Look here, Tommy," he said quietly. "Just be sensible, will you? You say you're under no sort of orders—well, you're wrong. You're under MY orders. You were told that before we went up. And—"

"Just a minute!" Tommy's mouth was set in a straight, thin line. "Your mistake! I was acting as your pilot, and under your orders while we were in the air. But we're on the ground now and, without offense, Gun, I don't hold myself at the orders of any civilian!"

And from that position, argue though he might, Gun could not shift him.

Suddenly Gun sat upright.

"Hullo, what's wrong now?"

Gun's face had taken on a peculiar expression. He seemed at once to be staring, listening and smelling.

"What the devil . . .?" Tommy began.

"Has it ever occurred to you that in some ways we possess a sixth sense?" Gun asked, rather dreamily. "A knowledge that comes to us without either seeing, smelling, hearing, touching or tasting—and yet, perhaps, is a combination of all five?"

Tommy looked concerned.

"Here, stow it, Gun. You're flying miles above my head. What are you getting at, anyway?"

"Just this," answered Gun. "If I've been in any part of the world once, and I get to that same part again, without any real knowledge of where I am, I believe that I can tell it. For instance, if I were suddenly transported to, say, Mexico, I believe I should know where I was, after a little while, without any definite clue of any sort. Or in America, or Germany, or England!"

"Well . . .?"

"Just this. Some time ago I happened to be in the Greek archipelago on—a little matter of business—and . . . well, somehow this place FEELS the same to me. That's the only way I can describe it—FEELS!"

"You think, then, that we're on an island somewhere around the Greek archipelago?" exclaimed Tommy, eagerly.

"That's about it!" Gun nodded.

"Well, that's useful—if it's right. If only we knew for certain . . .!"

"Ah," agreed Gun, "if only we knew . . .! Hullo . . .!" he broke off abruptly, then went on: "Here comes the Trent merchant, and not looking too pleased with himself, either. We'd better stroll inside—or we shall have him sticking microphones in the lawn, and we shall want SOMEWHERE where we can talk in safety! Come on!"

Recommended: That Family Cook Have a Work Week of One BIG Day

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

If housewives will do big-scale baking once a week, they can coast the rest of the time with a minimum of actual cooking.

This means a lot in scorching weather.

* * *

On that big day, stir up a batch of cookey dough and a batch of biscuit mix. Prepare a baked meat of fish loaf and assorted salad dressings. Tuck 'em all away in the refrigerator.

Bake fruit or nut bread loaves, berry muffins, loaf cake or gingerbread and a coffee ring. Store carefully and you are set for days.

* * *

FRUIT NUGGETS—Cream together ½ cup each butter and other fat, add 2 cups dark brown sugar, 3 eggs—beaten, ⅓ cup thick sour cream, 2 teaspoons cinnamon and a teaspoon each of salt, cloves, nutmeg and vanilla. Add ⅔ cup chopped dried prunes, ½ cup raisins, ½ cup shredded nuts (pecans, Brazils or peanuts), ½ cup toasted cocoanut 5 cups flour and 2 teaspoons soda. Chill the dough. Bake ten minutes in a moderate oven. These are refrigerator cookies—the dough may be kept in the ice box and used as needed. They will fit any meal.

* * *

STAFFORD LOAF, a new bread, is delicious. It keeps moist several days, when wrapped in waxed paper and kept in the bread box. Mix together 2 cups flour, 1½ cups graham or whole-wheat flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup dark brown sugar, ¼ cup molasses, 1 egg, 1⅔ cups buttermilk (or sour milk), ⅔ cup chopped candied orange peel and 2 tablespoons melted fat. Pour into a greased loaf pan and let rise 15 minutes. Bake an hour in a moderate oven.

* * *

A FRUIT FILLING to set off plain cakes—Beat 3 eggs. Mix in 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup granulated sugar, ¾ cup lemon juice, ⅓ cup orange juice, ½ teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons butter. Cook in double-boiler until thick and creamy. Store the filling in the refrigerator and use as needed.

* * *

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT BROWNIES keep well in summer, provided you hide them from the family. Cream together ½ cup fat and 1 cup of sugar. Add 2 eggs, 2 squares melted chocolate, ¾ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon oil of peppermint, ¼ cup cream, ⅓ cup broken nuts and 1 cup of flour. Beat two minutes. Pour into a shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in bars and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar—with a dash of cinnamon, when serving. These are ideal for accompanying fruit, frozen, or gelatin desserts, or iced beverages.

MIRACLE CAKE

- 2-3 cups sifted cake flour
- 4½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup butter or other shortening
- 2 cups sugar
- 4 eggs, well-beaten
- 1½ cups milk
- 2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and mix well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Use the batter for Prune-Apricot Upside-Down Cake.

* * *

PRUNE-APRICOT UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

- 8 cooked prunes, halved and seeded
- Miracle cake batter
- 4 tablespoons butter
- ½ cup brown sugar, firmly-packed
- 13 cooked apricots

Melt butter in a pan over a low flame. Add sugar. Stir until melted. On this arrange apricots and prunes, cut-side up, alternating an apricot with a prune half. Pour about 1-3 of Miracle cake batter over contents of pan. Bake at once in moderate oven about 50 minutes. Loosen cake from sides and bottom of pan with spatula. Serve upside down on dish with fruit on top. Garnish with whipped cream.

Bacon Sandwich Mix

Try this new bacon and egg sandwich combination. Mix ⅓ cup chopped cooked bacon, 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs, ⅓ teaspoon each of chopped onions, parsley, celery and pickles and 3 tablespoons of salad dressing.

Sherbet Beverage

Here is a refreshing summer drink: Place a quart of pineapple sherbet in a bowl, add a quart of gingerale. Beat up for a minute with an egg beater and then quickly pour into tall glasses, very cold. Tuck in fresh mint leaves.

New Roast Baste

Try this new baste for roast veal or lamb: Mix two-thirds cup apricot juice, one-fourth cup each pineapple and orange juices and two tablespoons vinegar. Baste the cooking roast every twenty minutes.

The Word "Roux"

The word "roux" means to blend fat and flour together and then use it for thickening soups, gravies, stews and sauces.

In Mashing Avacadoes

A Dressy Cold Meat

Jellied tongue is festive looking—and tastes delicious—on a summer cold meat plate. Mold a boiled tongue in a tart lemon gelatin. Unmold it on a platter, garnish it with hard-cooked egg slices and cress or parsley. This is grand for luncheon or party when you do not mind going to a little extra fuss.

Waste Not!

Codfish Separators

To separate dried salt codfish, hold it under running cold water. Wash it well in more cold water to remove the excess salt and then use it as desired.

WHY is Domino the preferred sugar? Because it's 100% pure sugar-cane sugar. Famous for fine quality.

Meat Pie Crust

You can pep up crusts for meat or chicken pies by mixing in with the dry ingredients ¼ teaspoon each of chopped parsley, celery salt and paprika for each 2 cups of flour used.

Seasoning Hint

Try catsup or chili sauce in squash, peas, cauliflower or corn. For each 2 cups of cooked vegetable add 2 or 3 tablespoons of catsup. Cook long enough to blend.

Breakfast Surprise

Adds Flavor

A little lemon juice and strained honey—both chilled—served atop chilled berries (raspberries, blueberries, huckleberries) give a grand flavor.

Recommended: That Family Cook Have a Work Week of One BIG Day

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Feature Service Writer

If housewives will do big-scale baking once a week, they can coast the rest of the time with a minimum of actual cooking.

This means a lot in scorching weather.

* * *

On that big day, stir up a batch of cookey dough and a batch of biscuit mix. Prepare a baked meat of fish loaf and assorted salad dressings. Tuck 'em all away in the refrigerator.

Bake fruit or nut bread loaves, berry muffins, loaf cake or gingerbread and a coffee ring. Store carefully and you are set for days.

* * *

FRUIT NUGGETS—Cream together ½ cup each butter and other fat, add 2 cups dark brown sugar, 3 eggs—beaten, ½ cup thick sour cream, 2 teaspoons cinnamon and a teaspoon each of salt, cloves, nutmeg and vanilla. Add 3½ cup chopped dried prunes, ½ cup raisins, ½ cup shredded nuts (pecans, Brazils or peanuts), ½ cup toasted cocoanut 5 cups flour and 2 teaspoons soda. Chill the dough. Bake ten minutes in a moderate oven. These are refrigerator cookies—the dough may be kept in the ice box and used as needed. They will fit any meal.

* * *

STAFFORD LOAF, a new bread, is delicious. It keeps moist several days, when wrapped in waxed paper and kept in the bread box. Mix together 2 cups flour, 1½ cups graham or whole-wheat flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup dark brown sugar, ¼ cup molasses, 1 egg, 1⅞ cups buttermilk (or sour milk), ⅔ cup chopped candied orange peel and 2 tablespoons melted fat. Pour into a greased loaf pan and let rise 15 minutes. Bake an hour in a moderate oven.

* * *

A FRUIT FILLING to set off plain cakes—Beat 3 eggs. Mix in 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup granulated sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, ⅓ cup orange juice, ½ teaspoon salt and 3 tablespoons butter. Cook in double-boiler until thick and creamy. Store the filling in the refrigerator and use as needed.

* * *

CHOCOLATE PEPPERMINT BROWNIES keep well in summer, provided you hide them from the family. Cream together ½ cup fat and 1 cup of sugar. Add 2 eggs, 2 squares melted chocolate, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon oil of peppermint, ¼ cup cream, ⅔ cup broken nuts and 1 cup of flour. Beat two minutes. Pour into a shallow pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 25 minutes in a moderate oven. Cut in bars and sprinkle with confectioner's sugar—with a dash of cinnamon, when serving. These are ideal for accompanying fruit, frozen, or gelatin desserts, or iced beverages.

MIRACLE CAKE

1 2-3 cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup butter or other shortening
2 cups sugar
4 eggs, well-beaten
1½ cups milk
2 teaspoons vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs and mix well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Use the batter for Prune-Apricot Upside-Down Cake.

PRUNE-APRICOT UPSIDE DOWN CAKE

8 cooked prunes, halved and seeded
Miracle cake batter
4 tablespoons butter
½ cup brown sugar, firmly-packed
13 cooked apricots

Melt butter in a pan over a low flame. Add sugar. Stir until melted. On this arrange apricots and prunes, cut-side up, alternating an apricot with a prune half. Pour about 1-3 of Miracle cake batter over contents of pan. Bake at once in moderate oven about 50 minutes. Loosen cake from sides and bottom of pan with spatula. Serve upside down on dish with fruit on top. Garnish with whipped cream.

Bacon Sandwich Mix

Try this new bacon and egg sandwich combination. Mix ⅓ cup chopped cooked bacon, 2 chopped hard-cooked eggs, ⅓ teaspoon each of chopped onions, parsley, celery and pickles and 3 tablespoons of salad dressing.

Sherbet Beverage

Here is a refreshing summer drink: Place a quart of pineapple sherbet in a bowl, add a quart of gingerale. Beat up for a minute with an egg beater and then quickly pour into tall glasses, very cold. Tuck in fresh mint leaves.

New Roast Baste

Try this new baste for roast veal or lamb: Mix two-thirds cup apricot juice, one-fourth cup each pineapple and orange juices and two tablespoons vinegar. Baste the cooking roast every twenty minutes.

The Word "Roux"

The word "roux" means to blend fat and flour together and then use it for thickening soups, gravies, stews and sauces.

In Mashing Avacadoes

A Dressy Cold Meat

Jellied tongue is festive looking—and tastes delicious—on a summer cold meat plate. Mold a boiled tongue in a tart lemon gelatin. Unmold it on a platter, garnish it with hard-cooked egg slices and cress or parsley. This is grand for luncheon or party when you do not mind going to a little extra fuss.

Waste Not!

Codfish Separators

To separate dried salt codfish, hold it under running cold water. Wash it well in more cold water to remove the excess salt and then use it as desired.

Meat Pie Crust

You can pep up crusts for meat or chicken pies by mixing in with the dry ingredients ½ teaspoon each of chopped parsley, celery salt and paprika for each 2 cups of flour used.

Seasoning Hint

Try catsup or chili sauce in squash, peas, cauliflower or corn. For each 2 cups of cooked vegetable add 2 or 3 tablespoons of catsup. Cook long enough to blend.

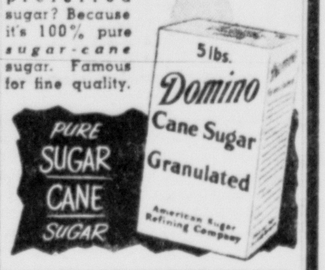

Breakfast Surprise

Adds Flavor

WHY is Domino the preferred sugar? Because it's 100% pure sugar-cane sugar. Famous for fine quality.

Whither shall I go from Thy spirit? or whither shall I flee from Thy presence? If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there: if I make my bed in hell, behold Thou art there.

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shalt Thy hand lead me, and Thy right hand shall hold me, declares the psalmist.

If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from Thee; . . . the darkness and the light are alike to Thee.

Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 14:23.)

The Ever-Present God

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 15 is Psalm 139, the Golden Text being John 14:23, "If a man love Me, he will keep my words: and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with Him.")

THIS IS our last lesson on the psalms for some time, and this 139th psalm is a beautiful one with which to close this series of lessons. We do not know when this psalm was written, only, from its title we know it to be in the time of David; and nothing in the psalm indicates at what place it was written.

It is written in a devout mood, when the psalmist realized how omniscent—all present—is God; that the creator of man must know everything about him, his bodily makeup, his nature, his soul and spirit.

"Thou knowest my downsittings and mine uprisings; Thou understandest my thought afar off."

Have you ever tried to read another person's thoughts? All of us have at some time when we were very anxious to get the other's reactions to something. Sometimes we can do it very well, too, when the minds of both of us are occupied by the same trend of thought. But if the person whose thought we are trying to read does not want us to know what he is thinking, he can put on a "poker face," a mask of expressionlessness, and we cannot tell what his thoughts are.

We cannot do that with our Creator. He made us and He knows how our minds work because He created every bit of us. If our thoughts are not good, it is a startling thing to think that they are known—a strong incentive to keep our thoughts on higher things.

The psalmist's thought goes further, to the impossibility of escaping or hiding from the Maker. We can hide from our parents, from our playmates and friends. We can often hide from the government for a time, at least, if we have done enough wrong to warrant police search for us. But from the Maker of all we cannot hide. In most beautiful language the psalmist illustrates this thought:

"Whither shall I go from Thy spirit?
Or whither shall I flee from Thy presence?
If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there:
If I make my bed in Sheol (hell), behold Thou art there.
If I take the wings of the morning,
And dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;
Even there shall Thy hand lead me,
And Thy right hand shall hold me.
If I say: Surely the darkness shall overwhelm me,
And the light about me shall be night;
Even the darkness hideth not from Thee,
Bnt the night shineth as the day:
The darkness and the light are both alike to Thee."

This should be a comforting thought, not a frightening one. God made us, He knows us—our weakness and strength—and He is with us always, in darkness and light, in joy and sorrow.

Suddenly the psalmist turns from this happy and peaceful thought to one, seemingly of anger and hatred, urging God to slay the wicked and asserting his hatred for the enemies of the Lord. Thinking of God as love, justice, truth, righteousness, it is easy to feel intense anger at the wickedness, hatred, falsehood, cruelty, injustice we see on every hand. We can be filled with love, sympathy and understanding toward all men, but feel still a burning hatred of all this wickedness. Even Jesus showed a righteous anger toward those who defamed God's house, and showed it by driving the cheating money changers from the temple.

The last two verses of the psalm are a prayer and an opening of the heart to Jehovah:

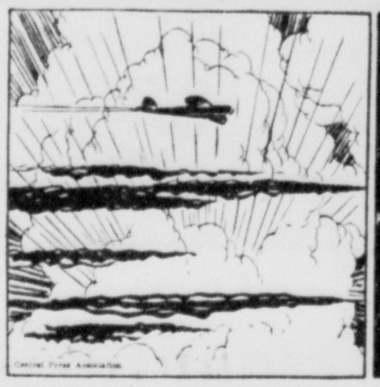

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts:

And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Our Golden Text is taken from John 14:23, where Jesus answers one Judas, not Judas Iscariot, saying: If a man love Me, he will keep My words: and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with him."

If I take the wings of the morning, and dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea; even there shalt Thy hand lead me, and Thy right hand shall hold me, declares the psalmist.

If I say, Surely the darkness shall cover me; even the night shall be light about me. Yea, the darkness hideth not from Thee; . . . the darkness and the light are alike to Thee.

Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts: And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 14:23.)

The Ever-Present God

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Sept. 15 is Psalm 139, the Golden Text being John 14:23, "If a man love Me, he will keep my words: and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with Him.")

THIS IS our last lesson on the psalms for some time, and this 139th psalm is a beautiful one with which to close this series of lessons. We do not know when this psalm was written, only, from its title we know it to be in the time of David; and nothing in the psalm indicates at what place it was written.

It is written in a devout mood, when the psalmist realized how omniscent—all present—is God; that the creator of man must know everything about him, his bodily makeup, his nature, his soul and spirit.

"Thou knowest my downsittings and mine uprisings; Thou understandest my thought afar off."

Have you ever tried to read another person's thoughts? All of us have at some time when we were very anxious to get the other's reactions to something. Sometimes we can do it very well, too, when the minds of both of us are occupied by the same trend of thought. But if the person whose thought we are trying to read does not want us to know what he is thinking, he can put on a "poker face," a mask of expressionlessness, and we cannot tell what his thoughts are.

We cannot do that with our Creator. He made us and He knows how our minds work because He created every bit of us. If our thoughts are not good, it is a startling thing to think that they are known—a strong incentive to keep our thoughts on higher things.

The psalmist's thought goes further, to the impossibility of escaping or hiding from the Maker. We can hide from our parents, from our playmates and friends. We can often hide from the government for a time, at least, if we have done enough wrong to warrant police search for us. But from the Maker of all we cannot hide. In most beautiful language the psalmist illustrates this thought:

"Whither shall I go from Thy spirit?
Or whither shall I flee from Thy presence?
If I ascend up into heaven, Thou art there:
If I make my bed in Sheol (hell), behold Thou art there.
If I take the wings of the morning,
And dwell in the uttermost parts of the sea;
Even there shall Thy hand lead me,
And Thy right hand shall hold me.
If I say: Surely the darkness shall overwhelm me,
And the light about me shall be night;
Even the darkness hideth not from Thee,
Bnt the night shineth as the day:
The darkness and the light are both alike to Thee."

This should be a comforting thought, not a frightening one. God made us, He knows us—our weakness and strength—and He is with us always, in darkness and light, in joy and sorrow.

Suddenly the psalmist turns from this happy and peaceful thought to one, seemingly of anger and hatred, urging God to slay the wicked and asserting his hatred for the enemies of the Lord. Thinking of God as love, justice, truth, righteousness, it is easy to feel intense anger at the wickedness, hatred, falsehood, cruelty, injustice we see on every hand. We can be filled with love, sympathy and understanding toward all men, but feel still a burning hatred of all this wickedness. Even Jesus showed a righteous anger toward those who defamed God's house, and showed it by driving the cheating money changers from the temple.

The last two verses of the psalm are a prayer and an opening of the heart to Jehovah:

"Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts:

And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Our Golden Text is taken from John 14:23, where Jesus answers one Judas, not Judas Iscariot, saying: If a man love Me, he will keep My words: and My Father will love him, and We will come unto him, and make Our abode with him."

THE DAILY STORY

WITHOUT CLUES

The Motive Was So Simple That the Town's Most Sensational Murder Nearly Went Unsolved

By WALLACE K. NORMAN

The murder was utterly baffling, a Grade A murder mystery. There were no clues; no suspects, and, probably, most baffling at all, no motive.

Mrs. Elvie Andrews, age 55, without an enemy in the world, had been murdered on her own front porch at dusk while reading the evening paper. Her husband, gentle, easy going old Bill Andrews, was found beside her unconscious, his hair matted with blood from a nearly fatal blow on the side of his head.

News of the crime reached Hy Stevens, chief of Bensonville's four-man police force, while he was in Mercy Hospital recuperating from an appendicitis operation. Chief

"There isn't a clue."

Stevens, a bachelor, had lived next door to Bill and Elvie Andrews for 35 years. They were his closest friends. On their return from their honeymoon he had watched them walk hand in hand up onto the vine-covered porch upon which Elvie had just been murdered. The police chief's mouth was pulled down. A strange, indescribable emotion worked savagely in his face as he lay staring up at the white hospital ceiling.

A few hours after the discovery of the murder Bensonville's young mayor called upon Chief Stevens.

"There isn't a clue," the mayor said. "Hy, I still can't believe she's dead. Elvie Andrews had no enemies. Why, she was like a mother to half of this town. Everybody knew her, everybody loved her. She took care of me for a month when I was a kid and my folks were down with typhoid." Tears threatened. "Hy, I'm going to phone for the state police."

Stevens sat up in bed with a jerk despite the stab of pain from his side. His face was hard, his eyes masked by a peculiar, challenging secretiveness that made the young mayor back off in surprise.

"You keep those state cops out of this, Mr. Mayor," Stevens ordered. "The Bensonville force'll handle this. I've told Jimmy Gort what to do. Now, go away an' leave me rest. I'm a sick man."

His honor argued vehemently, but to no avail. Finally he stormed out of the hospital in anger and disgust.

Five days after the murder of Elvie Andrews, Police Sergeant Jimmy Gort paid one of innumerable visits to his bedridden chief. The sergeant's eyes were red from lack of sleep, his face weary.

"It's no use, chief," he announced. "Me an' the other two boys've worked ourselves dizzy. There ain't a clue as to who killed Elvie. Nor is there a soul we even think did it. And we can't find any reason for anybody wantin' to do it."

Stevens had watched the sergeant through narrow, alert eyes. His shoulders seemed to relax.

"Look," he said, still watching Gort closely, "repeat just what Bill Andrews told you about what he knows."

"It was after supper," Gort told him. "They went out on the front porch, like they always did. Elvie was readin' the evenin' paper. Bill was dozin' in his chair. The next thing he knew Charley Meyers an' I was pickin' him up, tryin' to stop the blood from that wallop on the head he got. Whoever it was that clubbed Elvie an killed her must've sneaked up an' hit Bill first. That's all he could tell us, Hy."

Chief Stevens looked away. Again the peculiar secretiveness burned in his deep-set eyes. The fingers of his right hand opened and closed twice.

"Poor ol' Bill," the sergeant's voice cut in. 'It's heartbreakin' to see him now. He can't believe Elvie's gone. Last evenin', just at dusk, I dropped past his place. He was settin' out on the porch, looking' sick, an' old, an' so lonesome, it put a lump in my throat. 'Hello, Jimmy,' he says. 'Set down an' talk to me. Have you got a evenin' paper? . . . I came out here to take a nap. But I can't sleep. An' I always thought I could'."

Sgt. Gort moved suddenly. Fierce, angry determination burned in his blunt face.

"Hy," he said, "youre treatin' your own best friend like a dog. This here mystery's too much for us boys to solve. An' I'll rot before I see Elvie Andrews' murderer get away clean!" Determination gave way to defiance. "I know you won't let the mayor call in the state police—well, I'm gonna call 'em, an you can't stop me!"

Stevens started violently, then sank back on his bed. His deep-set eyes were hopeless, misery laden.

"Wait," he said, and picking up a pencil from his bedstand, scribbled a note, which he sealed. "Give this here note to Bill Andrews," he mumbled. "Then, if you feel like callin' the state fellers—well, go ahead."

Thirty minutes later Gort returned to the hospital room. He stood and stared numbly incredulous at his chief.

He managed, "The mystery's solved. Elvie's murderer is in jail." He gulped, trying futilely to swallow. "But, Hy, so help me God, I can't believe it. He loved her. He couldn't have killed her."

"Stevens didn't look at him. "He admitted it?" is all he said.

Gort nodded dumbly. "Yeh. He read your note an' just set down an' bawled an' said, 'I'm glad it's over. There ain't any use lyin'. Hy knows I done it. Take me to jail, Jimmy'."

The strange emotion Chief Hy Stevens had sought to hide was no longer hidden.

"I've known he'd do it for the last 30 years," he said. "Least, I was afraid he would. Every evenin' Bill and Elvie'd sit out on the porch. I used to watch 'em from my place, next door. She'd read the paper; he'd try to nap. But he never could, because Elvie rattled the paper so much, turnin' the pages. He'd keep wakin' up, an' I used to see the slipper on his right foot waggle up an' down, like he wanted to take it off—"

The sergeant blinked his eyes, then sat heavily on the edge of his chief's bed.

"Finally, the other evenin'," Stevens went on, "kind, gentle ol' Bill did it. The heel of the slipper caught Elvie in the temple. Then seein' what he'd don, Bill fainted, crackin' his head on the floor, makin' it look as if he'd been slugged, too."

Sgt. Jimmy shuddered, running a hand over his face.

"You knew that all the time, Hy?" he asked.

"I was pretty sure," Stevens nodded. "But, when you told me awhile ago that Bill'd said, 'Have you got a evenin' paper? . . . I came out here to nap, and I can't sleep. An' I always thought I could,' I knew it. But I was hopin' against hope you an' the other boys'd find it our yourselves. Ol' Bill's my best friend. I didn't want to be the one to arrest him. Nor I didnt want the state fellers to arrest him. They'd of treated him like—like a murderer. An' Bill ain't that. He loved Elvie. But he just couldn't stand that rattlin' newspaper anymore—" His voice trailed off into lonely nothingness.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Gort nodded dumbly. "Yeh. He read your note an' just set down an' bawled an' said, 'I'm glad it's over. There ain't any use lyin'. Hy knows I done it. Take me to jail, Jimmy'."

The strange emotion Chief Hy Stevens had sought to hide was no longer hidden.

"I've known he'd do it for the last 30 years," he said. "Least, I was afraid he would. Every evenin' Bill and Elvie'd sit out on the porch. I used to watch 'em from my place, next door. She'd read the paper; he'd try to nap. But he never could, because Elvie rattled the paper so much, turnin' the pages. He'd keep wakin' up, an' I used to see the slipper on his right foot waggle up an' down, like he wanted to take it off—"

The sergeant blinked his eyes, then sat heavily on the edge of his chief's bed.

"Finally, the other evenin'," Stevens went on, "kind, gentle ol' Bill did it. The heel of the slipper caught Elvie in the temple. Then seein' what he'd don, Bill fainted, crackin' his head on the floor, makin' it look as if he'd been slugged, too."

Sgt. Jimmy shuddered, running a hand over his face.

"You knew that all the time, Hy?" he asked.

"I was pretty sure," Stevens nodded. "But, when you told me awhile ago that Bill'd said, 'Have you got a evenin' paper? . . . I came out here to nap, and I can't sleep. An' I always thought I could,' I knew it. But I was hopin' against hope you an' the other boys'd find it our yourselves. Ol' Bill's my best friend. I didn't want to be the one to arrest him. Nor I didnt want the state fellers to arrest him. They'd of treated him like—like a murderer. An' Bill ain't that. He loved Elvie. But he just couldn't stand that rattlin' newspaper anymore—" His voice trailed off into lonely nothingness.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

Gay, Versatile Style for Tots

Marian Martin

PATTERN 9345

There's plenty of colorful inspiration for your sewing needle in Pattern 9345 — a gay Marian Martin style for youngsters. Stitched up in its several different versions, it can make a whole wardrobeful of bright, pretty changes. For instance, one frock shows perky ruffles that spring out from the bodice seams, front and back. And another version uses fresh contrast edged with ruffling for the bib-like yoke. Directions are even included in the helpful Sew Chart for making a sleeveless pinafore-apron from this simple panelled style.

Pattern 9345 may be ordered only in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress with ruffles, requires 1¾ yards 35 inch fabric, ¼ yard contrast; other dress, 1¾ yards 35 inch fabric, ¾ yard contrast and 1⅛ yards ruffling.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Your Fashion Future is in the new Marian Martin Pattern Book . . . just off the press! A brilliant forecast of Fall and Winter, with stunning costumes for every age and type. Class Segregation Is Often Unfair, Educator Declares

Children Who Are Back In Studies May Have Physical Handicaps

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Many school departments make special provision for so-called exceptional children, including the visually handicapped, the hard-of-hearing, those with valvular heart disease, and those presumably in danger of developing tuberculosis.

The last group are provided for in open air classrooms, and are variously described as delicate, undernourished, underweight and of lowered vitality. Because these open air classrooms have been stimulated largely by local tuberculosis associations, the National Association has felt a responsibility to review the problem and appointed a committee for that purpose. The committee's conclusions should be of interest to many parents whose children have been examined and classified in this way.

Malnutrition is a loosely used term. Underweight is not necessarily a symptom of malnutrition, nor are all undernourished children underweight. A child may appear below par or anemic but the idea has been abandoned that these symptoms indicate necessarily a predisposition to tuberculosis. The crucial inquiry is as to whether there has been contact or association with an active case. The term "pre-tuberculosis" is no longer acceptable and its use should be discarded.

Unbalanced Food

Children may be "below par" temporarily on account of recent illness or operation. Or because of unbalanced or badly selected food at home, or other kinds of unhygienic surroundings at home. They should emphatically not be segregaed with children that actually have tuberculosis infection.

Special classes for exceptional children have undoubtedly made a contribution to the improved health of school children. One type, the open air, has emphasized fresh air, food and rest. Fresh air has mistakenly been interpreted as meaning large volumes of outdoor air regardless of temperature. But recent studies have shown that cool air in gentle motion provides the best condition for comfort and for health.

Supplementary feeding at school is open to question. Adequate food and regular meals at home are best. Whatever the cause of inadequate food may be, the solution lies not in special classes but in home adjustments.

Danger in Segregation

The school physician, nurse, and teacher can select the below-par group and by follow-up study and by conferences with the parents at the home, gain the best understanding of the underlying causes of the condition. Segregation in special classes is not necessary and is detrimental to the child's education and social development. The responsibility of the below-par child should be emphatically be shared by and divided between the home and the school.

If it is definitely established that a child actually has tuberculosis infection, it should be segregated and treated as an exceptional case. But is is definitely felt that too many children have heretofore been put in that group. The system appeals to a lazy and sloppy way of handling the problem, but more and more emphasis is being placed on individualization in adjusting such conditions. Every child is a person, at least so far up to this year of grace in this country.

Questions and Answers

T. B. P.:—"What causes the toe nails to thicken and become loose?"

Answer—Almost always this is a sign of infection of the nail bed. Sometimes it is a ringworm infection, sometimes a sluggish pus infection. In severe cases it is necessary to treat the nail bed surgically.

M. M.:—"After one's thyroid gland has been removed will thyroid tablets have any effect when taken to reduce?"

Answer—Yes, thyroid extract has the same effect on the body under all circumstances.

N. D. A.:—"I am troubled with severe twitching in the nerves in my face. Is there anything that would cure it?"

Poultry Industry's Troubles Discussed At College Park

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 13 (AP) — Some of the egg and poultry industry's merchandising and marketing trouble were blamed here upon a "loose system of handling grading and marketing."

Henry G. F. Hamann of the of U. S. Department of Agriculture's marketing service, described coperative efforts in the middle west to improve these conditions, in an adress to 100 wholesalers, retailers, district managers, graders and producers from sixteen states at the University of Maryland's "poultry school."

In the mid-west, he said, egg marketing cooperatives and farsighted operators are "recognizing the need and desirability of buying and selling eggs on a graded basis.

"On the Pacific coast, where intensified areas of production were first developed, this movement has gained great momentum. A conscientious effort is being made to develop standards and grades that are based on the needs of the particular market to which the eggs or poultry are being shipped."

Harry E. Chapline, Newspaperman, Dies

FREDRICK, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Harry E. Chapline, 71, newspaperman and former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, died Thursday in University Hospital, Baltimore, after an operation last week.

Chapline, a correspondent for the Baltimore Sun, served a term on the board of election supervisors here, and for sixteen years as a deputy in the clerk of court's office.

A native of Jefferson County, W. Va., he was the son of the late Isaac Thomas and Laura Schley Chapline, and moved to Frederick, his mother's birthplace, in 1886.

A bachelor, Chapline is survived by a brother, Thomas, former Frederick county treasurer, and a sister, Mrs. W. W. Osburn, both of Frederick.

Mediation of Rail Clerks Fight Asked

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—L. W. Reigel, vice grand president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, announced today that services of the national mediation board had been invoked by the brotherhood to mediate the dispute between the brotherhood and the N. & W. Clerks' Association, an independent union, over representation of clerical, station, and storehouse employes on the Norfolk & Western Railway.

The N. & W. Clerks Association was certified by the mediation board as collective bargaining agents for clerical, station, and storehouse employes on the railroad after an election which the association won by a small majority.

Since then the brotherhood has continued its campaign on the N. & W., Reigel said, adding that the brotherhood has lodges in Roanoke, Norfolk, Crew, Bluefield, and Williamson, W. Va., and that local lodges are now in the process of organization at Lynchburg, Winston Salem, N. C., Portsmouth and Columbus, O.

The federal tribunal of Switzerland, the Bundes Gericht, consists of from twenty-six to twenty-eight members, with nine supplementary judges.

Good Sleeping Habits Cure For Jitters

Nervous Child Should Get Proper Rest to Thrive

..By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D...

In my earnest appeals to make this column useful to my readers, nothing heartens me so much as the letters I receive which give evidence that something I wrote here, or something I wrote in personal answer to a letter from a reader, actually worked.

From a mother whose husband is a public school administrator with considerable responsibility has come the following:

"My Dear Dr. Myers: Perhaps you will recall that I wrote you in the late summer of 1939, asking your help on some probelms. I have meant to write you long before and thank you for your assistance. I wanted to be sure that your suggestions were actually working, and now, after almost six months, I can enthusiastically say they are!

"My children are a girl, who will be six in June, and a boy, who will be two in May. They have both profited by your sound and practical advice to me, and I shall ever be grateful. I felt almost at the end of my rope when I wrote you, but everything has worked out in fine shape.

The Matter of Sleep

"I was reading your article in last night's paper about the restless nervous child whose parents say 'requires less sleep than most children.' Both of my children are the nervous type, but thanks to you and your suggestions, they have excellent sleeping habits now, and have lost the peevishness that had accompanied their nervous energy before. The younger sleeps from twelve to thirteen hours at night, with a two hour nap in the daytime, and the older sleeps about eleven and a half or twelve hours at night. And the fact that they are both in bed at seven, leaving a quiet house and a peaceful evening, has had a decided effect on the serenity of their mother. I shall always be thankful to you for your help at a time when I was in need of such sound advice.

"P. S. your suggestion that the older child be granted privileges not given the younger has worked out very well. She has assumed her responsibilities and felt she has earned her privileges. It's a grand scheme!"

Advice Easy to Give

Obviously this letter is more of a compliment to the mother who wrote it than to me. Advice is relatively easy to give, even good advice. To carry it out and get desired results is what takes effort and will power. I know for I am a parent myself. Therefore, whether it's my advice in this column, or special advice I send you in reply to your letters, which you try to follow but fail, please don't be too hard on yourself; and maybe you will also not be very hard on me.

You may have a chart of desirable hours of sleep at various ages by writing me at 235 E. 45th st., New York City, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should "finders be keepers?"

A. No. When your little child brings home a toy he says he has found, accept his statement that he found it, but tell him "We must try to find the owner." Let him see you put up a sign in front of the house, about it. Then if no one comes to claim it in due time, send the toy to a child welfare orfianization. If it is money he finds, have him put in a fund for relief, church, or mission. Under no conditions should he use what he has found—not if you want this child to acquire good attitudes toward the possessions of others.

Q. What is a good way to prevent stubbornness from developing in the child from three to six?

A. Except for routines, avoid commanding the child, therefore, avoid punishing him to make him do things. Limit punishments to keeping him from doing a few forbidden things. Trust to requests, patience and your genius at winning his cooperation.

American farm income, in 1939, including government payments, was 200 to 300 million dollars higher than in 1938.

Supplementary feeding at school is open to question. Adequate food and regular meals at home are best. Whatever the cause of inadequate food may be, the solution lies not in special classes but in home adjustments.

Danger in Segregation

The school physician, nurse, and teacher can select the below-par group and by follow-up study and by conferences with the parents at the home, gain the best understanding of the underlying causes of the condition. Segregation in special classes is not necessary and is detrimental to the child's education and social development. The responsibility of the below-par child should be emphatically be shared by and divided between the home and the school.

If it is definitely established that a child actually has tuberculosis infection, it should be segregated and treated as an exceptional case. But is is definitely felt that too many children have heretofore been put in that group. The system appeals to a lazy and sloppy way of handling the problem, but more and more emphasis is being placed on individualization in adjusting such conditions. Every child is a person, at least so far up to this year of grace in this country.

Questions and Answers

T. B. P.:—"What causes the toe nails to thicken and become loose?"

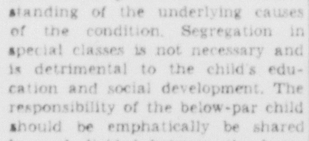

Answer—Almost always this is a sign of infection of the nail bed. Sometimes it is a ringworm infection, sometimes a sluggish pus infection. In severe cases it is necessary to treat the nail bed surgically.

M. M.:—"After one's thyroid gland has been removed will thyroid tablets have any effect when taken to reduce?"

Answer—Yes, thyroid extract has the same effect on the body under all circumstances.

N. D. A.:—"I am troubled with severe twitching in the nerves in my face. Is there anything that would cure it?"

Poultry Industry's Troubles Discussed At College Park

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Sept. 13 (AP) — Some of the egg and poultry industry's merchandising and marketing trouble were blamed here upon a "loose system of handling grading and marketing."

Henry G. F. Hamann of the of U. S. Department of Agriculture's marketing service, described cooperative efforts in the middle west to improve these conditions, in an adress to 100 wholesalers, retailers, district managers, graders and producers from sixteen states at the University of Maryland's "poultry school."

In the mid-west, he said, egg marketing cooperatives and farsighted operators are "recognizing the need and desirability of buying and selling eggs on a graded basis.

"On the Pacific coast, where intensified areas of production were first developed, this movement has gained great momentum. A conscientious effort is being made to develop standards and grades that are based on the needs of the particular market to which the eggs or poultry are being shipped."

Harry E. Chapline, Newspaperman, Dies

FREDRICK, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Harry E. Chapline, 71, newspaperman and former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, died Thursday in University Hospital, Baltimore, after an operation last week.

Chapline, a correspondent for the Baltimore Sun, served a term on the board of election supervisors here, and for sixteen years as a deputy in the clerk of court's office.

A native of Jefferson County, W. Va., he was the son of the late Isaac Thomas and Laura Schley Chapline, and moved to Frederick, his mother's birthplace, in 1886.

A bachelor, Chapline is survived by a brother, Thomas, former Frederick county treasurer, and a sister, Mrs. W. W. Osburn, both of Frederick.

Mediation of Rail Clerks Fight Asked

ROANOKE, Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—L. W. Reigel, vice grand president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks, announced today that services of the national mediation board had been invoked by the brotherhood to mediate the dispute between the brotherhood and the N. & W. Clerks' Association, an independent union, over representation of clerical, station, and storehouse employes on the Norfolk & Western Railway.

The N. & W. Clerks Association was certified by the mediation board as collective bargaining agents for clerical, station, and storehouse employes on the railroad after an election which the association won by a small majority.

Since then the brotherhood has continued its campaign on the N. & W., Reigel said, adding that the brotherhood has lodges in Roanoke, Norfolk, Crew, Bluefield, and Williamson, W. Va., and that local lodges are now in the process of organization at Lynchburg, Winston Salem, N. C., Portsmouth and Columbus, O.

Good Sleeping Habits Cure For Jitters

Nervous Child Should Get Proper Rest to Thrive

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

In my earnest appeals to make this column useful to my readers, nothing heartens me so much as the letters I receive which give evidence that something I wrote here, or something I wrote in personal answer to a letter from a reader, actually worked.

From a mother whose husband is a public school administrator with considerable responsibility has come the following:

"My Dear Dr. Myers: Perhaps you will recall that I wrote you in the late summer of 1939, asking your help on some probelms. I have meant to write you long before and thank you for your assistance. I wanted to be sure that your suggestions were actually working, and now, after almost six months, I can enthusiastically say they are!

"My children are a girl, who will be six in June, and a boy, who will be two in May. They have both profited by your sound and practical advice to me, and I shall ever be grateful. I felt almost at the end of my rope when I wrote you, but everything has worked out in fine shape.

The Matter of Sleep

"I was reading your article in last night's paper about the restless nervous child whose parents say 'requires less sleep than most children.' Both of my children are the nervous type, but thanks to you and your suggestions, they have excellent sleeping habits now, and have lost the peevishness that had accompanied their nervous energy before. The younger sleeps from twelve to thirteen hours at night, with a two hour nap in the daytime, and the older sleeps about eleven and a half or twelve hours at night. And the fact that they are both in bed at seven, leaving a quiet house and a peaceful evening, has had a decided effect on the serenity of their mother. I shall always be thankful to you for your help at a time when I was in need of such sound advice.

"P. S. your suggestion that the older child be granted privileges not given the younger has worked out very well. She has assumed her responsibilities and felt she has earned her privileges. It's a grand scheme!"

Advice Easy to Give

Obviously this letter is more of a compliment to the mother who wrote it than to me. Advice is relatively easy to give, even good advice. To carry it out and get desired results is what takes effort and will power. I know for I am a parent myself. Therefore, whether it's my advice in this column, or special advice I send you in reply to your letters, which you try to follow but fail, please don't be too hard on yourself; and maybe you will also not be very hard on me.

You may have a chart of desirable hours of sleep at various ages by writing me at 235 E. 45th st., New York City, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Should "finders be keepers?"

A. No. When your little child brings home a toy he says he has found, accept his statement that he found it, but tell him "We must try to find the owner." Let him see you put up a sign in front of the house, about it. Then if no one comes to claim it in due time, send the toy to a child welfare orfianization. If it is money he finds, have him put in a fund for relief, church or mission. Under no conditions should he use what he has found—not if you want this child to acquire good attitudes toward the possessions of others.

Q. What is a good way to prevent stubbornness from developing in the child from three to six?

A. Except for routines, avoid commanding the child, therefore, avoid punishing him to make him do things. Limit punishments to keeping him from doing a few forbidden things. Trust to requests, patience and your genius at winning his cooperation.

American farm income, in 1939, including government payments, was 200 to 300 million dollars higher than in 1938.

Woman's Club To Sponsor Amateur Night Program

Several Members Have Agreed To Sponsor Individual Acts

MOOREFIELD, Sept. 13—The Moorefield Woman's Club will sponsor an amateur night sometime in the near future as an evening's entertainment for Moorefield citizens. Mrs. Arno E. Friddle has been named chairman of the committee and several members of the club agreed to be responsible for individual acts.

The plans for keeping the streets of Moorefield clean have not been completed. At present the Woman's Club, in cooperation with the town council, have taken care of the garbage disposal by paying a driver for the town truck. Nothing further has come of the proposal to sweep the streets regularly.

The Moorefield ladies will contribute the music for a joint meeting with the Romney Woman's club next Monday night when a matron of a woman's prison will be the speaker. At a later date the Romney club will come to Moorefield to present their cantata.

Mrs. R. E. Musser presented the year books for the past year at the regular meeting, and reported forty paid members for the year.

Announce Marriage

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Beatrice Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Garrett, to Price Halterman, son of Otis Riggleman and the late Mrs. Alice W. Riggleman, which took place in Marlington, W. Va., March 20, 1937, with Rev. B. W. John and Rev. Charles L. DeLong officiating.

Mrs. Riggleman graduated from Moorefield high school and studied at Shepherd College and has been a teacher in the Hardy county schools for the past ten years. Mr. Riggleman is employed by the J. Natwick Lumber Company.

Kiracofe To Speak

County school superintendent G. R. Kiracofe will deliver a layman's sermon at Rev. Charles Beard's tabernacle tent at Rig Sunday evening. Regular service is being held each night this week with a special Sunday afternoon service.

Instrumental music features the song service with several members of the old and widely known Barr Band contributing. A group of singers from Martinsburg are also expected to be present at the special music service.

To Build Footbridge

The Moorefield Lions Club received a letter from the West Virginia State Road Commission granting their request for a foot bridge to go on the bridge across the South Fork of the South Branch on Main street.

A sum of $3,000 has been allocated for the project and the contract will be let in the near future. The present plans, which have not been finally approved by the state road engineers, specify for the foot bridge to be placed on the east side of the structure.

The Lions club, the Woman's club, the Moose club and various other civic bodies have been requesting a foot bridge along the dangerous narrow span for the past five years. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph J. Bean was chairman of the committee in the Lions club which was finally successful in securing the project.

Record Enrollment

John T. St. Clair, principal of the Moorefield high school, reports an all time record for enrollment with 851 students registering during the first two days. This figure will be increased slightly during the next ten days. Students are now attending classes in the crowded old school building but will transfer to the new building during the next two weeks.

Two hundred and fifty-five registered for enrollment in the Moorefield graded school. County figures will not be available until the last of the month.

Personals

John McNeill left Wednesday for Virginia where he is entering Hampden Sydney College. Renick McNeill and Philip Wise drove him over.

Mrs. M. A. Bean left for California where she expects to attend the national convention of the Order of Eastern Star. She went by way of Washington where she joined her sister, Mrs. Bliss Obaugh.

Guy Rigsby resigned his position with Powers Auto Sales and has accepted a job at Shinnston.

Proposed Revisions Cancelled

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 12 (AP)—Proposed revisions in rates charged by the Mountain State Water Company at Kingwood were cancelled today by the Public Service Commission.

The commission said the company had planned to increase charges to commercial and domestic consumers by about $900 a year and make a corresponding reduction on a charge to the city for hydrant service.

LONDON CARRIES ON

Bombings have become so commonplace in the life of Londoners that this one is little concerned about the fact his front door has been blown in by a Nazi bomb. But you can bet he'd be plenty annoyed if the milkman had failed to leave the usual bottles.

Mrs. Elizabeth Steele Lemmert Dies In Frostburg following Illness

FROSTBURG, Sept. 13 — Mrs. Elizabeth (Steele) Lemmert, 77, died Friday morning at her home, 103 West Main street, where she had been seriously ill for the past ten weeks. A native of Bedford county, Pa., and a lifelong resident of Frostburg, Mrs. Lemmert was one of the best known women of this community. Her husband, the late John A. Lemmert died four years ago.

The survivors include a sister, Mrs. George Steele, Zihlman; three brothers, John Steele, Zihlman; Henry Steele, Frostburg, and William Steele, Indianapolis, Ind.; a daughter, Mrs. Norris Payton, Akron, and five sons, Harrison, Oren, Melvin and Everett, Frostburg, and Vernon, Indianapolis. She also leaves four grandchildren.

Mrs. Lemmert was a devout member of St. Paul's Lutheran church, the Ladies Guild and the McKenzie Sunday school class.

Extend Sewer Line

With a view of having Frostburg's new high school ready for occupancy by November 1, a large force of men are at work completing the sewer line which extends from the building through the Allegany cemetery property to the city's sewer main at the bottom of Grant street. Another group of workers started yesterday to lay eight hundred feet of water mains from Eckhart flat to the school building.

Work on the building is progressing rapidly, the entire structure except the auditorium being under roof. Practically all the class rooms are completed with the exception of laying the finished flooring over the concrete base. This work will be started next week and rushed to completion.

Material for the interior finish of the structure has been received and much of the furniture and other equipment is here and will be installed within the next few weeks.

Reduction in Fire Insurance Rates Held Illegal

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—State Auditor Edgar B. Sims ruled illegal under West Virginia law today a twenty-five per cent rate rebate nation-wide contract between the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and a group of stock fire insurance companies who are members of the stock company association.

He notified member companies licensed to do business in West Virginia that the contract "is in direct conflict with the standard fire policy" and asserted that "we shall expect a complete compliance to this order within a reasonable time."

To Move Dormitories

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—Dormitories for 400 boys engaged in an NYA training project at South Charleston are to be moved to government property at Old Lock Six, and sixty girls now at the later site will be transferred to Fairmont, NYA Director Glenn S. Callaghan announced today.

The change was made necessary by proposed expansions of the $22,000,000 naval ordnance plant. Although living quarters must be moved, Callaghan said, the training shop will continue. The girls, who will be housed in the old Cook hospital at Fairmont, will be transferred by the first of the year.

Literary Societies At Central High Elect Officers

Irving Group Defeats Longfellow in Race for New Members

LONACONING, Sept. 13—Central high school's two literary societies, Longfellow and Irving, met this morning at 11:15 o'clock in the school building to organize for the scholastic year. Officers elected June 5, presided.

In the race for members, who were taken into the societies today, the Irving received forty-nine and the Longfellow thirty-one. The total membership of the Irvings now is approximately 150 and the Longfellows, 100.

Last year the societies did not organize until after the Christmas holidays. It is from these societies that the school draws its talent for the annual county scholastic debates. Much rivalry is shown each year during pledging time and debate season.

Woman's Club To Sponsor Amateur Night Program

Several Members Have Agreed To Sponsor Individual Acts

MOOREFIELD, Sept. 13—The Moorefield Woman's Club will sponsor an amateur night sometime in the near future as an evening's entertainment for Moorefield citizens. Mrs. Arno E. Friddle has been named chairman of the committee and several members of the club agreed to be responsible for individual acts.

The plans for keeping the streets of Moorefield clean have not been completed. At present the Woman's Club, in cooperation with the town council, have taken care of the garbage disposal by paying a driver for the town truck. Nothing further has come of the proposal to sweep the streets regularly.

The Moorefield ladies will contribute the music for a joint meeting with the Romney Woman's club next Monday night when a matron of a woman's prison will be the speaker. At a later date the Romney club will come to Moorefield to present their cantata.

Mrs. R. E. Musser presented the year books for the past year at the regular meeting, and reported forty paid members for the year.

Announce Marriage

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Beatrice Garrett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Garrett, to Price Halterman, son of Otis Riggleman and the late Mrs. Alice W. Riggleman, which took place in Marlington, W. Va., March 20, 1937, with Rev. B. W. John and Rev. Charles L. DeLong officiating.

Mrs. Riggleman graduated from Moorefield high school and studied at Shepherd College and has been a teacher in the Hardy county schools for the past ten years. Mr. Riggleman is employed by the J. Natwick Lumber Company.

Kiracofe To Speak

County school superintendent G. R. Kiracofe will deliver a layman's sermon at Rev. Charles Beard's tabernacle tent at Rig Sunday evening. Regular service is being held each night this week with a special Sunday afternoon service.

Instrumental music features the song service with several members of the old and widely known Barr Band contributing. A group of singers from Martinsburg are also expected to be present at the special music service.

To Build Footbridge

The Moorefield Lions Club received a letter from the West Virginia State Road Commission granting their request for a foot bridge to go on the bridge across the South Fork of the South Branch on Main street.

A sum of $3,000 has been allocated for the project and the contract will be let in the near future. The present plans, which have not been finally approved by the state road engineers, specify for the foot bridge to be placed on the east side of the structure.

The Lions club, the Woman's club, the Moose club and various other civic bodies have been requesting a foot bridge along the dangerous narrow span for the past five years. Prosecuting Attorney Ralph J. Bean was chairman of the committee in the Lions club which was finally successful in securing the project.

Record Enrollment

John T. St. Clair, principal of the Moorefield high school, reports an all time record for enrollment with 851 students registering during the first two days. This figure will be increased slightly during the next ten days. Students are now attending classes in the crowded old school building but will transfer to the new building during the next two weeks.

Two hundred and fifty-five registered for enrollment in the Moorefield graded school. County figures will not be available until the last of the month.

Personals

Reduction in Fire Insurance Rates Held Illegal

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—State Auditor Edgar B. Sims ruled illegal under West Virginia law today a twenty-five per cent rate rebate nation-wide contract between the Home Owners' Loan Corporation and a group of stock fire insurance companies who are members of the stock company association.

He notified member companies licensed to do business in West Virginia that the contract "is in direct conflict with the standard fire policy" and asserted that "we shall expect a complete compliance to this order within a reasonable time."

To Move Dormitories

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Sept. 13 (AP)—Dormitories for 400 boys engaged in an NYA training project at South Charleston are to be moved to government property at Old Lock Six, and sixty girls now at the later site will be transferred to Fairmont, NYA Director Glenn S. Callaghan announced today.

The change was made necessary by proposed expansions of the $22,000,000 naval ordnance plant. Although living quarters must be moved, Callaghan said, the training shop will continue. The girls, who will be housed in the old Cook hospital at Fairmont, will be transferred by the first of the year.

Literary Societies At Central High Elect Officers

Irving Group Defeats Longfellow in Race for New Members

LONACONING, Sept. 13—Central high school's two literary societies, Longfellow and Irving, met this morning at 11:15 o'clock in the school building to organize for the scholastic year. Officers elected June 5, presided.

In the race for members, who were taken into the societies today, the Irving received forty-nine and the Longfellow thirty-one. The total membership of the Irvings now is approximately 150 and the Longfellows, 100.

Last year the societies did not organize until after the Christmas holidays. It is from these societies that the school draws its talent for the annual county scholastic debates. Much rivalry is shown each year during pledging time and debate season.

Navy Coach Pleased By "Touchdown Twins"

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Maj. Emery (Swede) Larson, Navy's football mentor, expressed satisfaction today with the play of the "touchdown twins", sophomores Bill Busik, back, of Pasadena, Calif., and Bob Zoeller, end, of New Albany, Ind.

"Their passing looks good", Larson commented as he sent his varsity squad of 37 through more than an hour of scrimmage.

Alex Zechella, 180-pound sophomore back, of Newport, Ky., who sprained an ankle at practice recently, was back on the field today but did not participate in the heavy contact work. Larson said he was hopeful that Zechella would be "back in harness" by Tuesday.

Eleven members of the undefeated 1939 Plebe team are on the varsity squad. In addition to Busik, Zoeller and Zechella, they are:

Alan Cameron, San Gabriel, Calif.; Bill Chip, New Castle, Pa.; Phil Hurt, Astoria, N. Y., and John Harrell, Ardmore, Okla., backs and Gene Flathmann, Charleston, S. C.; Joe Donahoe, Mt. Lebanon, Pa.; Vito Vitucci, Brooklyn, N. Y., and George Ringenberg, Seattle, Wash., linemen.

Larson said the varsity may play a regular game with the Plebe team Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Meyersdale Church of the Brethren Names Committee To Aid War Relief

MEYERSDALE, Sept. 13 — The local Church of the Brethren, perhaps the first religious organization in Somerset county, has joined the movement to alleviate suffering throughout the world, for which purpose a newly fomed Bethren service commission was formed at the recent national conference of the denomination held at Ocean Grove, N. J.

A special servic ecommittee, made up of members of the local church, with Lloyd D. Peck, chairman; Miss Delta Arnold, secretary, and also includes Mrs. Mary Griffith, Mrs. Paul Koontz, Galen Peck, and Robert Walker, J. Vincent Saylor, H. E. Arnold, Dr. Guy N. Hartman and the Rev. DeWitt L. Miller serve on the committee in an ex-officio capacity.

Foreign service of various kinds is possible under the auspices of the Brethren Service Committee, and is being carried on at present in China, India, Japan, France, England and Nigeria. Other service areas will be opened up as funds and personnel are available. The local organization is planning to actively support this program, which is non-partisan and non-sectarian, and as a part in launching this program in the church here, the Rev. DeWitt Miller, will speak at the coming Sunday morning worship period on the subject, "The Christian's Alternative to War". Because of the non-sectarian character of this Christian service, and since no other relief agencies are operating in this community any one caring to make a contribution to the relief of human suffering throughout the world is invited to do so.

Garrett County Grand Jury Has Finished Work

Twenty-nine Indictments Are Returned at Four Day Session

OAKLAND, Sept. 13 — The Garrett county grand jury, after being in session for four full days, adjourned last evening after handing its report to Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan.

The jury examined seventy-seven witnesses and returned twenty-nine indictments.

The criminal docket will not be taken up until Monday, September 23, allowing more than a full week to intervene between the conclusion of the grand jury and the calling of the petit jury. This has been done to give the State's Attorney more time to prepare his cases, it was stated.

The grand jurors, before adjourning, also inspected the court house, jail and the sheriff's residence and made a number of recommendations concerning repairs and improvements, some of which have been recommended by juries for the past several years without effect.

The jurors believe "that improvement can be made in the keeping of records in the office of the county commissioners." They felt that the jail and sheriff's residence were kept clean and in good repair. Harvey Gortner, Grantsville, was foreman of the jury with Wellington E. Yutzy, Oakland, and Benjamin F. Knepp, Red House, clerks.

Association Elects

At the annual meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Association held last Sunday at the Baptist church across from Rainbow Inn, Ralph E. Weber, Oakland, was re-elected president. Others chosen were W. P. Jacobs, Wellsburg, W. Va., vice-president; Elmer Haulenbeen, Rainbow Inn, secretary-treasurer.

Discussion centered around the aims and objects of the association which include sanitation, sponsoring completion and beautification of the road system, regulation and improvement of fishing and boating for Deep Creek Lake community.

There are now about 350 cottages around the shores of Deep Creek Lake and the summer residents and year-round residents of the lake formed this association several years ago to concentrate their efforts on improvements there.

New Group Organized

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church organized Thursday with acceptance of the constitution, the signing of the register and the election of officers.

Mrs. Grover C. Stemple was named president; Mrs. Ray Teets, vice-president; Mrs. Harold Harned, treasurer. Secretaries of various phases of the work included Mrs. Robert DeWitt, Mrs. Mary Jones, Mrs. S. H. Jackson, Mrs. Melvin C. Kight, Mrs. Minor Sprague and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun. These officers will be installed at a general meeting on September 19.

Women who attend the meeting September 19 will still have the opportunity of having their names appear on the charter, which will be sent for after that date.

At the general meeting the circles will meet for the first time for organization. Drawing of names for circles was completed recently by a committee composed of Mrs. Rathbun, chairman; Mrs. C. F. Hammond, Mrs. John Khare, Mrs. Willard Elliott and Mrs. Julius Littman.

The Women's Society is an outgrowth of the recent union of leading Methodist denominations. It supercedes the former Ladies' Aid societies and Women's Missionary Societies, taking over the enterprises of these and adding other interests and projects.

The ladies of the Methodist church at Mt. Lake Park also organized with Mrs. J. T. Moon, president; Mrs. W. B. Love, vice-president; Mrs. A. T. Schaeffer, secretary; Mrs. Belle Nine, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. V. Leighton, treasurer; secretaries, Mrs. C. C. Beechey, Mrs. W. B. Brock, Mrs. Edgar Smith.

Marriage Is Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Bond Richardson, daughter of Mr. Samuel Bond Richardson, to Mr. William Lower Wonderly, which occurred on Sunday afternoon, September 8, at 5:30 o'clock, at the First Baptist church, Southern Pines, North Carolina. Mr. Wonderly is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Wonderly, of near Loch Lynn Heights, and has been engaged in religious work among the Mexicans and in the Southwestern section of the United States for the past year or more.

Bi-State Loop Series Moved Back One Week

The Bi-State Baseball League playoff series, scheduled to get under way with two contests today and another pair Sunday, has been postponed one week, league officials announced yesterday.

Frostburg American Legion tossers, who finished in first place, are still in the running for the National Amateur Baseball Federation tourney championship at Birmingham and the Mountain City crew won't be back until late Sunday morning at the earliest.

Frostburg was scheduled to play at Midland today and Keyser was to invade Cumberland to oppose the Colts but both games have been postponed because Frostburg took several stars from these clubs to Birmingham. Sunday's tilts have also been moved back.

The revised playoff schedule calls for openers in preliminary series next Saturday, second games Sept. 22, third games if necessary Sept. 23 and initial contests in the title series Sept. 29.

Plans for Improving Cemetery Are Made at Meeting in Grantsville

GRANTSVILLE, September 13.—The Grantsville veterans met last night to complete plans for organizing an association for the improvement of the cemetery. The group has been endeavoring to bring this about for many months. A. Claude Stanton, president, drew up a constitution and set of by-laws and these were adopted at last night's session.

It was decided to call the new organization the "Grantsville Cemetery Improvement Association." The members will include the veterans living in Grantsville and the two remaining members of the former cemetery committee, namely Miss Christina Winterberg and Mrs. Nettie Bill. A. Claude Stanton will continue temporarily as president, Fay L. Miller, Vice-President, and George W. Diefenbach, Secretary and Treasurer. Other members are Nevin U. Broadwater, Adam A. Hanft, Harvey Gortner, Dr. Norman R. Davis, Dr. T. Olin Broadwater, George Simpson, Noah Frickey, C. O. Keller, William Edgar and Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey.

Nevin Broadwater, Fay Miller and Adam Hanft were appointed as a committee to proceed at once with plans for immediate improvements. The first to be made by the new organization will be the building of a much needed solid road through the cemetery grounds. To begin this work the veterans had a very small balance on hand which remained from funds derived during a homecoming celebration a number of years ago. This, of course, is not sufficient to carry out the various improvements to be made from time to time and additional funds for this purpose will be solicited from lot owners and persons interested in the project in order to continue the program they have outlined.

Regular meetings are to be held twice a year and additional sessions called by the president as necessary. Another meeting is to be held in November when new officers are to be elected.

In as much as the upkeep of the local cemetery depends upon the individual lot owner, many of whom moved away or are deceased, the veterans are to be command for the interest they are taking in caring for and beautifying these grounds and should receive the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire community. A famous writer once said, "Show me your cemetery and I'll tell you the kind of people who live in your community."

Brief Mention

Oiling of the Rock-Lodge-Bittinger road was completed yesterday and the two mile stretch opened to traffic this morning. J. Louis Ross, Construction Supervisor, said they expected to complete the work on the Grantsville-New Germany road today and would open it to traffic tomorrow. The base of the 1.65 mile stretch on the Fearer road, near Friendsville, which has been under construction, was also finished yesterday, Mr. Ross said.

The grand jury for the September term of court adjourned last night after a four day session. Seventy-seven witnesses were examined and twenty-nine indictments returned.

Kenneth Wilburn left this morning for Baltimore. He has enlisted for service in the United States Navy and upon completion of his examinations there will be stationed at Norfolk, Va. Kenneth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilburn, Grantsville. He graduated from the high school here with the class of 1939 and has since been attending the Frostburg State Normal school. His pleasing personality and musical talents have won for him a large circle of friends in this section.

Robert A. Radtke was fined $10 and costs in the Trial Magistrates Court here last evening for exceeding a speed of fifty miles per hour on Route 40 near here. State Police Officer Carl G. Storm, who made the arrest, preferred the charges.

Clyde J. Miller has returned from Baltimore where he spent a short vacation. He has with him as his weekend guests, Clara Noppenberger, Russell Gibson and Hamilton Schmidt, of Baltimore.

The annual Harvest Home service will be observed at St. Johns Evangelical and Reformed church Sunday morning. The Sunday school will observe the occasion at 9:30 o'clock and all coin folders which were distributed some time ago, are to be returned at this time. The church service is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock. The Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor, will preside at these sessions and deliver the sermon.

The District Sunday school convention of the Brethern churches in this section will be held at the Pine Grove church Sunday. Each Sunday school taking part will make a report on their years work. A special program has also been planned. Among the churches included in this district are Westernport, Frostburg, Accident, Fairview, Oak Grove, Maple Grove, Bethesda and Pine Grove.

Communion services will be held at the Johnson Emmanuel Methodist church Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The Mt. Zion Methodist church will also hold communion services, the hour being set for 11:00 o'clock. The Rev. D. R. Carder is pastor of these churches.

Navy Coach Pleased By "Touchdown Twins"

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Ma) Emery (Swede) Larson, Navy's football mentor, expressed satisfaction today with the play of the "touchdown twins", sophomores Bill Busik, back, of Pasadena, Calif., and Bob Zoeller, end, of New Albany, Ind.

"Their passing looks good", Larson commented as he sent his varsity squad of 37 through more than an hour of scrimmage.

Alex Zechella, 180-pound sophomore back, of Newport, Ky., who sprained an ankle at practice recently, was back on the field today but did not participate in the heavy contact work. Larson said he was hopeful that Zechella would be "back in harness" by Tuesday.

Eleven members of the undefeated 1939 Plebe team are on the varsity squad. In addition to Busik, Zoeller and Zechella, they are:

Alan Cameron, San Gabriel, Calif.; Bill Chip, New Castle, Pa.; Phil Hurt, Astoria, N. Y., and John Harrell, Ardmore, Okla., backs and Gene Flathmann, Charleston, S. C.; Joe Donahoe, Mt. Lebanon, Pa.; Vito Viluccl, Brooklyn, N. Y., and George Ringenberg, Seattle, Wash., linemen.

Larson said the varsity may play a regular game with the Plebe team Wednesday, Sept. 25.

Meyersdale Church of the Brethren Names Committee To Aid War Relief

MEYERSDALE, Sept. 13 — The local Church of the Brethren, perhaps the first religious organization in Somerset county, has joined the movement to alleviate suffering throughout the world, for which purpose a newly fomed Bethren service commission was formed at the recent national conference of the denomination held at Ocean Grove, N. J.

A special servic ecommittee, made up of members of the local church, with Lloyd D. Peck, chairman; Miss Delta Arnold, secretary, and also includes Mrs. Mary Griffith, Mrs. Paul Koontz, Galen Peck, and Robert Walker, J. Vincent Saylor, H. E. Arnold, Dr. Guy N. Hartman and the Rev. DeWitt L. Miller serve on the committee in an ex-officio capacity.

Foreign service of various kinds is possible under the auspices of the Brethren Service Committee, and is being carried on at present in China, India, Japan, France, England and Nigeria. Other service areas will be opened up as funds and personnel are available. The local organization is planning to actively support this program, which is non-partisan and non-sectarian, and as a part in launching this program in the church here, the Rev. DeWitt Miller, will speak at the coming Sunday morning worship period on the subject, "The Christian's Alternative to War". Because of the non-sectarian character of this Christian service, and since no other relief agencies are operating in this community any one caring to make a contribution to the relief of human suffering throughout the world is invited to do so.

Relief Hurler for Browns Beats Nats

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13. (AP)—Stopping the Washington Senators with no hits in the last five innings, Big Bill Trotter, ordinarily a relief pitcher, went the route for the Browns today for the first time this season and earned a 7 to 3 victory.

Each team scored two runs in the first inning and one in the second but the Browns went ahead to stay with three tallies in the third frame on two doubles and two errors. In all, the Browns pounded Sid Hudson and Rene Monteagudo for 12 hits.

Garrett County Grand Jury Has Finished Work

Twenty-nine Indictments Are Returned at Four Day Session

OAKLAND, Sept. 13 — The Garrett county grand jury, after being in session for four full days, adjourned last evening after handing its report to Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan.

The jury examined seventy-seven witnesses and returned twenty-nine indictments.

The criminal docket will not be taken up until Monday, September 23, allowing more than a full week to intervene between the conclusion of the grand jury and the calling of the petit jury. This has been done to give the State's Attorney more time to prepare his cases, it was stated.

The grand jurors, before adjourning, also inspected the court house, jail and the sheriff's residence and made a number of recommendations concerning repairs and improvements, some of which have been recommended by juries for the past several years without effect.

The jurors believe "that improvement can be made in the keeping of records in the office of the county commissioners." They felt that the jail and sheriff's residence were kept clean and in good repair. Harvey Gortner, Grantsville, was foreman of the jury with Wellington E. Yutzy, Oakland, and Benjamin F. Knepp, Red House, clerks.

Association Elects

At the annual meeting of the Deep Creek Lake Association held last Sunday at the Baptist church across from Rainbow Inn, Ralph E. Weber, Oakland, was re-elected president. Others chosen were W. P. Jacobs, Wellsburg, W. Va., vice-president; Elmer Haulenbeen, Rainbow Inn, secretary-treasurer.

Discussion centered around the aims and objects of the association which include sanitation, sponsoring completion and beautification of the road system, regulation and improvement of fishing and boating for Deep Creek Lake community.

There are now about 350 cottages around the shores of Deep Creek Lake and the summer residents and year-round residents of the lake formed this association several years ago to concentrate their efforts on improvements there.

New Group Organized

The Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist church organized Thursday with acceptance of the constitution, the signing of the register and the election of officers.

Mrs. Grover C. Stemple was named president; Mrs. Ray Teets, vice-president; Mrs. Harold Harned, treasurer. Secretaries of various phases of the work included Mrs. Robert DeWitt, Mrs. Mary Jones, Mrs. S. H. Jackson, Mrs. Melvin C. Kight, Mrs. Minor Sprague and Mrs. F. E. Rathbun. These officers will be installed at a general meeting on September 19.

Women who attend the meeting September 19 will still have the opportunity of having their names appear on the charter, which will be sent for after that date.

At the general meeting the circles will meet for the first time for organization. Drawing of names for circles was completed recently by a committee composed of Mrs. Rathbun, chairman; Mrs. C. F. Hammond, Mrs. John Khare, Mrs. Willard Elliott and Mrs. Julius Littman.

The Women's Society is an outgrowth of the recent union of leading Methodist denominations. It supercedes the former Ladies' Aid societies and Women's Missionary Societies, taking over the enterprises of these and adding other interests and projects.

The ladies of the Methodist church at Mt. Lake Park also organized with Mrs. J. T. Moon, president; Mrs. W. B. Love, vice-president; Mrs. A. T. Schaeffer, secretary; Mrs. Belle Nine, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. V. Leighton, treasurer; secretaries, Mrs. C. C. Beechey, Mrs. W. B. Brock, Mrs. Edgar Smith.

Marriage Is Announced

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Dorothy Bond Richardson, daughter of Mr. Samuel Bond Richardson, to Mr. William Lower Wonderly, which occurred on Sunday afternoon, September 8, at 5:30 o'clock, at the First Baptist church, Southern Pines, North Carolina. Mr. Wonderly is a son of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Wonderly, of near Loch Lynn Heights, and has been engaged in religious work among the Mexicans and in the Southwestern section of the United States for the past year or more.

Bi-State Loop Series Moved Back One Week

The Bi-State Baseball League playoff series, scheduled to get under way with two contests today and another pair Sunday, has been postponed one week, league officials announced yesterday.

Frostburg American Legion tossers, who finished in first place, are still in the running for the National Amateur Baseball Federation tourney championship at Birmingham and the Mountain City crew won't be back until late Sunday morning at the earliest.

Frostburg was scheduled to play at Midland today and Keyser was to invade Cumberland to oppose the Colts but both games have been postponed because Frostburg took several stars from these clubs to Birmingham. Sunday's tilts have also been moved back.

The revised playoff schedule calls for openers in preliminary series next Saturday, second games Sept. 22, third games if necessary Sept. 25 and initial contests in the title series Sept. 29.

Plans for Improving Cemetery Are Made at Meeting in Grantsville

GRANTSVILLE, September 13.—The Grantsville veterans met last night to complete plans for organizing an association for the improvement of the cemetery. The group has been endeavoring to bring this about for many months. A. Claude Stanton, president, drew up a constitution and set of by-laws and these were adopted at last night's session.

It was decided to call the new organization the "Grantsville Cemetery Improvement Association." The members will include the veterans living in Grantsville and the two remaining members of the former cemetery committee, namely Miss Christina Winterberg and Mrs. Nettie Bill. A. Claude Stanton will continue temporarily as president, Fay L. Miller, Vice-President, and George W. Diefenbach, Secretary and Treasurer. Other members are Nevin U. Broadwater, Adam A. Hanft, Harvey Gortner, Dr. Norman R. Davis, Dr. T. Olin Broadwater, George Simpson, Noah Frickey, C. O. Keller, William Edgar and Mrs. Joseph F. Fahey.

Nevin Broadwater, Fay Miller and Adam Hanft were appointed as a committee to proceed at once with plans for immediate improvements. The first to be made by the new organization will be the building of a much needed solid road through the cemetery grounds. To begin this work the veterans had a very small balance on hand which remained from funds derived during a homecoming celebration a number of years ago. This, of course, is not sufficient to carry out the various improvements to be made from time to time and additional funds for this purpose will be solicited from lot owners and persons interested in the project in order to continue the program they have outlined.

Regular meetings are to be held twice a year and additional sessions called by the president as necessary. Another meeting is to be held in November when new officers are to be elected.

In as much as the upkeep of the local cemetery depends upon the individual lot owner, many of whom moved away or are deceased, the veterans are to be command for the interest they are taking in caring for and beautifying these grounds and should receive the whole-hearted cooperation of the entire community. A famous writer once said, "Show me your cemetery and I'll tell you the kind of people who live in your community."

Brief Mention

Oiling of the Rock-Lodge-Bittinger road was completed yesterday and the two mile stretch opened to traffic this morning. J. Louis Ross, Construction Supervisor, said they expected to complete the work on the Grantsville-New Germany road today and would open it to traffic tomorrow. The base of the 1.65 mile stretch on the Fearer road, near Friendsville, which has been under construction, was also finished yesterday, Mr. Ross said.

The grand jury for the September term of court adjourned last night after a four day session. Seventy-seven witnesses were examined and twenty-nine indictments returned.

Kenneth Wilburn left this morning for Baltimore. He has enlisted for service in the United States Navy and upon completion of his examinations there will be stationed at Norfolk, Va. Kenneth is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wilburn, Grantsville. He graduated from the high school here with the class of 1939 and has since been attending the Frostburg State Normal school. His pleasing personality and musical talents have won for him a large circle of friends in this section.

Robert A. Radtke was fined $10 and costs in the Trial Magistrates Court here last evening for exceeding a speed of fifty miles per hour on Route 40 near here. State Police Officer Carl G. Storm, who made the arrest, preferred the charges.

Clyde J. Miller has returned from Baltimore where he spent a short vacation. He has with him as his weekend guests, Clara Noppenberger, Russell Gibson and Hamilton Schmidt, of Baltimore.

The annual Harvest Home service will be observed at St. Johns Evangelical and Reformed church Sunday morning. The Sunday school will observe the occasion at 9:30 o'clock and all coin folders which were distributed some time ago, are to be returned at this time. The church service is scheduled for 10:30 o'clock. The Rev. Alvin J. Forry, pastor, will preside at these sessions and deliver the sermon.

The District Sunday school convention of the Brethern churches in this section will be held at the Pine Grove church Sunday. Each Sunday school taking part will make a report on their years work. A special program has also been planned. Among the churches included in this district are Westernport, Frostburg, Accident, Fairview, Oak Grove, Maple Grove, Bethesda and Pine Grove.

Communion services will be held at the Johnson Emmanuel Methodist church Sunday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The Mt. Zion Methodist church will also hold communion services, the hour being set for 11:00 o'clock. The Rev. D. R. Carder is pastor of these churches.

Gains and Losses about Equal In Dull Session of Stock Market

Only 268,180 Shares Transferred; Traders on Sideline

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP) — Stock market leaders moved only fractionally in tentative dealings today.

Gains and losses balanced each other over most of the list. The Associated Press average of sixty selected stocks was off .1 of a point at 42.9 but the 204 issues which advanced numbered 15 more than the declines.

Only 268,180 shares were transferred, compared with 403,830 yesterday. It was one of the lightest sessions of the year.

With the battle for England still undecided, Wall street heard rumors that "a development of the highest consequence" might soon be expected in the Mediterranean region and traders sat tight.

Leaders on the rising side included U. S. Steel, Youngstown General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Douglas, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Anaconda, Dow Chemical, Johns-Manville, N. Y. Central and Standard Oil of N. J.

Behind minus signs were Bethlehem, Harvester, Sperry, Boeing Consolidated Edison, Phelps Dodge, American Can, Union Carbide, Hercules Power and Texas Corp.

In the Curb, with sales totaling 51,000 shares compared with 70,000, yesterday, losers of a point or more included Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Aluminum Ltd., Midvale and Humble Oil. Gainers included Draper Corp., Hammermill Paper and Aluminum of America.

Bonds and commodities were irregular.

Theaters Today

Romantic Novel Is Screened at Maryland

"Pride and Prejudice," picturization of Jane Austen's romantic novel, starring Greer Garson and Laurence Olivier, is showing at the Maryland Theater.

Miss Garson, remembered for her "Mrs. Chips" again has been given a role suited to her talents as the prejudiced Elizabeth Bennet, while Olivier appears as the proud Darcy.

From the time Mr. Darcy and his friend Mr. Bingley, two aristocratic and wealthy young bachelors, arrive in a small English village of the early Nineteenth century to find themselves besieged by the five unwedded Bennet daughters and their scheming mother, the laughs begin. It is perfectly natural that Darcy should fall in love with the beautiful and intelligent Elizabeth. But there are complications from the start. He can't stand her family, particularly the fluttery Mrs. Bennet whose constant meddling upsets the romantic applecarts for her daughters.

In the end, of course, Darcy gives in, discovers that love is more potent than family pride. He finally wins Elizabeth's affections by saving her family from disgrace when Lydia, flightiest of the daughters, with an eye for a uniform, runs away with an adventurer.

Deb Becomes a Pink In Feature at Strand

Brenda Joyce is the debutante who goes "Leftist" and George Murphy is the brash but broke young man who smacks her back into line in a riotous romance that begins with a spanking.

The film also features Elsa Maxwell, Mischa Auer, Charlie Ruggles, Ralph Bellamy, Maxie Rosenbloom, Berton Churchill and Franklin Pangborn.

The added features include a new color cartoon entitled "Lucky Duck," the novelty subject, also in technicolor, "The Land of Flowers" and the Paramount and Fox news flashes, which show the explosion of the powder factory in New Jersey.

Wednesday the Strand will present Charlie Barnet and his orchestra on the stage.

Tom Edison Picture Is Offered at Embassy

Mickey Rooney as "Young Tom Edison" with George Bancroft and Fay Bainter in the supporting roles, will be offered tomorrow at the Embassy theater along with Columbia's "Out West with the Five Little Peppers," featuring Edith Fellows.

Closing today at the Embassy will be Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette in "Carolina Moon," and Sabu in the technicolor picture, "Drums."

Rex Beach Novel Is Filmed at Liberty

"Flowing Gold" saga of life and love in the Texas oil fields, opens at the New Liberty theater today. It is a film transcription of Rex Beach's immortal novel and stars John Garfield, Frances Farmer and Pat O'Brien.

The picture largely concerns itself with Johnny Blake, John Garfield's role, an iconoclastic young drifter doomed to the life of a fugitive after killing a man in self-defense. In his wanderings about the country he meets up with Hap O'Connor, played by Pat O'Brien. Hap's rough exterior hides a heart of gold, and he is extremely grateful to Johnny after the latter saves his life in a free-for-all brawl.

Complications arise when both men fall in love with the beautiful and vibrant Linda Chalmers, played by Frances Farmer, daughter of their eccentric employer.

Hollywood stunt men demonstrate acts in the Warner Brothers—Vitaphone two-reel short subject, "Spills for Thrills", which is also showing at New Liberty. Harvey Parry, Mary Wiggins and Allan Pomeroy, three of the leading stunt artists in Hollywood, go through their paces.

DICK TRACY—The New Life

ACTION SCENE

tumbling down flights of stairs, leaping from cliffs, cracking up cars and performing other thrilling exploits for the camera.

Prairie Land Story Is Filmed at Garden

The determined efforts of a young cattleman to restore law and order to a prairie community run by an unscrupulous promoter, form the basis of George O'Brien's western picture, "Prairie Law," now at the Garden.

When a slick land-shark sets up a townsite in the cattle country and sells worthless lots and farm acreage to settlers on the false promise of unlimited water from wells he will dig, he precipitates a battle between the cattleman and the fast-arriving nesters.

O'Brien, as a successful rancher and owner of the only spring water in the section, assumes the leadership of the cowmen, and after many battles with the guerillas hired by the professional land shark, succeeds in exposing him and bringing his hirelings to justice.

Virginia Vale, is cast opposite the star, while other important roles are played by Dick Hogan, J. Farrell MacDonald, Slim Whitaker and Cyrus W. Kendall.

Gains and Losses about Equal In Dull Session of Stock Market

Only 268,180 Shares Transferred; Traders on Sideline

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP) — Stock market leaders moved only fractionally in tentative dealings today.

Gains and losses balanced each other over most of the list. The Associated Press average of sixty selected stocks was off .1 of a point at 42.9 but the 204 issues which advanced numbered 15 more than the declines.

Only 268,180 shares were transferred, compared with 403,830 yesterday. It was one of the lightest sessions of the year.

With the battle for England still undecided, Wall street heard rumors that "a development of the highest consequence" might soon be expected in the Mediterranean region and traders sat tight.

Leaders on the rising side included U. S. Steel, Youngstown General Motors, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Douglas, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Anaconda, Dow Chemical, Johns-Manville, N. Y. Central and Standard Oil of N. J.

Behind minus signs were Bethlehem, Harvester, Sperry, Boeing Consolidated Edison, Phelps Dodge, American Can, Union Carbide, Hercules Power and Texas Corp.

In the Curb, with sales totaling 51,000 shares compared with 70,000, yesterday, losers of a point or more included Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Aluminum Ltd., Midvale and Humble Oil. Gainers included Draper Corp., Hammermill Paper and Aluminum of America.

Bonds and commodities were irregular.

Theaters Today

Romantic Novel Is Screened at Maryland

"Pride and Prejudice," picturization of Jane Austen's romantic novel, starring Greer Garson and Laurence Olivier, is showing at the Maryland Theater.

Miss Garson, remembered for her "Mrs. Chips" again has been given a role suited to her talents as the prejudiced Elizabeth Bennet, while Olivier appears as the proud Darcy.

From the time Mr. Darcy and his friend Mr. Bingley, two aristocratic and wealthy young bachelors, arrive in a small English village of the early Nineteenth century to find themselves besieged by the five unwedded Bennet daughters and their scheming mother, the laughs begin. It is perfectly natural that Darcy should fall in love with the beautiful and intelligent Elizabeth. But there are complications from the start. He can't stand her family, particularly the fluttery Mrs. Bennet whose constant meddling upsets the romantic applecarts for her daughters.

In the end, of course, Darcy gives in, discovers that love is more potent than family pride. He finally wins Elizabeth's affections by saving her family from disgrace when Lydia, flightiest of the daughters, with an eye for a uniform, runs away with an adventurer.

Deb Becomes a Pink In Feature at Strand

Brenda Joyce is the debutante who goes "Leftist" and George Murphy is the brash but broke young man who smacks her back into line in a riotous romance that begins with a spanking.

The film also features Elsa Maxwell, Mischa Auer, Charlie Ruggles, Ralph Bellamy, Maxie Rosenbloom, Berton Churchill and Franklin Pangborn.

The added features include a new color cartoon entitled "Lucky Duck," the novelty subject, also in technicolor, "The Land of Flowers" and the Paramount and Fox news flashes, which show the explosion of the powder factory in New Jersey.

Wednesday the Strand will present Charlie Barnet and his orchestra on the stage.

Tom Edison Picture Is Offered at Embassy

Mickey Rooney as "Young Tom Edison" with George Bancroft and Fay Bainter in the supporting roles, will be offered tomorrow at the Embassy theater along with Columbia's "Out West with the Five Little Peppers," featuring Edith Fellows.

Closing today at the Embassy will be Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette in "Carolina Moon," and Sabu in the technicolor picture, "Drums."

Rex Beach Novel Is Filmed at Liberty

"Flowing Gold" saga of life and love in the Texas oil fields, opens at the New Liberty theater today. It is a film transcription of Rex Beach's immortal novel and stars John Garfield, Frances Farmer and Pat O'Brien.

The picture largely concerns itself with Johnny Blake, John Garfield's role, an iconoclastic young drifter doomed to the life of a fugitive after killing a man in self-defense. In his wanderings about the country he meets up with Hap O'Connor, played by Pat O'Brien. Hap's rough exterior hides a heart of gold, and he is extremely grateful to Johnny after the latter saves his life in a free-for-all brawl.

Complications arise when both men fall in love with the beautiful and vibrant Linda Chalmers, played by Frances Farmer, daughter of their eccentric employer.

Hollywood stunt men demonstrate acts in the Warner Brothers—Vitaphone two-reel short subject, "Spills for Thrills", which is also showing at New Liberty. Harvey Parry, Mary Wiggins and Allan Pomeroy, three of the leading stunt artists in Hollywood, go through their paces.

DICK TRACY—The New Life

ACTION SCENE

Prairie Land Story Is Filmed at Garden

The determined efforts of a young cattleman to restore law and order to a prairie community run by an unscrupulous promoter, form the basis of George O'Brien's western picture, "Prairie Law," now at the Garden.

When a slick land-shark sets up a townsite in the cattle country and sells worthless lots and farm acreage to settlers on the false promise of unlimited water from wells he will dig, he precipitates a battle between the cattleman and the fast-arriving nesters.

O'Brien, as a successful rancher and owner of the only spring water in the section, assumes the leadership of the cowmen, and after many battles with the guerillas hired by the professional land shark, succeeds in exposing him and bringing his hirelings to justice.

Virginia Vale, is cast opposite the star, while other important roles are played by Dick Hogan, J. Farrell MacDonald, Slim Whitaker and Cyrus W. Kendall.

Cleveland Beats Boston in Mound Duel on Two Hits

DETROIT, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers, baseball's hottest team in the September pennant run, all but chased the New York Yankees out of Bridges Stadium today with a 16-ply fusilade that brought an 8 to 0 victory over the world champions.

Tommy Bridges, the 33-year-old Tennesseeman who couldn't beat New York in the early years of his pitching career, limited the Yankees to six singles.

It was Detroit's eighth victory in the last nine games and the fifth straight over its foremost pennant challengers—the Cleveland Indians and New York.

A crowd of 25,514 watched the one-sided affair. The victory kept the Tigers still a half game up on the Indians, who shut out Boston, 1 to 0, at Cleveland.

In scoring his 11th victory of the year, Bridges started most unimpressively, the Yanks getting to him for three solid hits in the first two innings. Thereafter New York didn't get a runner beyond first base.

Marius Russo, the young left-hander who had won seven straight games, was battered for eight hits and six scores by the mighty Detroit run-producing machine before giving up with none out in the fourth. Steve Sundra and Bump Hadley shared the relief assignment and both were shelled plenty.

Indians Beat Boston On Two Hits by 1-0 Score

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13 (AP)—Young Jim Bagby threw a sterling two-hit performance at the pennant-hungry Cleveland Indians this Friday the 13th and still dropped a 1 to 0 decision.

The reason was Al Milnar. The big Cleveland southpaw granted the Boston Red Sox three singles but kept them scattered to give the Indians their third straight triumph.

Roy Weatherly scored the solitary run. Opening the third inning, he singled through shortstop on the first pitch. Jeff Heath followed with a one-baser to right which put the fleet Cleveland center fielder on third.

Lou Boudreau, next up, grounded into a double play at second and first. Weatherly scored while it was being manufactured.

The only blows off Milnar, who now has won 16 and lost eight, were Jimmy Foxx' single with two out in the first, Joe Cronin's one-baser to center to lead off the eighth and Roger Cramer's single with one down in the ninth.

In the last two sessions, Milnar really pitched his way out of trouble. He killed Boston hopes in the eighth as Bobby Doerr popped to Beau Bell and Charlie Gelbert flied high to Weatherly. Gene Desautels, catching again in a lineup swith which sent Foxx back to first base, walked, but Bagby could do no better than force Desautels at second.

Allegany Express Rolls to Victory In Grid Opener

Campers Score in First Three Periods To Rout Ridgeley, 21-6

Allegany High School's 1940 gridiron express last night celebrated the opening of the scholastic grid season by rolling to an impressive 21-6 victory over Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeley High eleven at the Fort Hill Stadium.

The driving shaft of the smooth Allegany pigskin machines of the past three seasons—"Jarrin' Jim" Gaffney—was absent, but the spirit was there, as were a group of promising backs, speedy and capable of showing plenty of deception.

The Campobello bombers punched over scores in the first three stanzas, reeled off 12 first downs and piled up 253 yards on running plays. The Blue and White, however, did not completely outclass the Hahnmen for the Ridgeleyites amassed eight first downs themselves and presented a combined ground and air attack that forced the Campers to keep on their toes. The Black and White's yardage on the ground totaled 156 yards and three completed passes netted 51.

Campers Play Alert

Allegany took advantage of the first "break" in the game, a fumble by Ridgeley, early in the first period, by marching 32 yards for the first score of the game.

Vernon Miller kicked off for the Campers to start the game, Bob Zimmerman taking the leather on the 19-yard line and returning it six yards to the 25. Captain John "Bud" Lookabaugh handed the ball to Zimmerman on the first scrimmage play of the tilt, with the latter skirting seven yards through tackle before being brought down.

Zimmerman, however, on the next play fumbled and Bill Yoder recovered for Allegany on the Ridgeley 32. On eight plays, all running, the Campers planted the ball in the end zone for a touchdown, Yoder going over from the one-yard line. Billie "Jesse" James plunged the point.

The West Virginians came right back on the series of plays following the next kickoff to penetrate deep in Allegany territory, but failed to advance any further than the Blue and White's 20. Lookabaugh returned Miller's boot to the 31 and then picked up two yards at tackle. On a reverse, Lookabaugh to Washabaugh, the latter scooted 50 yards, the longest single gain of the game, before being brought down from behind on a beautiful tackle by James.

Ridgeley Pass Fails

That particular play put the ball on the Allegany 24 but three running plays netted only four yards and on the next try a fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Following an exchange of kicks midway in the period, Ridgeley got possession at midfield, and with the aid of a 15-yard penalty and a long pass shoved over a six-pointer. The conversion, a plunge into the line, failed, however and the Campers retained the lead at 7-6. The touchdown pass, thrown by Zimmerman, was caught by Wallace Carr, standing in the end zone.

Allegany's second touchdown came on a drive that carried 60 yards. The Ballmen took the ball on their own 40 and marched straight down the field, ringing up three first downs on the way. A reverse, Yoder to Bill Chandlee from the three-yard ribbon produced the score. Quarterback Tommy Rudd bucked the line for the conversion.

Lookabaugh Whole Show

Not long after the second half got under way, the Alleganians scored again, this time taking the ball from kickoff and again marching uninterrupted for the counter. Spinners and reverses were the only plays used during the surge. Runs of 31 and 21 yards were clicked off by James with the aid of sharp blocking.

Incidentally, the touchdown was made on a fumble. Bill Chandlee picked up a first on the Ridgeley one following James' second run and on the next play the latter fumbled when hit and the ball bounded into the end zone where Rudd pounced on it for the score. A screen pass to Chandlee produced the extra marker.

Lookabaugh was the whole show in the backfield for the losers, the big fullback driving hard through the line to pick up necessary yardage and heaving aerials with equal skill.

Francis F. Frisch Seen As Champ 1940 Manager

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—It may be that Francis F. Frisch, the stocky, gray, needle-tongued little bundle of baseball who leads the Pittsburgh Pirates, is the champion manager of 1940. In some ways, I think he is.

Much can be said for deacon Will McKechnie, who has won a pennant comfortably with a ball club which is mediocre as pennant-winners go. Much can be said for Leo Durocher, who sparked another mediocre ball club to a point well over its head in the standing. Much can—or should—be said for Delmar David Baker, who patched together a team of veterans, has-beens and cripples, and kept it flying high all year.

But all three of those fellows got fine co-operation from start to finish, while Mr. Frisch, taking over in Pittsburgh, was taught to expect no co-operation whatever—and what is more, he got none, until he whaled it out of a group of athletes famous for training violations and for stubborn defeatism.

Pirates Had the Makings

I am not going to argue that Francis built something out of nothing, for that would be overstating the case. The Pirates had the makings of a good ball club. Mr. Frisch admits it.

"All along it was a hitting club that didn't hit when it should of," he says. "We had the fielders, but they didn't make the plays they should. We had everything but the pitchers, and even a couple of those were not as bad as they looked."

Frankie did work some minor miracles with the pitching. The rest, as he says, was already there. What his job comes to, in retrospect, is a combination of patience, baseball shrewdness, sharp wit, and flaming, shaming example. Leo Durocher, who never liked Frisch, told me once that it was practically impossible not to play your best ball for Frankie.

"Whether you liked him or not," said Durocher, "you saw him out there every day breathing baseball and moving around with every play, and you knew what kind of a ball player he was himself and what he expected, and you felt like a heel if you didn't give it to him. As a matter of fact, you had to give it to him, if there was any baseball in you."

Watching Frisch work, suffer, fight and never quit this season must have had its effect on the Pirates. Remember, though, that Frisch is not a silent fighter, or quietly patient. Nor does he use his tongue merely to lash the enemy and mock umpires. He can be effectively caustic with his own players.

Bowman's Language Costly

Joe Bowman was a pitcher who could be useful to Frisch, and Francis knew it. In the early part of the season, with the Pirates mired in the cellar, Frisch told Bowman he was fined fifty dollars for missing a signal.

Bowman replied with a scornful and highly unprintable word.

"That'll be seventy-five dollars," said Frisch quickly. "If you know any three-syllable words, I'll make it a hundred."

That same week Paul Waner arrived late at a team meeting and explained genially that he had been busy apartment-hunting and had just signed a lease on a cosy flat in Pittsburgh.

"In Pittsburgh?" snapped Frisch. "That may have been a bad mistake, Mr. Waner."

Bowman is not a great pitcher, but he's been working hard for Frisch since then. Paul Waner, no longer a star but a pinch-hitter and part-time outfielder, has given valuable service. And the infield, which played ball like men in a nightmare in May, has regained confidence under careful handling and does not blow up with the passing of every pitcher.

Replacements have been made shrewdly and inexpensively. Debs Garms, Al Lopez, John Lanning were not stars or name players, but Frisch knew their work, and they have helped him where he needs it. Rip Sewell was never, and still is not, a pitcher with great natural equipment, but Frisch quickly perceived that he had courage and control, and today Rip is the most consistent winner in the league.

Sixth place to third place is a good jump, but the Pirates can go farther. They are just learning what it is to play for a man who will not let you lose until you are honestly beaten.

Many Entries in For Jaloppy Races

Entries are still pouring in for the Jaloppy auto races to be held at the Cumberland Fairgrounds Sunday and according to indications, the event will be one of the largest of its kind to be staged here.

At stake will be the Maryland-Pennsylvania-Virginia-West Virginia championship. Twenty-nine drivers of machines have already filed entry blanks.

It was announced the driver with the fastest time trial will be presented a watch by the Marple Jewelry Company. Some of the cars which will appear in the races will take part in a street parade this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Latest entries are Roy Lutman, Hancock; J. B. Newcome, New Paris, Pa.; John Andrews, Johnstown, Pa., and Elmer Selcher, Orville Carver, Lester Wheeler and "Buddy" Sechler, all of Kanter, Pa.

White Sox Sweep Second Twin Bill From Athletics

Remain on Fringe of Flag Fight in American 6-2 and 8 to 4

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP) — The ever-surprising Chicago White Sox swept their second straight doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics today, 6 to 2, and 8 to 4, to run their victory string to five games, remaining on the fringe of the free-for-all American League race.

Thornton Lee pitched a seven-hitter in the opener and rookie Jack Hallett, a big righthander making his major league debut, yielded only eight hits in the second game.

The Sox now are in sole possession of fourth place, a game and a half ahead of the Red Sox and two and a half games behind the third place Yankees.

The Athletics committed seven errors, three by shortstop Al Brancato in one inning of the second game, tying the major league record.

Higbe Hurls 13th Win on Thirteenth

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13 (AP)—Kirby Higbe turned his back on the superstitions of Friday the 13th and pitched the Phils to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs for his 13th triumph of the season.

He limited Chicago to four hits while his mates were collecting 11 safeties, two of them home runs by Joe Marty, off Charlie Root and Clay Bryant.

Hitting safely for the 15th consecutive game, rookie Danny Litwhiler, started the Phils' scoring in the first, driving in Art Mahn, who had smacked Root's offering for a double.

Root yielded nine hits and five runs in the four innings he lasted. Marty's first homer came in the third. He slammed his second into the left field stands from one of Bryant's slants in the fifth. Both times the sacks were empty.

Shell Three New York Hurlers for Sixteen Solid Socks

Cleveland Beats Boston in Mound Duel on Two Hits

DETROIT, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Detroit Tigers, baseball's hottest team in the September pennant run, all but chased the New York Yankees out of Bridges Stadium today with a 16-ply fusillade that brought an 8 to 0 victory over the world champions.

Tommy Bridges, the 33-year-old Tennesseeman who couldn't beat New York in the early years of his pitching career, limited the Yankees to six singles.

It was Detroit's eighth victory in the last nine games and the fifth straight over its foremost pennant challengers—the Cleveland Indians and New York.

A crowd of 25,514 watched the one-sided affair. The victory kept the Tigers still a half game up on the Indians, who shut out Boston, 1 to 0, at Cleveland.

In scoring his 11th victory of the year, Bridges started most unimpressively, the Yanks getting to him for three solid hits in the first two innings. Thereafter New York didn't get a runner beyond first base.

Marius Russo, the young left-hander who had won seven straight games, was battered for eight hits and six scores by the mighty Detroit run-producing machine before giving up with none out in the fourth. Steve Sundra and Bump Hadley shared the relief assignment and both were shelled plenty.

Indians Beat Boston On Two Hits by 1-0 Score

CLEVELAND, Sept. 13 (AP)—Young Jim Bagby threw a sterling two-hit performance at the pennant-hungry Cleveland Indians this Friday the 13th and still dropped a 1 to 0 decision.

The reason was Al Milnar. The big Cleveland southpaw granted the Boston Red Sox three singles but kept them scattered to give the Indians their third straight triumph.

Roy Weatherly scored the solitary run. Opening the third inning, he singled through shortstop on the first pitch. Jeff Heath followed with a one-baser to right which put the fleet Cleveland center fielder on third.

Lou Boudreau, next up, grounded into a double play at second and first. Weatherly scored while it was being manufactured.

The only blows off Milnar, who now has won 16 and lost eight, were Jimmy Foxx' single with two out in the first, Joe Cronin's one-baser to center to lead off the eighth and Roger Cramer's single with one down in the ninth.

In the last two sessions, Milnar really pitched his way out of trouble. He killed Boston hopes in the eighth as Bobby Doerr popped to Beau Bell and Charlie Gelbert flied high to Weatherly. Gene Desautels, catching again in a lineup swith which sent Foxx back to first base, walked, but Bagby could do no better than force Desautels at second.

Campers Score in First Three Periods To Rout Ridgeley, 21-6

Allegany High School's 1940 gridiron express last night celebrated the opening of the scholastic grid season by rolling to an impressive 21-6 victory over Coach Bill Hahn's Ridgeley High eleven at the Fort Hill Stadium.

The driving shaft of the smooth Allegany pigskin machines of the past three seasons—"Jarrin' Jim" Gaffney—was absent, but the spirit was there, as were a group of promising backs, speedy and capable of showing plenty of deception.

The Campobello bombers punched over scores in the first three stanzas, reeled off 12 first downs and piled up 253 yards on running plays. The Blue and White, however, did not completely outclass the Hahnmen for the Ridgeleyites amassed eight first downs themselves and presented a combined ground and air attack that forced the Campers to keep on their toes. The Black and White's yardage on the ground totaled 156 yards and three completed passes netted 51.

Campers Play Alert

Allegany took advantage of the first "break" in the game, a fumble by Ridgeley, early in the first period, by marching 32 yards for the first score of the game.

Vernon Miller kicked off for the Campers to start the game, Bob Zimmerman taking the leather on the 19-yard line and returning it six yards to the 25. Captain John "Bud" Lookabaugh handed the ball to Zimmerman on the first scrimmage play of the tilt, with the latter skirting seven yards through tackle before being brought down.

Zimmerman, however, on the next play fumbled and Bill Yoder recovered for Allegany on the Ridgeley 32. On eight plays, all running, the Campers planted the ball in the end zone for a touchdown, Yoder going over from the one-yard line. Bille "Jesse" James plunged the point.

The West Virginians came right back on the series of plays following the next kickoff to penetrate deep in Allegany territory, but failed to advance any further than the Blue and White's 20. Lookabaugh returned Miller's boot to the 31 and then picked up two yards at tackle. On a reverse, Lookabaugh to Washabaugh, the latter scooted 50 yards, the longest single gain of the game, before being brought down from behind on a beautiful tackle by James.

Ridgeley Pass Fails

That particular play put the ball on the Allegany 24 but three running plays netted only four yards and on the next try a fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

Following an exchange of kicks midway in the period, Ridgeley got possession at midfield, and with the aid of a 15-yard penalty and a long pass shoved over a six-pointer. The conversion, a plunge into the line, failed, however and the Campers retained the lead at 7-6. The touchdown pass, thrown by Zimmerman, was caught by Wallace Carr, standing in the end zone.

Allegany's second touchdown came on a drive that carried 60 yards. The Ballmen took the ball on their own 40 and marched straight down the field, ringing up three first downs on the way. A reverse, Yoder to Bill Chandlee from the three-yard ribbon produced the score. Quarterback Tommy Rudd bucked the line for the conversion.

Lookabaugh Whole Show

Not long after the second half got under way, the Alleganians scored again, this time taking the ball from kickoff and again marching uninterrupted for the counter. Spinners and reverses were the only plays used during the surge. Runs of 31 and 21 yards were clicked off by James with the aid of sharp blocking.

Incidentally, the touchdown was made on a fumble. Bill Chandlee picked up a first on the Ridgeley one following James' second run and on the next play the latter fumbled when hit and the ball bounded into the end zone where Rudd pounced on it for the score. A screen pass to Chandlee produced the extra marker.

Lookabaugh was the whole show in the backfield for the losers, the big fullback driving hard through the line to pick up necessary yardage and heaving aerials with equal skill.

Francis F. Frisch Seen As Champ 1940 Manager

(Released by North American Newspaper Alliance)

By JOHN LARDNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 13—It may be that Francis F. Frisch, the stocky, gray, needle-tongued little bundle of baseball who leads the Pittsburgh Pirates, is the champion manager of 1940. In some ways, I think he is.

Much can be said for deacon Will McKechnie, who has won a pennant comfortably with a ball club which is mediocre as pennant-winners go. Much can be said for Leo Durocher, who sparked another mediocre ball club to a point well over its head in the standing. Much can—or should—be said for Delmar David Baker, who patched together a team of veterans, has-beens and cripples, and kept it flying high all year.

But all three of those fellows got fine co-operation from start to finish, while Mr. Frisch, taking over in Pittsburgh, was taught to expect no co-operation whatever—and what is more, he got none, until he whaled it out of a group of athletes famous for training violations and for stubborn defeatism.

Pirates Had the Makings

I am not going to argue that Francis built something out of nothing, for that would be overstating the case. The Pirates had the makings of a good ball club, Mr. Frisch admits it.

"All along it was a hitting club that didn't hit when it should of," he says. "We had the fielders, but they didn't make the plays they should. We had everything but the pitchers, and even a couple of those were not as bad as they looked."

Frankie did work some minor miracles with the pitching. The rest, as he says, was already there. What his job comes to, in retrospect, is a combination of patience, baseball shrewdness, sharp wit, and flaming, shaming example. Leo Durocher, who never liked Frisch, told me once that it was practically impossible not to play your best ball for Frankie.

"Whether you liked him or not," said Durocher, "you saw him out there every day breathing baseball and moving around with every play, and you knew what kind of a ball player he was himself and what he expected, and you felt like a heel if you didn't give it to him. As a matter of fact, you had to give it to him, if there was any baseball in you."

Watching Frisch work, suffer, fight and never quit this season must have had its effect on the Pirates. Remember, though, that Frisch is not a silent fighter, or quietly patient. Nor does he use his tongue merely to lash the enemy and mock umpires. He can be effectively caustic with his own players.

Bowman's Language Costly

Joe Bowman was a pitcher who could be useful to Frisch, and Francis knew it. In the early part of the season, with the Pirates mired in the cellar, Frisch told Bowman he was fined fifty dollars for missing a signal.

Bowman replied with a scornful and highly unprintable word.

"That'll be seventy-five dollars," said Frisch quickly. "If you know any three-syllable words, I'll make it a hundred."

That same week Paul Waner arrived late at a team meeting and explained genially that he had been busy apartment-hunting and had just signed a lease on a cosy flat in Pittsburgh.

"In Pittsburgh?" snapped Frisch. "That may have been a bad mistake, Mr. Waner."

Bowman is not a great pitcher, but he's been working hard for Frisch since then. Paul Waner, no longer a star but a pinch-hitter and part-time outfielder, has given valuable service. And the infield, which played ball like men in a nightmare in May, has regained confidence under careful handling and does not blow up with the passing of every pitcher.

Replacements have been made shrewdly and inexpensively. Debs Garms, Al Lopez, John Lanning were not stars or name players, but Frisch knew their work, and they have helped him where he needs it. Rip Sewell was never, and still is not, a pitcher with great natural equipment, but Frisch quickly perceived that he had courage and control, and today Rip is the most consistent winner in the league.

Sixth place to third place is a good jump, but the Pirates can go farther. They are just learning what it is to play for a man who will not let you lose until you are honestly beaten.

Many Entries in For Jaloppy Races

Entries are still pouring in for the jaloppy auto races to be held at the Cumberland Fairgrounds Sunday and according to indications, the event will be one of the largest of its kind to be staged here.

At stake will be the Maryland-Pennsylvania-Virginia-West Virginia championship. Twenty-nine drivers of machines have already filed entry blanks.

It was announced the driver with the fastest time trial will be presented a watch by the Marple Jewelry Company. Some of the cars which will appear in the races will take part in a street parade this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Latest entries are Roy Lutman, Hancock; J. B. Newcome, New Paris, Pa.; John Andrews, Johnstown, Pa., and Elmer Selcher, Orville Carver, Lester Wheeler and "Buddy" Sechler, all of Kanter, Pa.

White Sox Sweep Second Twin Bill From Athletics

Remain on Fringe of Flag Fight in American 6-2 and 8 to 4

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP) — The ever-surprising Chicago White Sox swept their second straight doubleheader with the Philadelphia Athletics today, 6 to 2, and 8 to 4, to run their victory string to five games, remaining on the fringe of the free-for-all American League race.

Thornton Lee pitched a seven-hitter in the opener and rookie Jack Hallett, a big righthander making his major league debut, yielded only eight hits in the second game.

The Sox now are in sole possession of fourth place, a game and a half ahead of the Red Sox and two and a half games behind the third place Yankees.

The Athletics committed seven errors, three by shortstop Al Brancato in one inning of the second game, tying the major league record.

Higbe Hurls 13th Win on Thirteenth

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 13 (AP)—Kirby Higbe turned his back on the superstitions of Friday the 13th and pitched the Phils to a 6-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs for his 13th triumph of the season.

He limited Chicago to four hits while his mates were collecting 11 safeties, two of them home runs by Joe Marty, off Charlie Root and Clay Bryant.

Hitting safely for the 15th consecutive game, rookie Danny Litwhiler, started the Phils' scoring in the first, driving in Art Mahn, who had smacked Root's offering for a double.

Root yielded nine hits and five runs in the four innings he lasted. Marty's first homer came in the third. He slammed his second into the left field stands from one of Bryant's slants in the fifth. Both times the sacks were empty.

World Series Opener To Be Played Oct. 2

National League Winner To Be Host For First Games

Day of Travel To Be Allowed if Eastern Team Wins American

Representatives of Seven Teams Meet with Judge Landis

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP) — As all baseball watched the closest pennant battle in the American League's 40-year history, the opening date of the 1940 world series was fixed today as Wednesday, Oct. 2, in the home park of the team wining the National League flag.

This was decided at a meeting before baseball commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis—a session attended by representatives of no fewer than five American League clubs and two from the National circuit.

The first two games of the fall classic will be played in the National League city, with the scene shifting to the American League park for the third, fourth and, if necessary, fifth contests. If the last two games of the four-out-of-seven series are necessary, they will be played in the home park of the National Leaguers.

All games will start at 1:30 p. m., standard time.

Should either the New York Yankees or Boston represent the American League against Cincinnati—which has a big lead in the National League race—one day will be allowed for travel between the second and third games. No travel days will be required provided Detroit, Cleveland or Chicago are the American League representative.

Prices will be the same as last year at Chicago, Detroit, New York and Brooklyn—box seats, $6.60; reserved grandstand seats, $5.50; unreserved grandstand $3.30; and bleacher seats at $1.10. Prices will be slightly higher in Ohio to meet state taxes.

The largest number of players certified as eligible for world series competition, 171, was named during the meeting. These clubs each had 25 players named eligible: Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Cincinnati and Brooklyn; the Yankees 24 men, and the Chicago White Sox 22.

Cards Come Back To Beat Boston 9 to 3

BOSTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals rebounded behind the veteran Lon Warneke today and regained some of their lost ground by hammering three of four Boston Bees' pitchers for 11 hits and a 9-3 victory.

Despite their impressive success against the Cardinals yesterday, the Bees were unable to threaten at any stage, for Warneke kept most of their eight hits well scattered.

The Cardinals pounded starter Dick Errickson for eight hits and five runs before he was replaced by Joe Sullivan in the sixth and that lefthander was effective until the ninth, when the Cards got two more tallies on the two passes and Don Padgett's single. St. Louis then belted Nick Strincevich for their last two tallies.

Liberty Dairy and Trozzo's in 4-4 Tie

Liberty Dairy and the Trozzo Whirlwinds battled to a 4-4 seven inning deadlock in their South End Booster League game yesterday.

Trozzo's got away to a three run lead in the first and added another marker in the second but were held scoreless the rest of the way. Liberty did not score until the fifth when three runs were plated with the deadlock counter coming in the sixth.

Liberty got six bingles with Trozzo's thumping seven.

Keyser High Tornado Plays Fort Hill High At Stadium Tonight

A new Keyser High School Coach, John Shelton, will bring a veteran Golden Tornado football team to the Sentinels' stadium tonight to meet the expectedly improved team under the tutelage of Coach John Long.

Things have been humming at the Sentinel campus and Coach Long is said to be humming also at prospects of an improved Scarlet and White eleven this season. Last year Fort Hill won eight of ten games but the holdover material has shown much improvement and has the experience gained last season to boot.

Shelton was handed a veteran Keyser team, one which suffered from inexperience last year but was on the improve at the close of the season.

The former Davis and Elkins College star who had a good year his first year out of college when he led the Elk Garden High teams, has been grooming his charges for several weeks and hopes to give the Sentinels a better battle than last year when Fort Hill won 33 to 0.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—After standing around a green holding our breath until spots danced before our eyes and our face began to look like a slowly inflating purple balloon, this corner would like to voice a mild protest against puttering putters, the guys who all but go to night school to study a line from the ball to the cup.

This gradually growing resentment reached a boiling point in watching a national amateur match between Ray Billows and Harry Haverstick, a couple of challengers for the title of king of the green creepers. Skip Alexander, the Duke lad, is recognized as champion in many states.

We trailed Billows and Haverstick for several holes, and are convinced there isn't a thing the worms and the ants know about the greens that they don't know. Jeepers creepers, how they used their peepers.

* * *

Here would be a fair sample: Billows' ball would be about eight feet from the cup. He'd walk over behind it, squint along the line. Then he'd call his caddy over as a one-man board of strategy, and together they would get down on hands and knees and peer intently. If some one had hollered "shift" you would have expected them to leap nimbly to one side and wait for the ball to be snapped.

Then Billows would walk around the cup in a wide arc, meanwhile eyeing the ball menacingly, as if he were going to make a pass at it at any moment. From the other side of the cup he and his caddy again would get down in charging position, and after they had agreed upon the terrain, grain of the grass, wind velocity, depth at high tide and effect of the Sun's rays, Billows would take his stance and, after a respectful interval, tap the ball.

Haverstick matches these tactics, and they both turned in their masterpieces on the 18th, where for 10 minutes they kept a crowd of 1,000 or more breathing in low gear and getting cramps in the ears from the cold silence.

Just how much good all this short course business does is problematical. Billows and Haverstick are two fine young fellows, and they get their share of the putts. If they are convinced they can get better results going over the green like a pointer flushing out quail, that's their business, and watching them isn't compulsory.

However, some of the best putters are guys who walk up to their ball, take a quick gander to see that nobody has put a lid on the cup, and let fly.

* * *

It was the late Alex Smith who used to say: "Miss 'em quick," and the leading exponent of this system is Gene Sarazen, one of the best shotmakers who keeps the galleries loping to keep up with him. Sam Snead is another of the "here's the cup, there's the ball—bank" type. He and Sarazen played the morning 18 holes of their recent P. G. A. match at Hershey in two hours and 15 minutes, although slowed by the gallery.

The veteran Willie MacFarlane was the first to be off in the National Open at Denver two years ago. He and his partner finished three holes ahead of the next twosome.

Horton Smith generally is recognized as the best putter in the game today, and he's a little on the fast side. He takes one good squint and swings. Byron Nelson and Henry Picard also are on the fast side, but Ralph Guldahl and Ben Hogan are slow. Guldahl, however, is methodical on all his shots.

Probably it's a matter of temperament. It has been said that a great putter can see the line instinctively. So the next time you have a curling 15 footer just throw away your putter and use your instinct.

McCullough and Chapman Meet in Amateur Finals

Latter Stages Comeback To Win After Poor Morning Round

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—One of the strongest comebacks in the history of the national amateur golf championship carried Dick Chapman into the final of the 1940 tournament today against Warrington Bannerman McCullough, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Chapman was 5 down to Wilford Wehrle of Chicago after the first nine holes of their 36-hole semi-final match. He was hooking and slicing drives into traps and trouble, he was hitting sloppy second shots and his putter wasn't of any more use to him than six feet of garden hose. He was out in 42, six over par.

But he choked off what had all the earmarks of a frightful blowup right there. From the tenth to the 18th Wehrle didn't win a hole, and Chapman won six. That put him 1 up.

In the afternoon, before a gallery that swelled to some 3,500, Chapman kept to a steady par pace and came in the winner by 3 and 2. After the morning round Wehrle was bewildered. By the time the match was over, he simply couldn't talk.

Did Impossible

Tomorrow morning Chapman will tee off against McCullough, the man who accomplished what all the experts said couldn't be done in this amateur tournament. The baldish Philadelphian, a 100 to 1 shot when match play started, plowed steadily through the field, knocking off two ex-champions on the way, and finally gaining the title bracket by beating Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a finalist two of the last three years, 5 and 3.

Where Chapman had to come from far behind McCullough got the jump on Billows at the first hole and never let up.

So up and down were the two morning halves of the Chapman-Wehrle match they almost defied analysis. Chapman hit only one fairway with his teet shots on the front nine. But from the eleventh hole to the 19th, Wehrle didn't hit a single green in par.

Chapman played that back nine in 34 two under par, with 14 putts. He broke the Chicagoan's heart on the 19th by laying him a stymie from 12 yards after Wehrle had come out of the rough to within 5 feet of the pin. The crusher came when Wilford jumped the stymie perfectly, only to see his ball hit the back of the cup and spin away.

Close Finish

At the 29th, Wehrle laid an iron shot eight feet from the pin for a conceded birdie, and was only 1 down. But he missed a 10-foot putt at the 30th, and at the 32nd Chapman went 2 up with 3 to go, winning the hole with an almost unbelievable par as Wehrle took three to get down from the edge.

At the 33rd, Wehrle's approach hit a trap. He made a fine out, 6 feet away. But Chapman blocked the path by laying him a stimie. A half on the 34th closed out the match.

McCullough, 4 up at lunch time, won four holes to Billows' 3 on the first afternoon nine to make it 5. He hit his most spectacular shot at the short 28th, where he holed out over a trap from 60 feet away for a deuce. Billows won two of the next four holes, but on the 33rd green, Ray missed a six-foot putt and McCullough had proved how far a dark horse sometimes can run.

Hyndman High Opens Grid Campaign Today

HYNDMAN, Pa., Sept. 13—With a promising and adequate supply of material, Coach Eddie McVicker believes that Hyndman High School will be able to make a name for itself on the gridiron this season.

The Pennsylvanians, who will open their campaign tomorrow night by meeting Bedford High at Bedford, will play eight games with all but two with state rivals. The only out-of-state foes are the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney and Piedmont (W. Va.) High.

Newcomers are Don Coughenour, Allen Shroyer, James Pick, William Leckemby, Russell Shaffer, Donald Harclerode and Roy Evans. The schedule follows:

Sept. 14—Bedford, away.
Sept. 21—Broad Top, home.
Sept. 28—Boswell, away.
Oct. 4—Piedmont, home.
Oct. 12—W. Va. Deaf School, away.
Oct. 19—Claysburg, home.
Oct. 26—Robertsdale, home.
Nov. 2—Meyersdale, away.

WMI League's Fall Meeting This Morning

The annual fall meeting of the Western Maryland Interscholastic League will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Board of Education offices on Washington street.

Officers will be elected and revival of soccer and fieldball, which have been missing from the county sports picture, will be considered.

Green Terrors To Be Well Fortified Behind Poor Line

But Sophomores May Plug Wall Which Was 1939 Headache

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—The Green Terrors of Western Maryland College, who won only one football game last season, will be gunning for sweet revenge this year with eleven lettermen returning and a likely crop of sophomores battling for varsity berths.

Coach Charlie Havens will have plenty of backs, including two who rated All-Maryland, but he is due for more headaches with the line, which was last year's chief weakness. The backfield will average about 180 pounds; the line slightly more.

A big gap was left at tackle when Petrucci, a 220-pounder, was lost through scholastic ineligibility, but the veteran Bob Faw will be back, along with James Thomas, a junior; Fred Bohn and Bill Wall, sophomores, and Hank Holljes, a letterman out with injuries last year.

At the guard positions, where 12 men were tried last year, there will be Harry Baker, a letterman; John Pirie, Narcis Orloski and Emil Grenda, juniors; and the sophomores Allen Cohen, Ridgely Freidel and George Barrick. Baker and Cohen are standouts here.

Other Vets Back

Vic Impeciato and Bill Sturm, both seniors and lettermen, will get first call at the ends, bolstered by the up and coming sophs, Royce Gibson, Bernard Gugesky, Frank Suffern and James Roby.

Heading the groups of backs are Mack Pike, All-Maryland fullback last year, and Lester Knepp, All-Maryland in 1938. In addition, there will be Ervin Biasi and Kenneth Bills, lettermen; Bob Bricker, a junior; and Manuel Kaylan, Albert Nowak, Adam Sly and Robert Sorensen, sophomores.

The Terrors open their schedule Oct. 12 with Mt. St. Mary's here. The remainder of the schedule is: Oct. 18, Bucknell at Baltimore, night; 9:5.25, Maryland at Baltimore, night; Nov. 2, Dickinson at Carlisle, Pa.; Nov. 9, Washington College here; Nov. 16, LaFayette at Easton, Pa.; Nov. 23, Boston U. at Boston.

Dodgers Defeat Pirates by 8 to 2

BROOKLYN, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Dodgers, paced by the fine pitching of Rookie Ed Head who chalked up his first major league victory—and by a six run outburst in the sixth inning—made it three straight over the Pittsburgh Pirates today by an 8-2 score.

The victory helped tighten the Brooks' hold on second place in the National League.

The Dodgers got to Klinger in the sixth, chasing him to the showers while they mixed six hits, two walks and an error for their six runs.

WINGED FOOT G. C.—As the final round of another U. S. Amateur golf championship comes along, old timers at Winged Foot were talking of the best finals of past year.

There haven't been so many that were exciting. In the majority of cases, the winner took charge of the match early in the day and increased his lead to the finish.

One of the two golfers usually buckles up after a hard week's play and falls well back. It may be different at Winged Foot this time, but if so it will be a big chance.

The last extra hole I recall is the meeting between Jess Sweetser and Max Marston in 1923 at Flossmoore, Chicago. That match went 38 holes before Marston finally won.

I recall that the keenness of the gallery reached such a pitch that Sweetser was knocked down, as he moved up to play his second shot on the second extra hole.

There was another warm finish when George Von Elm beat Bobby Jones at Baltusrol around 1928 in a battle that ended on the 35th green. Ray Billows also put up a great stretch run at Portland.

But most of these final matches have been somewhat one-sided. It would be interesting to have another final round carried at least to the final green.

Pulling for Tigers

The American League race this season has set another record. As a rule the golf bug is 100 percent golf. Nothing else matters.

Even during the baseball season you'll hear a flock of big league ball players talking golf.

But at Winged Foot a big part of the gallery has been looking for afternoon results involving Detroit, Cleveland and New York. More than a few scrambled away from the course to look up some radio and get the last returns. I found the majority at Winged Foot pulling for the Tigers. The general idea was that Cleveland had forfeited any right to win and that the Yankees had won too often.

They were also pulling for a team picked last April to finish in the second division, now in the middle of the pennant row. When you can get golfers switched to another topic, it has to be something out of the ordinary.

Competitive Strain Tells

Golf is full of odd mental strains. For example Cochran had Strafaci 3 down and 3 to play a day or so back. Cochran had a 3 foot putt to close out the match at 3 and 2. You could sense the tense and taut situation as he faced the putt. The ball failed to drop and from that point on Cochran was an entirely different golfer. After playing well all day, he suddenly reached the point where he couldn't hit another shot with any club in the bag. He lost the next 4 holes.

The general opinion among the leading pros is that Bud Ward is one of the finest amateurs of many years. He is ranked close to Bobby Jones and Lawson Little, as one who could hold his own with the best of the professionals at either match or medal play.

As Gene Sarazen says—"What more can you ask? He is a first class wood club player and a fine, long iron player. He can pitch and putt. He is exceptionally good around the greens. He has the winning type of temperament. This doesn't mean he won't have his bad days and get beaten—even by some amateur well below him in skill. He has the shots and he knows how to play them. He also has the needed confidence in himself."

It was also generally agreed that in addition to being a fine golfer, Ray Billows was one of the best of the competitors. He proved that on Wednesday when Billy Dear had Ray 1 down and 1 to play. Billows was badly bunkered on his second shot. He looked to be completely out of the winning picture. The ball was resting in the sand close to a steep bank. Yet his explosion shot left him only a 4 or 5 foot putt and that found the middle of the cup. The main point is that Billows, standing in the bunker, looked as cool and as unconcerned as if he had been in the middle of the green.

Bob Jones Back in Form

Watching Bobby Jones in the gallery, it doesn't seem possible that he began his championship career 24 years ago. He was only 14 when he reached the last eight at Merion in 1916 and for a while had Bob Gardner, defending champion on the run.

Bobby has suddenly come back to his best form. He played ten rounds at Eastlake, his home course, recently between 65 and 69. He is playing a Red Cross match on Sunday in Philadelphia with Horton Smith, Jimmy Thomson, Ed Dudley and Bing Crosby. We were talking about his Merion debut in 1916.

"It would have been a crime for a 14 year old kid to have won," Bob said, "but I don't think then that it was going to take me seven more years to break through. I guess the answer is that I learned more getting beaten than I could ever have learned as a winner."

Jinx Beats Giants For Cincinnati 5-2

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Giants are fully convinced that Friday the 13th is a jinx—after losing a 5-2 decision to the league leading Cincinnati Reds.

The once-mighty Carl Hubbell was touched for the loss, his tenth of the season as against 11 won, and two errors by his pal, Mell Ott at third base cost Hub two of the runs scored against him, giving rise to the jinx belief.

Lefty Johnny Vander Meer, making his second start since his recall from Indianapolis turned wild in the third inning and had to be relieved by Lefty Witt Guise, 32-year-old rookie from Columbia, S. C. He gave up in the sixth when Joe Beggs came in to earn his eighth straight relief victory.

It was ladies' day and fair weather but only 3,576 were present, probably due to the fact that the Giants had been eliminated from the flag race yesterday.

Fall Race Season Ushered in Today at Havre de Grace

Ten Good Two-year-olds Named for Feature of Program

By MASON BRUNSON

HAVRE DE GRACE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Maryland's 64-day fall racing season opens here tomorrow with the $10,000-added Eastern Shore Handicap highlighting the opening program of Havre De Grace's 13-day meeting.

Ten good two-year-olds were named for the six furlong feature. Topping the list were Crispin Ogleby's smart filly, Level Best, recent winner of the Old Colony Stakes at Narragansett, and C. S. Howard's Porter's Cap, winner of the Washington Park futurity.

Level best, who has won five races in six starts this year and is regarded as one of the best juveniles in training, drew top weight of 122 pounds. Porter's cap, a stablemate of Kayak II, was rated next in line with 120 pounds.

Also named were Cavalier, 106; Little Beans, 116; Magic Stream, 120; Grand Party, 112; Madigana, 110; Good turn, 116; Wise Brave, 108, and Big Stakes, 118.

Indications were that the Eastern Shore Cup would develop into a contest between Level Best and Porter's Cap, both top-ranking juveniles.

Supporting the feature is the $2,500-added Susquehanna Handicap, for three-year-olds and up, and also over the six-furlong distance. Entered in the Susquehanna were Bill Farnsworth, Early Morn, Arden Lass, Pass Out, Gay Balko and Redlin.

After the meeting here closes, the thoroughbreds will move on to Laruel for 25 days of racing and thence to Pimlico and Bowie, each with 13-day meetings.

World Series Opener To Be Played Oct. 2

National League Winner To Be Host For First Games

Day of Travel To Be Allowed if Eastern Team Wins American

Representatives of Seven Teams Meet with Judge Landis

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP) — As all baseball watched the closest pennant battle in the American League's 40-year history, the opening date of the 1940 world series was fixed today as Wednesday, Oct. 2, in the home park of the team wining the National League flag.

This was decided at a meeting before baseball commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis—a session attended by representatives of no fewer than five American League clubs and two from the National circuit.

The first two games of the fall classic will be played in the National League city, with the scene shifting to the American League park for the third, fourth and, if necessary, fifth contests. If the last two games of the four-out-of-seven series are necessary, they will be played in the home park of the National Leaguers.

All games will start at 1:30 p. m., standard time.

Should either the New York Yankees or Boston represent the American League against Cincinnati—which has a big lead in the National League race—one day will be allowed for travel between the second and third games. No travel days will be required provided Detroit, Cleveland or Chicago are the American League representative.

Prices will be the same as last year at Chicago, Detroit, New York and Brooklyn—box seats, $6.60; reserved grandstand seats, $5.50; unreserved grandstand $3.30; and bleacher seats at $1.10. Prices will be slightly higher in Ohio to meet state taxes.

The largest number of players certified as eligible for world series competition, 171, was named during the meeting. These clubs each had 25 players named eligible: Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Cincinnati and Brooklyn; the Yankees 24 men, and the Chicago White Sox 22.

Cards Come Back To Beat Boston 9 to 3

BOSTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals rebounded behind the veteran Lon Warneke today and regained some of their lost ground by hammering three of four Boston Bees' pitchers for 11 hits and a 9-3 victory.

Despite their impressive success against the Cardinals yesterday, the Bees were unable to threaten at any stage, for Warneke kept most of their eight hits well scattered.

The Cardinals pounded starter Dick Errickson for eight hits and five runs before he was replaced by Joe Sullivan in the sixth and that lefthander was effective until the ninth, when the Cards got two more tallies on the two passes and Don Padgett's single. St. Louis then belted Nick Strincevich for their last two tallies.

Liberty Dairy and Trozzo's in 4-4 Tie

Liberty Dairy and the Trozzo Whirlwinds battled to a 4-4 seven inning deadlock in their South End Booster League game yesterday.

Trozzo's got away to a three run lead in the first and added another marker in the second but were held scoreless the rest of the way. Liberty did not score until the fifth when three runs were plated with the deadlock counter coming in the sixth.

Liberty got six bingles with Trozzo's thumping seven.

Keyser High Tornado Plays Fort Hill High At Stadium Tonight

A new Keyser High School Coach, John Shelton, will bring a veteran Golden Tornado football team to the Sentinels' stadium tonight to meet the expectedly improved team under the tutelage of Coach John Long.

Things have been humming at the Sentinel campus and Coach Long is said to be humming also at prospects of an improved Scarlet and White eleven this season. Last year Fort Hill won eight of ten games but the holdover material has shown much improvement and has the experience gained last season to boot.

Shelton was handed a veteran Keyser team, one which suffered from inexperience last year but was on the improve at the close of the season.

The former Davis and Elkins College star who had a good year his first year out of college when he led the Elk Garden High teams, has been grooming his charges for several weeks and hopes to give the Sentinels a better battle than last year when Fort Hill won 33 to 0.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—After standing around a green holding our breath until spots danced before our eyes and our face began to look like a slowly inflating purple balloon, this corner would like to voice a mild protest against puttering putters, the guys who all but go to night school to study a line from the ball to the cup.

This gradually growing resentment reached a boiling point in watching a national amateur match between Ray Billows and Harry Haverstick, a couple of challengers for the title of king of the green creepers. Skip Alexander, the Duke lad, is recognized as champion in many states.

We trailed Billows and Haverstick for several holes, and are convinced there isn't a thing the worms and the ants know about the greens that they don't know. Jeepers creepers, how they used their peepers.

* * *

Here would be a fair sample: Billows' ball would be about eight feet from the cup. He'd walk over behind it, squint along the line. Then he'd call his caddy over as a one-man board of strategy, and together they would get down on hands and knees and peer intently. If some one had hollered "shift" you would have expected them to leap nimbly to one side and wait for the ball to be snapped.

Then Billows would walk around the cup in a wide arc, meanwhile eyeing the ball menacingly, as if he were going to make a pass at it at any moment. From the other side of the cup he and his caddy again would get down in charging position, and after they had agreed upon the terrain, grain of the grass, wind velocity, depth at high tide and effect of the Sun's rays, Billows would take his stance and, after a respectful interval, tap the ball.

Haverstick matches these tactics, and they both turned in their masterpieces on the 18th, where for 10 minutes they kept a crowd of 1,000 or more breathing in low gear and getting cramps in the ears from the cold silence.

Just how much good all this short course business does is problematical. Billows and Haverstick are two fine young fellows, and they get their share of the putts. If they are convinced they can get better results going over the green like a pointer flushing out quail, that's their business, and watching them isn't compulsory.

However, some of the best putters are guys who walk up to their ball, take a quick gander to see that nobody has put a lid on the cup, and let fly.

* * *

It was the late Alex Smith who used to say: "Miss 'em quick," and the leading exponent of this system is Gene Sarazen, one of the best shotmakers who keeps the galleries loping to keep up with him. Sam Snead is another of the "here's the cup, there's the ball—bank" type. He and Sarazen played the morning 18 holes of their recent P. G. A. match at Hershey in two hours and 15 minutes, although slowed by the gallery.

The veteran Willie MacFarlane was the first to be off in the National Open at Denver two years ago. He and his partner finished three holes ahead of the next twosome.

Horton Smith generally is recognized as the best putter in the game today, and he's a little on the fast side. He takes one good squint and swings. Byron Nelson and Henry Picard also are on the fast side, but Ralph Guldahl and Ben Hogan are slow. Guldahl, however, is methodical on all his shots.

Probably it's a matter of temperament. It has been said that a great putter can see the line instinctively. So the next time you have a curling 15 footer just throw away your putter and use your instinct.

McCullough and Chapman Meet in Amateur Finals

Latter Stages Comeback To Win After Poor Morning Round

MAMARONECK, N. Y., Sept. 13 (AP)—One of the strongest comebacks in the history of the national amateur golf championship carried Dick Chapman into the final of the 1940 tournament today against Warrington Bannerman McCullough, Jr., of Philadelphia.

Chapman was 5 down to Wilford Wehrle of Chicago after the first nine holes of their 36-hole semi-final match. He was bucking and [illegible] trouble, he was hitting sloppy second shots and his putter wasn't of any more use to him than six feet of garden hose. He was out in 42, six over par.

But he choked off what had all the earmarks of a frightful blowup right there. From the tenth to the 18th Wehrle didn't win a hole, and Chapman won six. That put him 1 up.

In the afternoon, before a gallery that swelled to some 3,500, Chapman kept to a steady par pace and came in the winner by 3 and 2. After the morning round Wehrle was bewildered. By the time the match was over, he simply couldn't talk.

Did Impossible

Tomorrow morning Chapman will tee off against McCullough, the man who accomplished what all the experts said couldn't be done in this amateur tournament. The baldish Philadelphian, a 100 to 1 shot when match play started, plowed steadily through the field, knocking off two ex-champions on the way, and finally gaining the title bracket by beating Ray Billows of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a finalist two of the last three years, 5 and 3.

Where Chapman had to come from far behind McCullough got the jump on Billows at the first hole and never let up.

So up and down were the two morning halves of the Chapman-Wehrle match they almost defied analysis. Chapman hit only one fairway with his teet shots on the front nine. But from the eleventh hole to the 19th, Wehrle didn't hit a single green in par.

Chapman played that back nine in 34 two under par, with 14 putts. He broke the Chicagoan's heart on the 19th by laying him a stymie from 12 yards after Wehrle had come out of the rough to within 5 feet of the pin. The crusher came when Wilford jumped the stymie perfectly, only to see his ball hit the back of the cup and spin away.

Close Finish

At the 29th, Wehrle laid an iron shot eight feet from the pin for a conceded birdie, and was only 1 down. But he missed a 10-foot putt at the 30th, and at the 32nd Chapman went 2 up with 3 to go, winning the hole with an almost unbelievable par as Wehrle took three to get down from the edge.

At the 33rd, Wehrle's approach hit a trap. He made a fine out, 6 feet away. But Chapman blocked the path by laying him a stimie. A half on the 34th closed out the match.

McCullough, 4 up at lunch time, won four holes to Billows' 3 on the first afternoon nine to make it 5. He hit his most spectacular shot at the short 28th, where he holed out over a trap from 60 feet away for a deuce. Billows won two of the next four holes, but on the 33rd green, Ray missed a six-foot putt and McCullough had proved how far a dark horse sometimes can run.

Hyndman High Opens Grid Campaign Today

HYNDMAN, Pa., Sept. 13—With a promising and adequate supply of material, Coach Eddie McVicker believes that Hyndman High School will be able to make a name for itself on the gridiron this season.

The Pennsylvanians, who will open their campaign tomorrow night by meeting Bedford High at Bedford, will play eight games with all but two with state rivals. The only out-of-state foes are the West Virginia School for the Deaf of Romney and Piedmont (W. Va.) High.

Newcomers are Don Coughenour, Allen Shroyer, James Pick, William Leckemby, Russell Shaffer, Donald Harclerode and Roy Evans. The schedule follows:

Sept. 14—Bedford, away.
Sept. 21—Broad Top, home.
Sept. 28—Boswell, away.
Oct. 4—Piedmont, home.
Oct. 12—W. Va. Deaf School, away.
Oct. 19—Claysburg, home.
Oct. 26—Robertsdale, home.
Nov. 2—Meyersdale, away.

WMI League's Fall Meeting This Morning

The annual fall meeting of the Western Maryland Interscholastic League will be held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Board of Education offices on Washington street.

Officers will be elected and revival of soccer and fieldball, which have been missing from the county sports picture, will be considered.

Green Terrors To Be Well Fortified Behind Poor Line

But Sophomores May Plug Wall Which Was 1939 Headache

WESTMINSTER, Md., Sept. 11 (AP)—The Green Terrors of Western Maryland College, who won only one football game last season, will be gunning for sweet revenge this year with eleven lettermen returning and a likely crop of sophomores battling for varsity berths.

Coach Charlie Havens will have plenty of backs, including two who rated All-Maryland, but he is due for more headaches with the line, which was last year's chief weakness. The backfield will average about 180 pounds; the line slightly more.

A big gap was left at tackle when Petrucci, a 220-pounder, was lost through scholastic ineligibility, but the veteran Bob Faw will be back, along with James Thomas, a junior; Fred Bohn and Bill Wall, sophomores, and Hank Holljes, a letterman out with injuries last year.

At the guard positions, where 12 men were tried last year, there will be Harry Baker, a letterman; John Pirie, Narcis Orloski and Emil Grenda, juniors; and the sophomores Allen Cohen, Ridgely Freidel and George Barrick. Baker and Cohen are standouts here.

Other Vets Back

Vic Impeciato and Bill Sturn, both seniors and lettermen, will get first call at the ends, bolstered by the up and coming sophs, Royce Gibson, Bernard Gugesky, Frank Suffern and James Roby.

Heading the groups of backs are Mack Pike, All-Maryland fullback last year, and Lester Knepp, All-Maryland in 1938. In addition, there will be Ervin Biasi and Kenneth Bills, lettermen; Bob Bricker, a junior; and Manuel Kaylan, Albert Nowak, Adam Sly and Robert Sorensen, sophomores.

The Terrors open their schedule Oct. 12 with Mt. St. Mary's here. The remainder of the schedule is: Oct. 18, Bucknell at Baltimore, night; 9:5.25, Maryland at Baltimore, night; Nov. 2, Dickinson at Carlisle, Pa.; Nov. 9, Washington College here; Nov. 16, LaFayette at Easton, Pa.; Nov. 23, Boston U. at Boston.

Dodgers Defeat Pirates by 8 to 2

BROOKLYN, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Dodgers, paced by the fine pitching of Rookie Ed Head who chalked up his first major league victory—and by a six run outburst in the sixth inning—made it three straight over the Pittsburgh Pirates today by an 8-2 score.

The victory helped tighten the Brooks' hold on second place in the National League.

The Dodgers got to Klinger in the sixth, chasing him to the showers while they mixed six hits, two walks and an error for their six runs.

WINGED FOOT G. C.—As the final round of another U. S. Amateur golf championship comes along, old timers at Winged Foot were talking of the best finals of past year.

There haven't been so many that were exciting. In the majority of cases, the winner took charge of the match early in the day and increased his lead to the finish.

One of the two golfers usually buckles up after a hard week's play and falls well back. It may be different at Winged Foot this time, but if so it will be a big chance.

The last extra hole I recall is the meeting between Jess Sweetser and Max Marston in 1923 at Flossmoore, Chicago. That match went 38 holes before Marston finally won.

I recall that the keenness of the gallery reached such a pitch that Sweetser was knocked down, as he moved up to play his second shot on the second extra hole.

There was another warm finish when George Von Elm beat Bobby Jones at Baltusrol around 1928 in a battle that ended on the 35th green. Ray Billows also put up a great stretch run at Portland.

But most of these final matches have been somewhat one-sided. It would be interesting to have another final round carried at least to the final green.

Pulling for Tigers

The American League race this season has set another record. As a rule the golf bug is 100 percent golf. Nothing else matters.

Even during the baseball season you'll hear a flock of big league ball players talking golf.

But at Winged Foot a big part of the gallery has been looking for afternoon results involving Detroit, Cleveland and New York. More than a few scrambled away from the course to look up some radio and get the last returns. I found the majority at Winged Foot pulling for the Tigers. The general idea was that Cleveland had forfeited any right to win and that the Yankees had won too often.

They were also pulling for a team picked last April to finish in the second division, now in the middle of the pennant row. When you can get golfers switched to another topic, it has to be something out of the ordinary.

Competitive Strain Tells

Golf is full of odd mental strains. For example Cochran had Strafaci 3 down and 3 to play a day or so back. Cochran had a 3 foot putt to close out the match at 3 and 2. You could sense the tense and taut situation as he faced the putt. The ball failed to drop and from that point on Cochran was an entirely different golfer. After playing well all day, he suddenly reached the point where he couldn't hit another shot with any club in the bag. He lost the next 4 holes.

The general opinion among the leading pros is that Bud Ward is one of the finest amateurs of many years. He is ranked close to Bobby Jones and Lawson Little, as one who could hold his own with the best of the professionals at either match or medal play.

As Gene Sarazen says—"What more can you ask? He is a first class wood club player and a fine, long iron player. He can pitch and putt. He is exceptionally good around the greens. He has the winning type of temperament. This doesn't mean he won't have his bad days and get beaten—even by some amateur well below him in skill. He has the shots and he knows how to play them. He also has the needed confidence in himself."

It was also generally agreed that in addition to being a fine golfer, Ray Billows was one of the best of the competitors. He proved that on Wednesday when Billy Dear had Ray 1 down and 1 to play. Billows was badly bunkered on his second shot. He looked to be completely out of the winning picture. The ball was resting in the sand close to a steep bank. Yet his explosion shot left him only a 4 or 5 foot putt and that found the middle of the cup. The main point is that Billows, standing in the bunker, looked as cool and as unconcerned as if he had been in the middle of the green.

Bob Jones Back in Form

Watching Bobby Jones in the gallery, it doesn't seem possible that he began his championship career 24 years ago. He was only 14 when he reached the last eight at Merion in 1916 and for a while had Bob Gardner, defending champion on the run.

Bobby has suddenly come back to his best form. He played ten rounds at Eastlake, his home course, recently between 65 and 69. He is playing a Red Cross match on Sunday in Philadelphia with Horton Smith, Jimmy Thomson, Ed Dudley and Bing Crosby. We were talking about his Merion debut in 1916.

"It would have been a crime for a 14 year old kid to have won," Bob said, "but I don't think then that it was going to take me seven more years to break through. I guess the answer is that I learned more getting beaten than I could ever have learned as a winner."

Jinx Beats Giants For Cincinnati 5-2

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP) — The Giants are fully convinced that Friday the 13th is a jinx—after losing a 5-2 decision to the league leading Cincinnati Reds.

The once-mighty Carl Hubbell was touched for the loss, his tenth of the season as against 11 won, and two errors by his pal, Mell Ott at third base cost Hub two of the runs scored against him, giving rise to the jinx belief.

Lefty Johnny Vander Meer, making his second start since his recall from Indianapolis turned wild in the third inning and had to be relieved by Lefty Witt Guise, 32-year-old rookie from Columbia, S. C. He gave up in the sixth when Joe Beggs came in to earn his eighth straight relief victory.

It was ladies' day and fair weather but only 3,576 were present, probably due to the fact that the Giants had been eliminated from the flag race yesterday.

Fall Race Season Ushered in Today at Havre de Grace

Ten Good Two-year-olds Named for Feature of Program

By MASON BRUNSON

HAVRE DE GRACE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Maryland's 64-day fall racing season opens here tomorrow with the $10,000-added Eastern Shore Handicap highlighting the opening program of Havre De Grace's 13-day meeting.

Ten good two-year-olds were named for the six furlong feature. Topping the list were Crispin Ogleby's smart filly, Level Best, recent winner of the Old Colony Stakes at Narragansett, and C. S. Howard's Porter's Cap, winner of the Washington Park futurity.

Level best, who has won five races in six starts this year and is regarded as one of the best juveniles in training, drew top weight of 122 pounds. Porter's cap, a stablemate of Kayak II, was rated next in line with 120 pounds.

Also named were Cavalier, 106; Little Beans, 116; Magic Stream, 120; Grand Party, 112; Madigana, 110; Good turn, 116; Wise Brave, 108, and Big Stakes, 118.

Indications were that the Eastern Shore Cap would develop into a contest between Level Best and Porter's Cap, both top-ranking juveniles.

Supporting the feature is the $2,500-added Susquehanna Handicap, for three-year-olds and up, and also over the six-furlong distance. Entered in the Susquehanna were Bill Farnsworth, Early Morn, Arden Lass, Pass Out, Gay Balko and Redlin.

After the meeting here closes, the thoroughbreds will move on to Laruel for 25 days of racing and thence to Pimlico and Bowie, each with 13-day meetings.

Associated Press Meeting Will Be Held Here Today

Times and Alleganian Company Will Be Host to Newspapermen

The association comprises members of the Associated Press in a district comprising Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

The Times and Alleganian Company, publishers of the Cumberland Evening Times, the Cumberland Sunday Times and the Cumberland News, which hold Associated Press franchises, will be host to the gathering.

Delegates will assemble at 11 o'clock this morning in the lobby of the Fort Cumberland hotel, and will be taken in cars to the Cumberland Country Club, where a luncheon will be served at 12:45.

To Elect Officers

Following the luncheon the business meeting of the association will be held in the sun room at the club. The business includes the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Delegates will enjoy the recreation facilities at the club during the remainder of the afternoon and at 7 o'clock in the evening they will be entertained by the Hearst company at a dinner at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Members of the editorial staff of the Times will be guests at the luncheon and members of the editorial staff of the News will be guests at the dinner.

Elmer M. Jackson, Jr., of the Annapolis Evening Capital, is the president of the association, in which capacity he has served for the last several years. He and Frank McShane, of the Evening Capital, were the first of the delegates to arrive last evening.

Others who will attend gathering include William O. Varn, chief of the Baltimore bureau of the Associated Press; three members of his office staff; Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of the Washington Post; Peter B. Chambliss, of the Baltimore Sun staff; H. B. Hostetter, managing editor of the Hanover, Pa., Sun; S. E. Phillips, general manager of the Hagerstown Evening Mail and Morning Herald; William D. Byron, vice?president of the Herald-Mail Company of Hagerstown, and J. A. Hawkin, managing editor of the Hagerstown Evening Mail.

Out-of-State Guests Invited

Invited guests from Virginia and West Virginia state associations of the Associated Press include Harry F. Byrd, Jr., of the Winchester, Va., Star; W. Guy Tetrick, general manager of the Clarksburg, W. Va., Publishing Company, and C. E. Smith, editor of the Fairmont, W. Va. Times. Byrd has sent word that pressing business will prevent his attendance.

The last annual meeting of the association was held at Hagerstown, where association members were entertained by the Mail and the Herald. The annual summer outing was held at Annapolis in July and included a yacht cruise on Chesapeake Bay.

Death Takes Local Woman

Mrs. Nettie Agnes Valentine, 62, wife of William Thomas Valentine, died yesterday morning at her home, 1115 Bedford road.

Mrs. Valentine was a native of Cumberland and a daughter of the late Benjamin and Jane Hall Brant. She was a member of St. Luke's Lutheran church.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a son, William B. Valentine; three daughters, Mrs. William R. E. Smith and Misses Josephine and Erma Valentine, all of Cumberland; a brother, John Brant, of Oldtown; and three sisters, Mrs. Bessie Shaffer and Mrs. Nora Shaffer, of Hyndman, Pa., and Mrs. Mattie Valentine, this city.

Mrs. Oliver Dies

Mrs. Elizabeth Deborah Oliver, 75, of Cumberland Valley, Pa., died Thursday following a long illness.

She was the daughter of the late Jacob Miller and Harriet Dicken. Her husband, Hosea Oliver, died last February.

She is survived by four children, Mrs. Curtis Howard, New Florence, Pa., Jacob Oliver, Bedford Valley, Pa., John Oliver, Greensburg, Pa., and Miss Lois Oliver, Flintstone.

Three brothers and one sister also survive. Andrew Miller, Sanford Miller and Reed Miller and Mrs. Katie Hite, all of Cumberland Valley, Pa.

The deceased was a member of the Centreville, Pa. Methodist church.

Funeral rites will be held Sunday at the home with the Rev. Mr. Nelson officiating and burial will be made in Fellowship cemetery, Centerville, Pa.

Absolute Divorce Is Granted Louise Owens

Louise Owens was granted an absolute divorce from William Owens, a resident of Tennessee, in circuit court yesterday, by Associate Judge William A. Huster.

Mrs. Owens was represented by Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., attorney.

Eighteen Hundred Persons Attend Cooking School

Leaders Receive Ovation; Supply of Cook Books Is Exhausted

Eighteen hundred persons yesterday attended the final session of the Times-News Cooking school at the Strand theater and the demand for cook books was so great that the supply became exhausted. Books, however, will be available at the Times-News office next week.

Ovations for Miss Emily Conklin, director, and her assistants, Miss Edalene Stohr and Miss Miriam Griffin, marked the final session of the school. The three left yesterday afternoon for Washington and Anderson, S. C., where they will conduct a school next week.

Given away at yesterday's concluding session were the following prizes donated by the business houses mentioned: Humphrey Radiant Gas Heater (Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Co.) to Mrs. B. L. Smith, 106 Grand avenue; Electric kitchen clock (Spear's Jewelry Store) to Miss Gertrude Brode, 342 Davidson street; electric coffee grinder (C. D. Kenny Co.) to Mrs. Sam Long, 441 Henderson avenue; 40 loaves of Old Home Bumper Bread (Community Baking Co.) to Mrs. B. A. Marshall, 79 Baltimore street; electric waffle iron and toaster, (G. C. Murphy Co.) to Mrs. Marie Pownall, 719 Hill Top Drive; General Electric table model radio (Cumberland Electric Co.) to Miss Gareth Howard, 21 Weber street; Gold Seal Congoleum rug, 9 by 12 feet, (Rinsers Inc.) to Lula Moy, 14 Harrison street; $15 housecleaning kit (Builders Paint and Supply Co.) to Grace B. Nash, Flintstone; Hamilton Beach food mixer (Queen City Dairy Co) to Mrs. Marshall Davis, 506 Pine avenue; pair of Cross shoes (Peskin's Shoe Store) to Mrs. Frank Florentine, 536 Columbia avenue; Rembrandt floor lamp (L. Bernstein Furniture Co.) to Mrs. R. H. Kaske, R. F. D. No. 5, Cumberland; and $12.50 Chatham All Wool Blanket (E. V. Coyle Furniture Co.) to Mrs. William Derrick, Bedford Road.

Mrs. G. H. Hetzel, 334 Fayette street, was awarded the dozen cartons of Rinso.

Food Prize Winners

The baskets of groceries and food platters were awarded to Mrs. W. B. Long, La Vale; Mrs. W. L. Ritchey, R. F. D. No. 1; Mrs. P. G. Cowden, 523 Avirett avenue; Mrs. Thomas Cox, 614 Lincoln street; Mrs. C. C. Rice, 215 Virginia avenue; Mrs. P. B. Gross, 27 Weber street;; Mrs. A. E. Stein, 219 Columbia street; Mrs. William Johnsoon, 219 Reynolds street; Dolly Sanders, 105 Frederick street; Mrs. J. A. Smith, 151 Bedford street; Mrs. Fred C. Neus, 609 North Centre street; Mrs. Lina Robinson, 136 Independence street; Mrs. Richard Close, Ellerslie, and Mrs. W. S. Rilling, R. F. D. No. 3, Bedford Road.

Robert Beall Receives Suspended Sentence In Police Court

About two months ago Beall was acquitted in police court on a charge of horseback riding in the park. Later he was accused of trespassing, a charge growing out of the first arrest, but the count was also dismissed.

Police and park officials claim that Beall's animals damaged the paths and grass but there was no city ordinance prohibiting animals in the park at that time.

Coal Company Case Is Heard in Court

A hearing was opened in circuit court yesterday before Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster to establish priority of claims in the distribution of funds derived from the sale under receivership of the Maryland Coal Company.

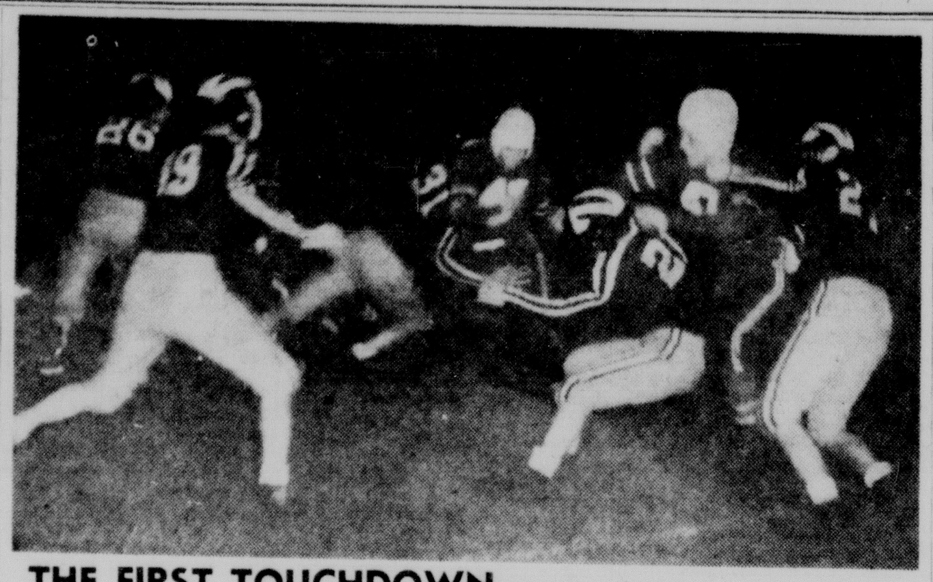

The federal government contends their claims have priority over mortgagee, state and county real estate tax claims, under a statute which says that when a corporation is insolvent federal taxes shall first be satisfied.

The state and county contends it has priority of its taxes over federal claims in that real estate taxes are a specific lien.

The mortgagee claimant relied for priority over federal taxes in that the mortgage had been executed and reported prior to the recording of federal tax liens among Allegany county tax records.

Arguing of the case by the lawyers involved was an intricate and puzzling matter to the several spectators, not versed in legal terms.

Walter C. Capper appeared for the Allegany County Board of Commissioners and Benny Epstein represented the Garrett County Board; the U. S. government was represented by Louis E. Callis, from the general counsel's office, Department of the Treasury, Washington, D. C., Randolph Aiken, office of the U. S. District Attorney, Baltimore, and James Alfred Avirett; Harry I. Stegmaier appeared for company receivers

Parade To Mark Safety Campaign Here Next Week

Floats Stressing Various Phases of Safety To Be Feature

Floats stressing safety in various phases and five bands and drum corps are scheduled to appear in the parade featuring the "Safety Week" campaign here Friday, September 20, it was announced last evening by the Western Maryland Motor Club, the sponsor.

The Moose band, Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars drum corps, American Legion junior drum corps, Allegany and Fort Hill high school bands are scheduled to march in the parade in which there will be approximately 500 schoolboy patrolmen participating.

Parade Starts 7 P. M.

Paraders will assemble on Commerce street in the rear of the State armory at 6:30 p. m., and will begin marching at 7 p. m. The route of the parade will be Commerce street to Williams street to Center to Market to Mechanic to Baltimore to George street and thence to the State armory where a safety program will be presented.

Among the speakers will be Mayor Harry Irvine, E. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles, Sergt. M. D. Brubaker, of the Maryland State Police, who will give an illustrated lecture on safety, James Orr, police commissioner, Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, and F. Harry Rockwell, president of the Western Maryland Motor Club. An added feature of the program will be demonstration of various phases of "Safety in the Home" by J. Walter Byer, electrical engineer of the Celanese Corporation of America.

E. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles, will speak on "State Operation of Inspection Stations."

Each afternoon during the week will find schoolboy patrolmen on the busy corners of the main streets for the purpose of giving instructions to pedestrians on the right and wrong way of crossing the streets. Each evening there will be a short radio talk on safety.

During the week there will be a safety car patroling the streets with a local officer calling attention of pedestrians and motorists of infractions of traffic laws. Each night during the week there will be a speaker at the Strand, Liberty and Maryland theaters to give a short talk on safety.

For the benefit of schoolboy patrolmen who participate in the safety week campaign and parade there will be free moving pictures Saturday, September 21, at 10 a. m., at the Liberty theater through the courtesy of Thomas H. Burke, manager.

A prize will be given for the best slogan used by any individual or organization in the parade.

Stonestreet Will Is Probated Here

The last will and testament of Wilmer S. Stone street, of Flintstone, was filed in orphans court yesterday.

Guy Stonestreet and Earl Stonestreet, sons of the deceased, are named executors. Virgie Stonestreet Bush, Mabel Stonestreet Teeter and Hazel Stonestreet Bottonfield were given cash bequests. Mrs. Almeda Stonestreet, widow of Mr. Stonestreet, was also given a cash bequest and the executors are directed to care for her the rest of her life.

In addition to the home place and all personal property, a grazing farm in Pendleton county, W. Va., was bequeathed to the two sons.

Corriganville Man Injured in Blast

Clinedinst was one of three men injured in a dynamite blast at the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company quarry, at Corriganville, Thursday

Union Members Vote On New Contract

The first of two membership meetings of Local 1874, Textile Union of America, was held last night at Fort Hill school auditorium with a large turnout.

No announcement was made of action taken on the contract terms, pending the meeting to be held today at 10:30 a. m. at the State armory, for those who were unable to attend last night's session.

The coincidence of the union meeting and the football game between Allegany and Keyser high schools at the Fort Hill stadium caused a big traffic snarl. One man said it took him forty-five minutes to drive from the school to Baltimore street.

William LaNeve Is Injured While Practicing Football with LaSalle

The first accident to be attributed to this year's local football season occurred yesterday afternoon when a LaSalle high school player was hurt while practicing at Community Ball park.

William "Butch" LaNeve, 15, of 190 North Centre street, suffered an injured right eye when he was struck by the knee of a fellow-player whom he tackled. He was admitted to Allegany hospital last night for observation.

Amputate Toe

Lester Barnes, 45, of Artemas, Pa., was brought to Memorial hospital yesterday where the third toe of his left foot was amputated.

The operation was necessary due to the badly mangled condition of the digit which was cut while Barnes was chopping tree roots. The axe glanced from a root and struck his toe.

Wahaba Temple Of Dokkies Is Revived Here

Unit Will Be Instituted September 23--Officers Are Elected

Inactive since 1931, the Dokkies, a branch of the Knights of Pythias, will essay a comeback in Cumberland Monday, September 23, when a local temple of the "sunshine boys" will be instituted at the I.O.O.F. hall, South Mechanic street.

Lost Charter in 1931

Wahaba Temple No. 237, Dramatic Order of the Knights of Khorassan, functioned here for fifteen years prior to losing its charter in 1931, but at a recent meeting the temple was reorganized by Carl Mitchell, imperial secretary, of Cincinnati, and a charter has been received. Wahaba Temple starts all over with seventy members and will revive its patrol team with George Callis as captain and J. G. Bert Treiber as assistant.

Patrol teams of Wahaba Temple in the past years have participated in numerous competitive drills and in conventions of the order the local organization took part in contests at Providence, R. I., in 1925; Fort Worth, Texas, 1927; Winnipeg, Canada, 1921, and Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1931.

Officers Elected

Officers elected by the local Dokkies to serve out the remainder of the year are Edward M. Heber, royal vizier; C. J. Shaffer, grand emir; Robert M. Llewellyn, shiek; J. W. McKee, mahedi; Lloyd W. Cozard, satrap; Stanley Hamilton, sahib; Arthur E. Brant, secretary; Ernest B. Treat, treasurer; Odith M. Brotemarkle, master of ceremonies; Harry H. Keith, electrician; Glen A. Moore, A. E. Brant, George L. Arbogast and J. Hillry Hayden, royal princess; George A. Gallis, Fred Crowe and J. R. Lucas, trustees; George Callis, patrol captain, and J. G. Bert Treiber, assistant captain.

The local temple will be instituted by A. L. Wood Martak and Benjamin F. McKindless, both of Baltimore.

Eighteen new temples of the D.O.K.K. have been instituted in the United States within the past two years, according to Imperial Secretary Mitchell. The temple at Roanoke, Va., largest in the country, has 2,800 members.

Wholesale Grocery Will Open Monday On Canal Street

A branch of M. Rom and Sons, one of the largest wholesale grocery concerns in the eastern United States, has been established on Canal street in the building formerly used by the freight department of the Western Maryland Railway company, and the new firm expects to open for business Monday morning.

The Rom company has thirty-eight branches in operation in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. The local warehouse is the first to be established in the State of Maryland. Eleven of the company's branches in Pennsylvania are located in Pittsburgh and vicinity while there are four in West Virginia and four in Ohio.

Herbert E. Smiley, of 323 Water street, former local life insurance agent, will be manager of the local warehouse. Merchandise will be sold only to those holding mercantile licenses.

Rom's will carry a large stock of nationally advertised products in addition to their own labels, namely, Pond Lily, Sun Gem, Tri Me and Court House.

Thomas Hoggard Injured in Fall

Thomas Hoggard, 42, of 113 Race street, a B. & O. fireman, last night was admitted to Memorial hospital after he fell about ten feet from a water tank while at work.

Hospital attendants said Hoggard suffered minor injuries to the head and right hip. He is expected to return home today.

LeCompte Names Battie Mixon as Game Warden

Successor to Harry Kenney Will Qualify Today at Court House

Appointment of Battie Mixon, 39, of 856 Sperry Terrace, to the post of district game warden of Allegany county, was announced yesterday by L. Lee LeCompte, state game warden.

LeCompte notified Mixon by letter of his appointment and informed him to qualify this morning at the court house before Robert Jackson, clerk of the circuit court.

Mixon succeeds Harry Russell Kenney, of Cumberland, who was dismissed last spring by the state game warden. Kenney had served as district game warden for fifteen years.

The new warden, a native of Birmingham, Ala., is a tire builder by trade and came to Cumberland from Akron, Ohio, in 1921. He built the first cord tire turned out of the local Kelly-Springfield Tire company plant in April of the same year.

Mixon, a World war veteran, served with the United States Army in Haiti, Cuba and Puerto Rico, and is well known among sportsmen of this community. He is a hunter and fisherman and has taken an active part in the feeding of game during the winter in the Green Ridge section where he owns a cottage.

The appointee was among thirty-seven persons who took the competitive examination for the post of game warden several months ago at Fort Hill high school.

State Game Warden LeCompte is expected to announce the appointment of a district game warden for Garrett county to succeed Richard Browning, retired, in the near future.

Woman Is Held For Grand Jury

Fay Wilson, 24, is Charged with Taking $80 from a Salesman

A woman who gave her name as Fay Wison, 24, formerly of Virginia, was ordered held under $1,000 bond to await action of the October grand jury when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court on a charge of "rolling" a traveling salesman to the tune of $80.

The salesman, E. P. Markhal, of Philadelphia, said the girl took the money from him while he was asleep in a Bedford street boarding house. He discovered the money missing after going to a local hotel.

Police said the girl had no visible means of support and had been frequenting beer parlors. She was arrested by Detective R. E. Flynn and B. F. Gaffney and questioned by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

The elder girl was committed to the county jail in default of bond.

Eighteen Couples Obtain Licenses To Wed on Thirteenth

"Friday the Thirteenth", which is usually a field day for the superstitious, took a bad beating yesterday from eighteen couples who took out marriage licenses at the court house.

No noticeable decline of everyday life was evident yesterday, although some people are said to stay in bed all day whenever the jinx day comes around for fear an "accident" might befall them.

High School Students See Water Film

Nine hundred boys and girls of two Cumberland schools yesterday saw the final showing in this city of the motion picture, "Behind the Water Tap," produced by the industrial chemical sales division of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and brought to Cumberland by the city water department.

William J. Edwards, water and light commissioner, said that 1,200 persons saw the educational film this week in Cumberland. The picture was shown at meetings of the Exchange, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs and a public showing also was given at the city hall.

The film was sent to Philadelphia last evening.

Miss Margaret Ross Is Improving

Miss Margaret Ross, 21, of Midland, who was injured early Wednesday morning in an automobile accident in the Narrows, was reported "improving" last night at Memorial hospital.

Driver of the mishap car, Robert P. George, 18, of 221 Hay street, was arrested on a charge of failing to keep to the right-center of the road. State Trooper B. C. Mason investigated

Chatter readers will recall that several years ago chain letters were quite the rage and they still make their appearance from time to time. Here's the latest one to reach the News desk:

Dear Friend:

This chain was started in Reno in the hope of bringing happiness to all tired business men. Unlike most chains, this one does not cost any money. Simply send a copy of this letter to five men friends; then bundle up your wife and send her to the fellow whose name heads the list. When your name works up to the top, you will in turn received 15,176 gorgeous girls.

Have faith. Don't break the chain.

Here's one to think over. A 23-year-old Midland man, arraigned in trial magistrate's court here last week on a charge of criminally assaulting a 12-year-old girl, was worried about being AWOL from the United States Army.

He seemed just a bit worried about the assault charge, too.

Residents of Western Maryland are warned to take precautions against forest fires, as danger is imminent because of the dry condition, according to C. F. Winslow, specialist in forestry for the University of Maryland extension service.

Mr. Winslow points out that the lack of rainfall in most sections of the state has not only dried out the forest soils, but has reduced the flow of water in streams and springs, thus creating a condition that would seriously hamper fire fighters.

Ordinarily forest fires do not occur during the summer months in Maryland, due to the presence of an abundance of succulent, herbaceous vegetation which is non-inflammable. These herbaceous plants depend upon adequate moisture for growth, but the lack of it this summer has caused them to wither and die, adding to the fire hazards that already exist.

Mr. Winslow makes the following suggestions as helpful in preventing forest fires:

(1) Break matches in half before discarding. If they are too hot for you to handle, they are hot enough to ignite inflammable forest debris.

(2) Smokers should scrape away the forest litter before depositing hot ashes and tobacco on the ground, and then grind them into the soil of the cleared area with the foot.

(3) Smokers should not throw lighted cigarettes or ashes out of the car window. Most automobiles have recepticles for this material.

(4) Trash should be burned in an incinerator, as flying embers and papers are a great menace.

(5) Brush and field burning should be postponed until after a heavy rain has reduced the danger of a forest fire.

(6) In the event of a field or forest fire, call your nearest forest warden or local fire department at once. A list of fire wardens can be found in the back of all rural telephone directories and your telephone operator can connect you immediately with the local fire department.

Committee Hears Financial Report On Community Chest

A total of $34,379 has been collected so far. This is sixty-four percent of the amount pledged. Last year at this time sixty-seven percent had been collected although the amount this year is $1,600 larger due to a larger fund being raised.

Another item of discussion at the meeting was the national fund of $5,000,000 being raised for refugee European children. A quota of $2,900 has been set for Cumberland.

While most chest funds are raised in the fall, Cumberland has its campaign in April and as no provision was made for such an emergency, it is difficult to see how Cumberland can participate, Harold W. Smith, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said.

Willkie and McNary Buttons Received

One thousand "Willkie and McNary" buttons were received yesterday by Lewis M. Wilson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany county, and will be distributed to those desiring to wear them on their coat lapels.

Wilson said that there is great demand for the buttons and another thousand is expected to arrive here soon.

The county G.O.P. chairman stated that among those responding to an appeal for donations to the campaign was a West Virginian, who said he was anxious to lend his support in Maryland as well as in his own state.

Emergency Home For Juveniles To Close Oct. 1

Standards of Welfare Board Cannot Be Met by Harry C. Balch

The Allegany county emergency home for juveniles will close October 1, according to States Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Mr. Harris has received notification from J. Milton Patterson, director of the state department of public welfare, that Captain Harry C. Balch, who operates the home, cannot meet the standards required by the state welfare department and he will have to close the institution.

The state welfare department wrote to Attorney General William C. Walsh asking him what steps the department should take regarding the home.

Deficiencies Outlined

The welfare department declared the Balch home was deficient in these respects; no individual records containing the minimum required information about each child were on file at the institution; the home does not have a physician designated to be responsible for the medical care of the children; there is an insufficient staff and no records of discharges are on file.

It further said; pre-admission physical examinations are not always given; there are no reports of physical examinations on file at the home; some of the children do not sleep in single beds; washing and bathing facilities are not adequate; there is no board of directors having charge of finances and policies of the home; and no financial report is made to the state welfare board.

Mr. Walsh opined that all institutions that receive financial assistance from the state, whether incorporated or not, are subject to the jurisdiction of the state welfare board.

The state welfare board then notified States Attorney Harris that the Balch home would have to comply with the standard requirements or be prosecuted under the law.

Just what the county will do after the home closes is not known, but a serious problem confronts the county as to what is to be done with juveniles, who ordinarily would be placed in the Balch emergency home.

Decides To Close Home

To meet state requirements Mr. Balch stated that it would take a $25,000 outlay. Since he is unable to raise such a sum, Balch decided to close his institution.

States Attorney Morgan C. Harris has been in lengthy correspondence with the state welfare department in an effort to iron out the situation due to the state law and inability of Mr. Balch to meet standard requirements and the attitude and demands of the State welfare department.

Mr. Harris said, the home's closing is most unfortunate, as it serves an almost indispensable purpose in this county, due to the overcrowded conditions in the state juvenile institutions.

Kelly-Springfield, Celanese Golfers Will Play Today

Members of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company's golf team will be hosts to golfers of the Celanese Corporation at a dinner this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Country club. Arrangements have been made to accommodate eighty-five guests.

The dinner will follow the annual golf match between teams of the respective plants. Players will tee off at 1 p. m., and each side will be represented by sixteen twosomes. Celanese won last year's match.

Martin D. Tenney is captain of the Kelly aggregation and Albert W. Keight will head the Celanese outfit.

Associated Press Meeting Will Be Held Here Today

Times and Alleganian Company Will Be Host to Newspapermen

Delegates began arriving here last night for the annual meeting of the Chesapeake Association of the Associated Press, which will be held here tomorrow.

The association comprises members of the Associated Press in a district comprising Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

The Times and Alleganian Company, publishers of the Cumberland Evening Times, the Cumberland Sunday Times and the Cumberland News, which hold Associated Press franchises, will be host to the gathering.

Delegates will assemble at 11 o'clock this morning in the lobby of the Fort Cumberland hotel, and will be taken in cars to the Cumberland Country Club, where a luncheon will be served at 12:45.

To Elect Officers

Following the luncheon the business meeting of the association will be held in the sun room at the club. The business includes the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Delegates will enjoy the recreation facilities at the club during the remainder of the afternoon and at 7 o'clock in the evening they will be entertained by the Hearst company at a dinner at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Members of the editorial staff of the Times will be guests at the luncheon and members of the editorial staff of the News will be guests at the dinner.

Elmer M. Jackson, Jr., of the Annapolis Evening Capital, is the president of the association, in which capacity he has served for the last several years. He and Frank McShane, of the Evening Capital, were the first of the delegates to arrive last evening.

Others who will attend gathering include William O. Varn, chief of the Baltimore bureau of the Associated Press; three members of his office staff; Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of the Washington Post; Peter B. Chambliss, of the Baltimore Sun staff; H. B. Hostetter, managing editor of the Hanover, Pa., Sun; S. E. Phillips, general manager of the Hagerstown Evening Mail and Morning Herald; William D. Byron, vice?president of the Herald-Mail Company of Hagerstown, and J. A. Hawkin, managing editor of the Hagerstown Evening Mail.

Out-of-State Guests Invited

Invited guests from Virginia and West Virginia state associations of the Associated Press include Harry F. Byrd, Jr., of the Winchester, Va., Star; W. Guy Tetrick, general manager of the Clarksburg, W. Va., Publishing Company, and C. E. Smith, editor of the Fairmont, W. Va. Times. Byrd has sent word that pressing business will prevent his attendance.

The last annual meeting of the association was held at Hagerstown, where association members were entertained by the Mail and the Herald. The annual summer outing was held at Annapolis in July and included a yacht cruise on Chesapeake Bay.

Robert Beall Receives Suspended Sentence In Police Court

Robert E. Beall, owner of a horseback riding academy on Williams road, was given a suspended sentence yesterday morning in police court on a charge of allowing animals to run at large in nearby Constitution park.

Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., suspended sentence on condition Beall put up a fence to keep his animals out of the park.

About two months ago Beall was acquitted in police court on a charge of horseback riding in the park. Later he was accused of trespassing, a charge growing out of the first arrest, but the count was also dismissed.

Police and park officials claim that Beall's animals damaged the paths and grass but there was no city ordinance prohibiting animals in the park at that time.

Coal Company Case Is Heard in Court

A hearing was opened in circuit court yesterday before Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan and Associate Judge William A. Huster to establish priority of claims in the distribution of funds derived from the sale under receivership of the Maryland Coal Company.

The federal government contends their claims have priority over mortgagee, state and county real estate tax claims, under a statute which says that when a corporation is insolvent federal taxes shall first be satisfied.

The state and county contends it has priority of its taxes over federal claims in that real estate taxes are a specific lien.

The mortgagee claimant relied for priority over federal taxes in that the mortgage had been executed and reported prior to the recording of federal tax liens among Allegany county tax records.

Arguing of the case by the lawyers involved was an intricate and puzzling matter to the several spectators, not versed in legal terms.

Walter C. Capper appeared for the Allegany County Board of Commissioners and Benny Epstein represented the Garrett County Board; the U. S. government was represented by Louis E. Callis, from the general counsel's office, Department of the Treasury, Washington, D. C., Randolph Aiken, office of the U. S. District Attorney, Baltimore, and James Alfred Avirett; Harry I. Stegmaier appeared for company receivers

Parade To Mark Safety Campaign Here Next Week

Floats Stressing Various Phases of Safety To Be Feature

Floats stressing safety in various phases and five bands and drum corps are scheduled to appear in the parade featuring the "Safety Week" campaign here Friday, September 20, it was announced last evening by the Western Maryland Motor club, the sponsor.

The Moose band, Henry Hart Post No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, drum corps, American Legion junior drum corps, Allegany and Fort Hill high school bands are scheduled to march in the parade in which there will be approximately 500 schoolboy patrolmen participating.

Parade Starts 7 P. M.

Paraders will assemble on Commerce street in the rear of the State armory at 6:30 p. m., and will begin marching at 7 p. m. The route of the parade will be Commerce street to Williams street to Center to Market to Mechanic to Baltimore to George street and thence to the State armory where a safety program will be presented.

Among the speakers will be Mayor Harry Irvine, E. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles, Sergt. M. D. Brubaker, of the Maryland State Police, who will give an illustrated lecture on safety, James Orr, police commissioner, Morgan C. Harris, state's attorney, and F. Harry Rockwell, president of the Western Maryland Motor Club. An added feature of the program will be demonstration of various phases of "Safety in the Home" by J. Walter Byer, electrical engineer of the Celanese Corporation of America.

E. Lee Elgin, commissioner of motor vehicles, will speak on "State Operation of Inspection Stations."

Each afternoon during the week will find schoolboy patrolmen on the busy corners of the main streets for the purpose of giving instructions to pedestrians on the right and wrong way of crossing the streets. Each evening there will be a short radio talk on safety.

During the week there will be a safety car patroling the streets with a local officer calling attention of pedestrians and motorists of infractions of traffic laws. Each night during the week there will be a speaker at the Strand, Liberty and Maryland theaters to give a short talk on safety.

For the benefit of schoolboy patrolmen who participate in the safety week campaign and parade there will be free moving pictures Saturday, September 21, at 10 a. m. at the Liberty theater through the courtesy of Thomas H. Burke, manager.

A prize will be given for the best slogan used by any individual or organization in the parade.

Stonestreet Will Is Probated Here

The last will and testament of Wilmer S. Stone street, of Flintstone, was filed in orphans court yesterday.

Guy Stonestreet and Earl Stonestreet, sons of the deceased, are named executors. Virgie Stonestreet Bush, Mabel Stonestreet Teeter and Hazel Stonestreet Bottonfield were given cash bequests. Mrs. Almeda Stonestreet, widow of Mr. Stonestreet, was also given a cash bequest and the executors are directed to care for her the rest of her life.

In addition to the home place and all personal property, a grazing farm in Pendleton county, W. Va., was bequeathed to the two sons.

Corriganville Man Injured in Blast

Clinedinst was one of three men injured in a dynamite blast at the Cumberland Cement and Supply Company quarry, at Corriganville, Thursday

Union Members Vote On New Contract

The first of two membership meetings of Local 1874, Textile Union of America, was held last night at Fort Hill school auditorium with a large turnout.

No announcement was made of action taken on the contract terms, pending the meeting to be held today at 10:30 a. m. at the State armory, for those who were unable to attend last night's session.

The coincidence of the union meeting and the football game between Allegany and Keyser high schools at the Fort Hill stadium caused a big traffic snarl. One man said it took him forty-five minutes to drive from the school to Baltimore street.

William LaNeve Is Injured While Practicing Football with LaSalle

The first accident to be attributed to this year's local football season occurred yesterday afternoon when a LaSalle high school player was hurt while practicing at Community Ball park.

William "Butch" LaNeve, 15, of 190 North Centre street, suffered an injured right eye when he was struck by the knee of a fellow-player whom he tackled. He was admitted to Allegany hospital last night for observation.

X-rays will be taken today to determine the extent of his injury.

Amputate Toe

Lester Barnes, 45, of Artemas, Pa., was brought to Memorial hospital yesterday where the third toe of his left foot was amputated.

The operation was necessary due to the badly mangled condition of the digit which was cut while Barnes was chopping tree roots. The axe glanced from a root and struck his toe.

Wahaba Temple Of Dokkies Is Revived Here

Unit Will Be Instituted September 23--Officers Are Elected

Inactive since 1931, the Dokkies, a branch of the Knights of Pythias, will essay a comeback in Cumberland Monday, September 23, when a local temple of the "sunshine boys" will be instituted at the I.O.O.F. hall, South Mechanic street.

Lost Charter in 1931

Wahaba Temple No. 237, Dramatic Order of the Knights of Khorassan, functioned here for fifteen years prior to losing its charter in 1931, but at a recent meeting the temple was reorganized by Carl Mitchell, imperial secretary, of Cincinnati, and a charter has been received. Wahaba Temple starts all over with seventy members and will revive its patrol team with George Callis as captain and J. G. Bert Treiber as assistant.

Patrol teams of Wahaba Temple in the past years have participated in numerous competitive drills and in conventions of the order the local organization took part in contests at Providence, R. I., in 1925; Fort Worth, Texas, 1927; Winnipeg, Canada, 1921, and Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1931.

Officers Elected

Officers elected by the local Dokkies to serve out the remainder of the year are Edward M. Heber, royal vizier; C. J. Shaffer, grand emir; Robert M. Llewellyn, sajek; J. W. McKee, mahedi; Lloyd W. Cozard, satrap; Stanley Hamilton, sahib; Arthur E. Brant, secretary; Ernest B. Treat, treasurer; Odith M. Brotemarkle, master of ceremonies; Harry H. Keith, electrician; Glen A. Moore, A. E. Brant, George L. Arbogast and J. Hillry Hayden, royal princess; George A. Gallis, Fred Crowe and J. R. Lucas, trustees; George Callis, patrol captain, and J. G. Bert Treiber, assistant captain.

The local temple will be instituted by A. L. Wood Martak and Benjamin F. McKindless, both of Baltimore.

Eighteen new temples of the D.O.K.K. have been instituted in the United States within the past two years, according to Imperial Secretary Mitchell. The temple at Roanoke, Va., largest in the country, has 2,800 members.

Wholesale Grocery Will Open Monday On Canal Street

A branch of M. Rom and Sons, one of the largest wholesale grocery concerns in the eastern United States, has been established on Canal street in the building formerly used by the freight department of the Western Maryland Railway company, and the new firm expects to open for business Monday morning.

The Rom company has thirty-eight branches in operation in Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia. The local warehouse is the first to be established in the State of Maryland. Eleven of the company's branches in Pennsylvania are located in Pittsburgh and vicinity while there are four in West Virginia and four in Ohio.

Herbert E. Smiley, of 323 Water street, former local life insurance agent, will be manager of the local warehouse. Merchandise will be sold only to those holding mercantile licenses.

Rom's will carry a large stock of nationally advertised products in addition to their own labels, namely, Pond Lily, Sun Gem, Tri Me and Court House.

Thomas Hoggard Injured in Fall

Thomas Hoggard, 42, of 113 Race street, a B. & O. fireman, last night was admitted to Memorial hospital after he fell about ten feet from a water tank while at work.

Hospital attendants said Hoggard suffered minor injuries to the head and right hip. He is expected to return home today.

LeCompte Names Battie Mixon as Game Warden

Successor to Harry Kenney Will Qualify Today at Court House

Appointment of Battie Mixon, 39, of 856 Sperry Terrace, to the post of district game warden of Allegany county, was announced yesterday by L. Lee LeCompte, state game warden.

LeCompte notified Mixon by letter of his appointment and informed him to qualify this morning at the court house before Robert Jackson, clerk of the circuit court.

Mixon succeeds Harry Russell Kenney, of Cumberland, who was dismissed last spring by the state game warden. Kenney had served as district game warden for fifteen years.

The new warden, a native of Birmingham, Ala., is a tire builder by trade and came to Cumberland from Akron, Ohio, in 1921. He built the first cord tire turned out of the local Kelly-Springfield Tire company plant in April of the same year.

Mixon, a World war veteran, served with the United States Army in Haiti, Cuba and Puerto Rico, and is well known among sportsmen of this community. He is a hunter and fisherman and has taken an active part in the feeding of game during the winter in the Green Ridge section where he owns a cottage.

The appointee was among thirty-seven persons who took the competitive examination for the post of game warden several months ago at Fort Hill high school.

State Game Warden LeCompte is expected to announce the appointment of a district game warden for Garrett county to succeed Richard Browning, retired, in the near future.

Woman Is Held For Grand Jury

Fay Wilson, 24, is Charged with Taking $80 from a Salesman

A woman who gave her name as Fay Wison, 24, formerly of Virginia, was ordered held under $1,000 bond to await action of the October grand jury when arraigned yesterday in trial magistrates court on a charge of "rolling" a traveling salesman to the tune of $80.

The salesman, E. P. Markhal, of Philadelphia, said the girl took the money from him while he was asleep in a Bedford street boarding house. He discovered the money missing after going to a local hotel.

Police said the girl had no visible means of support and had been frequenting beer parlors. She was arrested by Detective R. E. Flynn and B. F. Gaffney and questioned by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

Eighteen Couples Obtain Licenses To Wed on Thirteenth

"Friday the Thirteenth", which is usually a field day for the superstitious, took a bad beating yesterday from eighteen couples who took out marriage licenses at the court house.

No noticeable decline of everyday life was evident yesterday, although some people are said to stay in bed all day whenever the jinx day comes around for fear an "accident" might befall them.

High School Students See Water Film

Nine hundred boys and girls of two Cumberland schools yesterday saw the final showing in this city of the motion picture, "Behind the Water Tap," produced by the industrial chemical sales division of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company and brought to Cumberland by the city water department.

Three groups, comprising five hundred pupils, saw the film at Fort Hill high school and four hundred boys and girls were present for the showing at Pennsylvania avenue school.

William J. Edwards, water and light commissioner, said that 1,200 persons saw the educational film this week in Cumberland. The picture was shown at meetings of the Exchange, Rotary, Kiwanis and Lions clubs and a public showing also was given at the city hall.

The film was sent to Philadelphia last evening.

Miss Margaret Ross Is Improving

Miss Margaret Ross, 21, of Midland, who was injured early Wednesday morning in an automobile accident in the Narrows, was reported "improving" last night at Memorial hospital.

Driver of the mishap car, Robert P. George, 18, of 221 Hay street, was arrested on a charge of failing to keep to the right-center of the road. State Trooper B. C. Mason investigated

Chatter readers will recall that several years ago chain letters were quite the rage and they still make their appearance from time to time. Here's the latest one to reach the News desk:

Dear Friend:

This chain was started in Reno in the hope of bringing happiness to all tired business men. Unlike most chains, this one does not cost any money. Simply send a copy of this letter to five men friends; then bundle up your wife and send her to the fellow whose name heads the list. When your name works up to the top, you will in turn received 15,176 gorgeous girls.

Have faith. Don't break the chain.

Here's one to think over. A 23-year-old Midland man, arraigned in trial magistrate's court here last week on a charge of criminally assaulting a 12-year-old girl, was worried about being AWOL from the United States Army.

He seemed just a bit worried about the assault charge, too.

Residents of Western Maryland are warned to take precautions against forest fires, as danger is imminent because of the dry condition, according to C. F. Winslow, specialist in forestry for the University of Maryland extension service.

Mr. Winslow points out that the lack of rainfall in most sections of the state has not only dried out the forest soils, but has reduced the flow of water in streams and springs, thus creating a condition that would seriously hamper fire fighters.

Ordinarily forest fires do not occur during the summer months in Maryland, due to the presence of an abundance of succulent, herbaceous vegetation which is non-inflammable. These herbaceous plants depend upon adequate moisture for growth, but the lack of it this summer has caused them to wither and die, adding to the fire hazards that already exist.

Mr. Winslow makes the following suggestions as helpful in preventing forest fires:

(1) Break matches in half before discarding. If they are too hot for you to handle, they are hot enough to ignite inflammable forest debris.

(2) Smokers should scrape away the forest litter before depositing hot ashes and tobacco on the ground, and then grind them into the soil of the cleared area with the foot.

(3) Smokers should not throw lighted cigarettes or ashes out of the car window. Most automobiles have recepticles for this material.

(4) Trash should be burned in an incinerator, as flying embers and papers are a great menace.

(5) Brush and field burning should be postponed until after a heavy rain has reduced the danger of a forest fire.

(6) In the event of a field or forest fire, call your nearest forest warden or local fire department at once. A list of fire wardens can be found in the back of all rural telephone directories and your telephone operator can connect you immediately with the local fire department.

Committee Hears Financial Report On Community Chest

The executive committee of the community chest met yesterday afternoon in the chamber of commerce office to hear the monthly financial report.

A total of $34,379 has been collected so far. This is sixty-four percent of the amount pledged. Last year at this time sixty-seven percent had been collected although the amount this year is $1,600 larger due to a larger fund being raised.

September collections this year are only $40 less than the full month's collection last year.

Another item of discussion at the meeting was the national fund of $5,000,000 being raised for refugee European children. A quota of $2,900 has been set for Cumberland.

While most chest funds are raised in the fall, Cumberland has its campaign in April and as no provision was made for such an emergency, it is difficult to see how Cumberland can participate, Harold W. Smith, secretary of the chamber of commerce, said.

Willkie and McNary Buttons Received

One thousand "Willkie and McNary" buttons were received yesterday by Lewis M. Wilson, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee of Allegany county, and will be distributed to those desiring to wear them on their coat lapels.

Wilson said that there is great demand for the buttons and another thousand is expected to arrive here soon.

The county G.O.P. chairman stated that among those responding to an appeal for donations to the campaign was a West Virginian, who said he was anxious to lend his support in Maryland as well as in his own state.

Emergency Home For Juveniles To Close Oct. 1

Standards of Welfare Board Cannot Be Met by Harry C. Balch

The Allegany county emergency home for juveniles will close October 1, according to States Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Mr. Harris has received notification from J. Milton Patterson, director of the state department of public welfare, that Captain Harry C. Balch, who operates the home, cannot meet the standards required by the state welfare department and he will have to close the institution.

The state welfare department wrote to Attorney General William C. Walsh asking him what steps the department should take regarding the home.

Deficiencies Outlined

The welfare department declared the Balch home was deficient in these respects; no individual records containing the minimum required information about each child were on file at the institution; the home does not have a physician designated to be responsible for the medical care of the children; there is an insufficient staff and no records of discharges are on file.

It further said; pre-admission physical examinations are not always given; there are no reports of physical examinations on file at the home; some of the children do not sleep in single beds; washing and bathing facilities are not adequate; there is no board of directors having charge of finances and policies of the home; and no financial report is made to the state welfare board.

Mr. Walsh opined that all institutions that receive financial assistance from the state, whether incorporated or not, are subject to the jurisdiction of the state welfare board.

The state welfare board then notified States Attorney Harris that the Balch home would have to comply with the standard requirements or be prosecuted under the law.

Just what the county will do after the home closes is not known, but a serious problem confronts the county as to what is to be done with juveniles, who ordinarily would be placed in the Balch emergency home.

Decides To Close Home

To meet state requirements Mr. Balch stated that it would take a $25,000 outlay. Since he is unable to raise such a sum, Balch decided to close his institution.

States Attorney Morgan C. Harris has been in lengthy correspondence with the state welfare department in an effort to iron out the situation due to the state law and inability of Mr. Balch to meet standard requirements and the attitude and demands of the State welfare department.

Mr. Harris said, the home's closing is most unfortunate, as it serves an almost indispensable purpose in this county, due to the overcrowded conditions in the state juvenile institutions.

Kelly-Springfield, Celanese Golfers Will Play Today

Members of the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company's golf team will be hosts to golfers of the Celanese Corporation at a dinner this evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Cumberland Country club. Arrangements have been made to accommodate eighty-five guests.

The dinner will follow the annual golf match between teams of the respective plants. Players will tee off at 1 p. m., and each side will be represented by sixteen twosomes. Celanese won last year's match.

Martin D. Tenney is captain of the Kelly aggregation and Albert W. Keight will head the Celanese outfit.
